PRESIDENT NOW OPPOSED TO ANY WAR INQUIRY

FIGHT IMPENDS IN SENATE

SENATORS SHOW SURPRISE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The gage was thrown down to the Senate today by President Wilson when, in conference at the White House with Senator Thompson of Kansas, he declared he would expect every supporter of the Administration in the conduct of the war to vote against the Chamberlain resolution, as amended by the Committee on Audit and Control, giving the Committee on Military Affairs authority to investigate the aircraft program, Ordnance, and the Quartermaster General's Department.

President Wilson urged Senator Thompson to impress upon Democratic Senators the necessity of standing with the Executive against investigation of war activities. When Senator Thompson returned to the Capitol he announced: "It's a fight."

That the challenge would be taken up was evident from remarks made on the floor of the Senate and in the lobby. The fight will come on a motion to adopt the amended Chamberlain resolution. This may come tomorrow or be put off until Saturday, or even later. It all depends upon the mustering of forces.

One thing assured is that it will not be a partisan line-up. The bulk of Administration Democrats undoubtedly will stand with the President, but others are avowedly in favor of putting the resolution through. On the Republican side there are at least three Senators on whom opponents of the resolution can count.

Passage of Resolution Predicted.

Although no poll of the Senate was obtainable, Senators believed today that the Chamberlain resolution, despite the President's opposition, would be passed by a margin of two or three votes. Senator Chamberlain made no effort to predict the outcome of the vote.

"I have made no poll and have asked no Senator to vote for the resolution," he said. "I know there is a distinct sentiment for a thorough investigation of the aircraft program. and other features of war activity. If Senators vote according to their inclination, the resolution will be adopted. No Senator wants to set up a snooping committee to harass the President. But most of the Senators believe in exposing inefficiency and mistakes, so as to improve the war machine."

In the Senate lobby surprise was expressed that the President had set himself against an aircraft inquiry. The President, it was recalled, had told Senator Thompson earlier in the week that he would not object to such an investigation. Senators wondered what had caused the President to change his mind. The President told Mr. Thompson, according to the Senator, that he felt that the Chamberlain resolution, even as modified, proposed too much of a dragnet inquiry, which might embarrass the Government in the conduct of the war and interfere with the aircraft inquiry to be made by the Department of Justice in association with Charles E. Hughes.

Senators Lodge, Weeks, Brandegee, Gallinger, and other Republican leaders refused to accept the President's interpretation that a vote for the Chamberlain resolution could be construed as disloyalty to the Administration in the conduct of the war. They were supported in this attitude by Senators Chamberlain, McKellar, and other Democratic members. In the vote on the resolution its advocates will stand upon the privilege of the Senate to conduct investigations as a branch of the Government.

Hughes as a Factor.

In brief debate on the Chamberlain resolution today, Senator Martin, Democratic floor leader, said the necessity for an aircraft inquiry by the Senate had passed with the appointment of Charles E. Hughes as special investigator for the Attorney General. This was disputed by advocates of the Chamberlain resolution, who insisted that Mr. Hughes's investigation would touch only upon criminality, while that of the Senate would be directed toward inefficiency, efforts to block the aircraft program, and expenditure of the $840,000,000 appropriated by Congress for aircraft.

Senator McKellar offered the majority report of the Audit Committee, favoring the Chamberlain resolution, and urged that it be adopted. Senator Thompson,

Last of the German Superguns Destroyed by French Battery

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, May 16.—Parisians will soon have the pleasure of seeing a cinema photographic reproduction of the firing of the French heavy guns which on May 3 put the last German supercannon out of action. An official army photographer attached to the force in charge of the counterbattery work told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today that he had obtained an excellent film of eight shots from Mirielle—the heroine of the Provençal poet Mistral's masterpiece—and Mary Magdalene, as the two great French guns were named by the battery. It is impossible to say which of the shots was successful, but hardly had the echo of the eighth died away when the message came from a signaling plane that two shells had struck the target.

GENEVA, May 16.—Two of the long-distance guns which have been bombarding Paris have been taken to the Krupp plant for repairs, the Constance Zeitung states. Such huge guns, the newspaper adds, cannot be fired indefinitely without timely repairs.

ITALIANS ENTER AUSTRIAN LINES

BRITISH RAID ALSO WINS

Great Drive for Milan and Brescia Said to be in Preparation by the Foe.

ROME, May 16.—Italian troops carried out an offensive operation yesterday in which the Austrian trenches on Monte Asolone, between the Brenta and Piave Rivers, were entered at two points. The Italians inflicted heavy casualties and took prisoners. In addition to this aggressive movement the War Office reports a successful patrol action by the British at Canove, in which prisoners also were taken. Enemy raiding parties were repulsed. The text of the statement reads:

> Our infantry and assault detachments entered the enemy trenches on Monte Asolone at two places. A portion of the garrison was killed. The survivors fled, leaving a few prisoners in our hands. British patrols raided the enemy positions at Canove, capturing an officer and a few men.
> Various attempts by the enemy to approach our advance line in the Rosole Valley, at Fortini, in the Posina Valley, and on Col di Chele, failed.
> In the Lagarian and Arsa Valleys and on the Asiago Plateau there was increased artillery activity on both sides.

VIENNA, May 16, (via London.)—Bitter fighting between the Brenta and Piave Rivers, on the Italian front, is reported in the official statement issued by the War Office today. The statement reads:

> Between the Brenta and the Piave several Italian reconnoitring thrusts were repulsed. As a result of these attacks hand to hand fighting developed at Monte Asolone and Monte Pertica.

LONDON, May 16, (via Ottawa.)—An Austrian blow against Italy may be expected at an early date, in the opinion of well-informed observers here. The enemy project, it is believed generally, comprises a great invasion with Milan and Brescia as the chief objectives in a scheme to smash the Italian Army.

Since the retreat last October the Italian strategic plan has been recast and the main defensive positions are now held solidly, but it is believed the Austrians intend to strike against the remaining 150 miles of the original front west of the Brenta. Along the mountain wall stretching from the Stelvio Pass to Monte Grappa, between the Brenta and the Piave, the enemy has the advantage of the positions.

WANT OUR TROOPS ON ITALIAN FRONT

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Italy, in an informal way, has made known to the United States that the presence of American troops on the Italian front is greatly to be desired. A few thousand men under the American flag, Italian officials feel, would hearten the Italian civilian population and the troops.

U-BOATS ON DEFENSIVE

BATTLESHIPS IN CONVOYS

Twelve German submarines were sunk or captured in British waters by the American and British destroyers during the month of April, which was a record. This means that twelve U-boats were officially reported and recognized as sunk and that evidence, either a cap bearing the name of the submarine, a portion of the craft, or a live or dead German was produced when each case was recorded.

In addition to this number, at least two other U-boats were destroyed during that period. One was sunk on April 8 in the North Sea while making an attack on a convoy to Holland. The periscope was sighted at 11 A. M., and before she could let go a torpedo at the nearest steamship six destroyers rushed over and dropped depth charges in every direction. The explosion was so violent that the vessels heeled over nearly forty-five degrees.

When the convoy came up there was a large lake of black oil bubbling up from below and the destroyers still kept watch to see if any debris belonging to the U-boat rose to the surface that might be useful as evidence to gain official recognition from the Admiralty.

This successful attack was witnessed by the writer of this account.

Another U-boat, making the total fourteen, was sunk on Friday, April 26, during the forenoon while attempting to attack a convoy of transports filled with American troops on the way to France. The undersea craft rose between two of the convoy and fired a torpedo, which missed the transport to starboard by a few feet. Almost immediately afterward four fast American destroyers were on the scene and had dropped seven depth charges. After the fifth bomb an explosion was heard at some depth below the surface and a quantity of thick oil floated to the surface. The commanders of the destroyers said they were satisfied that the German submarine had been sunk.

With the improvement in the hydrophones for listening to the approach of the U-boats and new devices, such as sound waves that are sent out by the destroyers under water which record the position of any object they come in contact with, and the success of the depth charges, the submarine menace has been conquered. The commanders of the U-boats are worrying now and are acting on the defensive. Several cases of mutiny among the crews and the wrecking of submarines along desolate coasts have been reported in England during the last eight weeks.

The convoys are escorted by cruisers, destroyers, patrol boats, and dirigibles, called "blimps," which are better than the seaplanes, as they can swoop down over the water and hover in one spot for any length of time without any difficulty. Battleships, as well as battle-cruisers and destroyers, are used to escort the big convoys across the North Sea to Norway and Denmark. There are from fifty to seventy-five steamships in each convoy and they all manage to get across safely. The U-boats try very hard to get the vessels in the Dutch convoys, as they can see them from Zeebrugge, and are directed by scout airplanes.

If the submarine cannot get there in time the airplanes try to drop bombs on the steamships even when they have reached neutral waters along the coast of Holland. So far they have succeeded in sinking only one small Dutch vessel.

Admiral Jellicoe was against sending the battleships to sea for the purpose of protecting convoys, as he thought the risk of their being torpedoed was too great. He was overruled at the Admiralty after the capture of a convoy in the North Sea by the Germans, and that, it is understood, was the cause of his resignation.

The sinking of vessels in the Mediterranean is still considerable on account of the lack of destroyers. The American and British destroyers are all needed for convoy work and for protecting the shipping in the Irish Sea and waters around the British Coast, and the Mediterranean is left to the French and Italian destroyers, with a few Japanese destroyers.

According to official figures in London, the output of the shipyards in England and America next month will exceed the estimated loss of tonnage by 10,000 and increase monthly hereafter.

The American warships of all sizes have been brigaded with the British Navy since the United States entered the war last Spring and the combined efforts in attacking the submarine menace may now be pronounced successful.

Burbank Finds Super-Wheat After 11 Years' Experiments

SANTA ROSA, Cal., May 16.—A "super-wheat," containing 14 per cent. gluten, has been evolved by Luther Burbank, the California horticulturist, after experiments extending over eleven years, it was announced here today.

The wheat may be grown from Hudson Bay to Patagonia. The new wheat is said to be of the Winter variety, hardy and producing a white flour.

The new wheat will average a yield of forty bushels to an acre, Mr. Burbank said.

"The new wheat will earn for California a world-wide reputation as a superior wheat producing State," he continued. "California wheat, due to a lack of sufficient gluten, has made an inferior flour grain up to the present time."

Mr. Burbank said eighty varieties of rye at present are under a crossing process on his farm near here in connection with experiments to create a new rye and barley which would eliminate difficulties similar to those found in wheat.

ITALIANS TORPEDO BIG DREADNOUGHT

SQUADRON CO-OPERATES

ROME, May 16.—An Austrian battleship of the Viribus Unitis type, (20,000-ton vessels,) was torpedoed by Italian naval forces in Pola Harbor early Tuesday morning, it was officially announced today. The Italian force worked its way into the Austrian naval base by dodging the patrol boats and searchlights of the defenders.

While the naval operation was progressing, an Italian seaplane force engaged Austrian battleplanes above Pola. Two of the Austrians were brought down and several others were compelled to decend, out of control. The Italian machines all returned safely.

The text of the official announcement reads:

> Italian naval units, avoiding patrol boats and searchlights, succeeded in entering Pola Harbor early on Tuesday and in torpedoing an Austrian battleship of the Viribus Unitis type.
>
> Simultaneously, Italian seaplane squadrons attacked Austrian battleplanes over Pola, brought down two and forced several others down out of control. The Italian machines all returned safely to their bases.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The Italian Embassy late this afternoon received from Rome an official communication confirming the press report of the destruction of an Austrian dreadnought of the Viribus Unitis type at the Austrian naval base at Pola on Wednesday morning. The exploit was carried out by Italian officers, who penetrated the harbor in a small torpedo boat. The message to the embassy read:

> In the early hours of May 14, Captains Mario da Vignola of Modina, Antonio Milani of Lodi, Francesco Anselmi of Syracuse, and Giuseppe Corrias of Cagliari, in a small torpedo boat with admirable individual spirit of sacrifice and extraordinary military and naval skill, eluding the sentinels and searchlights constantly searching the water, succeeded in penetrating the well-protected and fortified military port of Pola and successfully torpedoed a large Austrian dreadnought of the Viribus Unitis type.
> On the night of the 12th thirteen of our torpedo boats attacked an enemy transport which was being convoyed into the port of Durazzo by an escort of Austrian torpedo boats. Although our boats had been discovered by the enemy searchlights and were immediately fired upon from all directions, they succeeded in sinking the transport and badly damaged one of the enemy torpedo boats, after which our units returned safely to their base.

The sinking of an Austro-Hungarian dreadnought of the Viribus Unitis class, in the harbor of Pola by Italian naval detachments, recalls a similar exploit in the harbor of Trieste on the night of Dec. 9-10, when the Italians sank the Wien and seriously crippled the Monarch, two pre-dreadnoughts of 5,600 tons each. The exploit at Trieste, however, was performed by light torpedo craft cutting the chain barrier at the harbor mouth and torpedoing the battleships as they lay at their docks.

The vessel sunk at Pola was nearly four times as large as either the Wien or the Monarch, and the harbor much more difficult to penetrate than that of the open port of Trieste protected by a chain barrier kept afloat on buoys between the mole and the shore.

The harbor of Pola has an indentation of three miles with an entrance from the sea opposite the island of Scoglio Grande of two miles in length, and at places less than half a mile wide. Forts Cristo and Musil guard the entrance which, on account of a mole jutting out from the latter, is only a thousand yards wide at its mouth.

There were four dreadnoughs belonging to the Viribus Unitis class—the Viribus Unitis, Tegetthof, Prinz Eugen, and Szent Istvan. The first was laid down in 1910 and completed in 1912; the last laid down in 1912 and completed in the first year of the war. The first three were built at Pola; that last at Fiume.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, May 16.—The long postponement of the enemy's coming assaults seems to be definite proof that his losses in the first six weeks of his offensive were so heavy that he had to abandon the costly tactical blows which followed his general advance in order to reorganize his fighting machine and prepare for new battles on a wide front.

The task of filling up the gaps by large drafts from his depots, where he has begun to draw upon boys of the 1919 class, and of training those new formations for field warfare has taken up time, and it seems to me evident now that he will not attempt to strike again until his fresh and refitted divisions are ready for a new offensive on something like the scale of March 21.

That might be preceded, perhaps, by a few local assaults in order to gain the ground he needs for his general jump-off, or he might act according to his latest methods.

A day now may bring this beginning of a new series of battles, but the time he has already taken has been entirely in the Allies' favor, and they need be in no hurry for him to begin.

The Allies have forced from the enemy the very thing which he wanted most to deny the Allies—time. By yielding that under force majeure he has had to abandon his greatest chance of victory, and, as many of us believe, his only chance.

The British gaps are now filled up. The exhaustion of the British troops after the long fighting has now passed. The French armies are mingled with the British, who no longer will have to bear the brunt of the enemy's full strength in numbers that were hideously unequal.

That the German high command should give time for this is good enough evidence that they could take no further risks in the first gamblers' throw, and had to cut their losses for a time, or at least be satisfied with smaller gains than they had hoped.

Scenes Behind the Lines.

Yesterday the German guns did some violent counterbattery work with gas shells and others, trying to silence the allied guns which are still harassing the German side of things in a very deadly way. All this is the routine of war between battles.

What is better to see is behind the lines. It is enchanting now, and puts such a spell upon one's senses at these glinting woods of France, where every leaf is a jewel; these gardens of old châteaux, where the grass is sprinkled with living gold; these French villages where whitewashed walls and tiled roofs are warm in the sun and painted in picture book colors remind one of the old songs which had not war, but love, for their theme. Now they are all interwoven with pictures of this war, but pleasant pictures.

So jolly is it behind the battlefields that war itself seems for a while nothing more than a pageant of fine men under the sky. It is a moving and marvelous pageant of blue and brown where the French and English pass along the roads with the fire of dust behind them and about them the white dust again which powders them like millers and bleaches the black beards of the poilus and makes a chalky mask on the bronze faces of the marching British, down which the sweat runs in little channels.

Men in the French lorries sit with their heads out of the side flares, winking at the Tommies on the way, casting amorous eyes upon buxom lasses in the cottage doors and smoking endless cigarettes with a look of complete indifference to anything that may happen at the journey's end.

They are rough types, some of them men of middle-age, hard-bitten by these years of war, with spade beards, like Elizabethan Englishmen or Henri

Germans Produce an All-Steel "Flying Tank" For Short-Range Attacks on Allied Infantry

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 15.—German aviators are training in the use of the "flying tank." This newest weapon of the air is an all-steel plane. Not only is it armored, but its wings are made of steel. It has a speed of fifty miles an hour, and carries several six-centimeter guns.

The Germans are understood to be now making very elaborate tests with it. This new tool of war represents a German effort to outstrip the Allies in the use of airplanes flying low against infantry. The Allies have had marked success with this kind of aerial warfare, especially in the recent Somme battles, and Fritz evidently is to try to go them one better.

I also learn that a Berlin engineer has patented a new type of airplane gun mounted on a revolving turret directly over the aviator and in the centre, between the wings. The turret, being mounted on ball bearings, is capable of revolving 360 degrees. It is not known whether this is a part of the equipment of the flying tank.

Giant airplanes of a new type have been sent to German aviation schools for training in long-range bombing. The Germans have been trying since the latter part of 1915 to perfect very large bombing machines, but so far have met with little success.

Reports have reached here that the Germans propose to establish bases for these planes at Zeebrugge, Cuxhaven, Heligoland, Ostend, and other places. It is reported that their objectives are London, Paris, and the debarkation and concentration points of the American troops.

These machines are designed to carry two 37-millimeter guns, and travel 135 miles an hour.

Reports are also made of factories in Berlin building a new two-seated airplane of great carrying capacity for bombing work, and much slower than the machine just described. It is equipped with four motors, two of high power, for general use, and two of lower power for emergency use. These machines are designed to remain in the air fifteen hours at a speed of fifty kilometers. Experiments with them did not produce good results.

PERSHING STARTS HIS COMMUNIQUES

Army Headquarters Bulletins, Begun Wednesday Night, Likely to be Made Permanent.

WELCOMED IN CAPITAL

Army Officers Think First Announcement Shows We Have an Air Squadron in Action.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 16, (Associated Press.)—The second American official communiqué, timed 9 o'clock tonight, says:

> In Lorraine patrolling was active and there was again an increase in the artillery fire.
> Otherwise the day was quiet at all points occupied by our troops.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Publication here today of the first American "official communiqué" prepared at the Expeditionary Headquarters in France, and issued there last evening, inaugurated what is expected to be a daily report to the American people on what their soldiers abroad are doing.

In giving out the text of the statement, Secretary Baker could not say definitely that one would be forthcoming daily hereafter. That rests with General Pershing, but Mr. Baker indicated his hope that the expeditionary commander would find it possible to follow that course.

AMERICAL OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUE.

[Section A.]

North of Toul and in Lorraine there was a marked increase of artillery activity on both sides.

Today two of our aviators brought down three German machines.

There is nothing else of importance to report.

[Section B.]

In Lorraine, May 12, three snipers, scouts of intelligence service, went out in camouflage sniping suits to find German snipers and encountered eighteen of the enemy at strong points near dugout. They shot four, of whom one appeared to be an officer, secured valuable papers, and retired under heavy fire. One failed to reach our lines and the Major commanding the sector sent three officers and four men to find him.

This patrol also penetrated enemy's line and reached the strong point attacked by first patrol. Here the enemy was now reinforced and our patrol was driven back by hot fire and grenade fire. On reaching our lines one man of this patrol also was found missing. Two officers who went out to find him killed an enemy scout and brought back body for identification purposes. The man missing from the second patrol has not been found, but the third intelligence scout of first party has returned.

On May 12, three officers of our aviation forces were cited in orders by the commanding General of a French army corps and decorated with the Croix de Guerre: Major Ralph Royce of Hancock, Mich., for making first American reconnoissance over enemy's lines and for always setting fine example to his squadron; First Lieut. Herbert R. Garside of New York City, pilot, and Second Lieut. Paul D. Meyers of Milwaukee, observer, for an infantry

1,500,000 TROOPS ABROAD BY JANUARY

America Has Promised That Number of Fighting Men, Says Clemenceau's Paper.

But Is Loath to Make Definite Assertions Thus Early—Baker's Estimate Recalled.

PARIS, May 16.—Announcement was made today in Premier Clemenceau's newspaper, L'Homme Libre, that the United States had promised to have 1,500,000 fighting men in France by the end of 1918.

These troops, it added, must have their own organization and services, which would meant at least 2,000,000 specialists, workers, men in the Quartermaster's Department, and others.

The newspaper went on to say that certain misunderstandings which had existed had been cleared up, and that under no circumstances would allied workers or soldiers displace French workers in factories.

The presence of American workers on French soil would be in direct consequence of the presence of American fighters on the front.

Washington Hopeful but Cautious.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—With more than 500,000 men now in France, army officials are more than ever hopeful that a powerful American force will be co-operating with the Allies there by the end of the year. Unhappy experience with over sanguine estimates of what can be accomplished make them slow, however, to put their hopes into definite predictions, and it was not possible tonight to obtain specific confirmation of the report from Paris that a promise had been made to have 1,500,000 fighting men in France before Jan. 1.

The statement in Clemenceau's newspaper that such a promise had been made was not believed by army officers generally to mean that the American Government definitely pledged itself to deliver a specific number of men within a time limit. Many factors are involved in making such a calculation months in advance.

Secretary Baker would make no comment on the statement. Many weeks ago he told the Senate Military Committee that the Government then had hopes of getting 1,500,000 to the front during the year. Since then his estimate that 500,000 men would reach France early in the year has been fulfilled, and since then, also, the German drive has changed the course of events, and had brought about a speeding up of American preparations which has already shown results.

Whether the result indicated by Clemenceau's newspaper can be attained depends on the shipping situation. The men and the essential equipment for them can be made ready.

May Have 4,000,000 in Arms in 1919.

Under the authority sought by President Wilson to organize as large an army as it is found possible to train, equip, and transport, officials expect at least 3,000,000 men to be under arms in the next twelve months. Many believe that even a larger force can be handled,

COMMONS SPEECH ON PEACE

FULL ACCORD WITH WILSON

But Sixtus Letter Was Restricted by Emperor Charles to France and Britain.

NOT FOR A BIGGER ALSACE

LONDON, May 16.—The British Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Arthur J. Balfour, in giving explanations in the House of Commons today in connection with Emperor Charles's letter to Prince Sixtus of Bourbon, recently made public by the President of the French Republic, said that no effort at conversations had ever been made by the Central Powers in the interest of a fair and honorable peace, and he added:

"If any representative of any belligerent country desires seriously to lay before us any proposals we are ready to listen to them."

The letter in question had been examined by a committee of the French Chamber, said Mr. Balfour, and the conclusion had been reached that it did not provide an adequate or satisfactory basis for an honorable peace.

Mr. Balfour, in his explanations, was replying to questions submitted by Walter Runciman, former President of the Board of Trade, who asked whether, when Emperor Charles's letter was communicated to the French Government, and by the French Government to the British Prime Minister, it was communicated to any other of the Allies, and had the American Government any information as to what was passing; did the Prime Minister inform the Foreign Office at the time of the fact that the communication had been shown to him; why were the negotiations dropped—was it on purely territorial grounds, was it because a demand was made by France, not only for Alsace-Lorraine, but for the 1814 line, or even the 1790 line?

Speech of Mr. Balfour.

Mr. Balfour said that Mr. Runicman put questions to him which naturally excited a great deal of interest, both here and abroad.

"I must remind the House, however," he continued, "that there is a very natural tendency to treat this subject as if it were one in which the British Government alone were concerned and that the opposition or critics of the day had the right, in the public interest and their own, to extract the last drop of information which it was in the power of the Government to give. That might be the natural mood for the House to be in when discussing ordinary subjects of domestic controversy, but it is not the mood suited to the delicate question of international policy.

"In international affairs it is not a good thing necessarily to discourage informal attempts at conversations. But we have never at any time initiated conversations of that sort. We have never turned down conversations when other people wished them.

"If any representative of any belligerent country desires seriously to lay before us any proposals, we are ready to listen to them. Of course, we are not going to deal with them without the cognizance of our allies.

"The mere fact that such conversations are of an informal character makes that a very improper subject for discussion in the House. That is true as a general proposition and emphatically and especially true of the subject now under discussion.

"The letter to which public attention is directed was a private letter written by Emperor Charles to a relative (Prince Sixtus of Bourbon) and conveyed by him to President Poincaré and the French Premier under seal of the strictest secrecy, but with no permission to communicate it to anyone except the Sovereign and Premier of this country. The letter was communicated to the French and English Premiers under these pledges.

"While I cannot conceive of a more inconvenient method of dealing with a great transaction, the inconvenience in this case was not due to any wish on the part of the British Government or the British Premier. Directly you depart from the ordinary method of conducting international affairs you land yourself in inevitable difficulties.

No Secrets from Wilson.

"I was in America at the time of these transactions, and, as they were over when I returned, I did not go into them as intimately as I might have done."

As to whether any person had been informed of these negotiations, Mr. Balfour said that the American Government was at the time no better informed of the facts regarding Emperor Charles's letter than he was himself, but if any one supposed that on that account he had ever shown any want of confidence in the Government or President of the United States, he was under a complete delusion. He had no secrets from President Wilson. Every thought he had on the war or the diplomacy connected with the war was as open to President Wilson as to any other human being. He did not think it possible for Great Britain and the United States to carry on the great work in which they were engaged or to deal with the complicated day to day problems without complete confidence, and so far as he was concerned complete confidence would always be given.

Referring to the Stockholm conference, the Foreign Secretary expressed the opinion that it would not have paved the way to the settlement of the war.

"The course taken by the British Government with regard to the Stockholm conference," he continued, "had no connection, near or remote, with Emperor Charles's letter to Prince Sixtus, or with the negotiations or conversations resulting therefrom. They were treated as wholly separate and absolutely unconected subjects.

"We do not know, and will only know when the secrets of the archives of Europe are opened to the world, and perhaps not even then, exactly what were the motives which influenced Emperor Charles and the German Emperor in these various transactions. Perhaps we will never know what the motives were which actuated Count Czernin, Emperor Charles, and the German Emperor. I am inclined to think that it was part of a peace offensive, by which I mean peace proposals initiated by one party which did not desire peace, but which desired to divide its opponents.

Clemenceau Exposed Falsehood.

"The falsehood exposed by Premier Clemenceau was that the whole war was being conducted in order that France might obtain Alsace-Lorraine and Italy should have nothing. When we are dealing with people so cynical as the Central Powers, some kind of contemplated the possibility of what we Therefore, the counterattack delivered by M. Clemenceau appears to have been thoroughly effective, in the sense that it exposed, in the cleverest manner, the motives animating Central European diplomacy.

"No effort at conversations made by the Central Powers has ever been made in the interest of a fair and honorable peace, but in order to divide the Allies. There is no evidence now or at any time that the German Government circles contemplated the posibility of what we should regard as a reasonable peace—a peace which would secure the freedom of the world, the freedom of those who are in danger of German domination.

"This question has been examined, and, no doubt, with fuller knowledge of the facts that I can state to the house, by a committee of the French Chamber. The British have not the machinery for the sort of investigation conducted by the French. The French had the machinery and used it freely, and the conclusion reached was that the Emperor Charles letter did not provide an adequate or satisfactory basis for an honorable peace.

"It might be said that other motives than judicial consideration of historical facts animated the verdict. If there existed any prejudices at all, these would surely have been in favor of a peace which would give the French Alsace-Lorraine, because the suggestion was that Charles should make a proposal, which could have been afterward imposed on Germany, by which the war should come to an end and France should claim Alsace-Lorraine."

The Secretary said that if the proposal had really contained the seeds of an honorable peace, the Committee of the French Chamber would surely have expressed regret that the opportunity had been thrown away by the French Government or the French Premier. No one, he added, was more desirous than the British Government that the war should be brought to an honorable termination, and if any method whereby that could be accomplished were shown to the Government, it would be accepted.

"But," Mr. Balfour went on, "we are fighting as one among many allies against the Central Powers, who never at any time, and now less than ever, have had the least intention of meeting our wishes—I am talking about our legitimate wishes, and I mean wishes on which the whole house and the whole country are entirely in agreement. These great aims of ours can only be obtained by absolute loyalty between the Allies."

Not for Bigger Alsace-Lorraine!

Referring to the suggestion made by Mr. Runciman that France had asked for a bigger Alsace-Lorraine than that of 1870, Mr. Balfour said there was no question of this bigger Alsace-Lorraine being the war aim of the Allies.

Mr. Balfour added that the conversations which Gaston Doumergue, formerly French Premier and Foreign Minister, had with the Russian Emperor in 1916 regarding a bigger Alsace-Lorraine which France would demand, were not known to Great Britain until very much later. They had no international bearing, he said, did not pledge Great Britian, and the British Government never gave the least encouragement to any such notion.

Mr. Balfour said that an extended Alsace-Lorraine was not a subject which should ever be contemplated seriously, and he did not think it ever was a fixed part of the foreign policy of the French Government for any length of time. The Foreign Minister also said that the pourparlers over the Austrian Emperor's letter were not interfered with by the demand of France for an extension of territory beyond her boundaries of 1870.

Replying to a question by Robert Outhwaite as to whether Prince Sixtus of Bourbon paid two visits to England in connection with the peace proposals and whether he was in communication on this subject with Bremier Lloyd George, Mr. Balfour said that the subject was not one which could be dealt with by question and answer.

Asquith Glad Door Is Open.

Former Premier Asquith, who followed Mr. Balfour, said that while in his judgment there had not been and could not be any contraction, so there should not be any expansion of the clear aims and purposes for which Great Britain had entered and was prosecuting the war and desiring to bring it to a successful issue.

Mr. Asquith said that he desired to record the satisfaction which he felt at the instructive and opportune statement made by Mr. Balfour. It was a satisfaction to the world at large, he said, that the British Government has closed no door on any overtures and approaches toward an honorable peace.

"To whatever quarter," said Mr. Asquith, "be it with adequate authority and in real good faith, an appeal is made, if it is based on substantial considerations, it will not be made to deaf ears. The whole House is glad of the assurance that not only in matters of this kind, but in all matters, we have kept no secrets from President Wilson. We could not carry on a struggle of this kind without complete mutual confidence."

With regard to the supposed claim of France to the line of 1814, Mr. Asquith said he gathered that the allegation that President Poincaré put forward this demand was totally without foundation, so far as Mr. Balfour knew. He regarded with still more satisfaction Mr. Balfour's declaration that this had never been one of the war aims of the British Government, and, so far as he knew, it had not been, and was not, the settled policy of the French Government.

"Is that right?" he asked the Secretary, and Mr. Balfour replied: "I think so."

Mr. Asquith said that he was extremely glad and he thought the world would be glad to hear it.

Open to Fair Offer, Says Cecil.

After a brief general discussion, Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of Blockade, gave an explanation of his "peace offensive" interview, which was given to the press on Friday, May 3, and in which he said that a "peace offensive" would be directed very largely against England and that the Central Powers would put out offers which they might think would be attractive to the British. He said that a peace offensive was an entirely different thing from a peace effort. A peace offensive would be designed to help the German armies in the field, and he believed that one would be forthcoming when he gave the interview.

"As to the suggestion that I intended to convey the idea that any offer that Germany might make would have to be rejected," he said, "I say there is not one syllable that I uttered which could be construed by any fair-minded man to mean that. I repeat that any offer that is made, come from what source it may, provided it has a reputable and trustworthy source deserves consideration by the Government."

Philip Snowden, Laborite, made an attack upon the demands of Italy, saying that they were "selfish and unreasonable." Replying, Lord Robert said that he was forced to repudiate that sentiment with all the strength he could muster.

"The attack is without foundation and undeserved," he said. "For what purpose it was made, except to assist the enemy, I cannot understand. We believe the aims of Italy to be as high and pure as those of any other belligerent, and we value her assistance to the greatest possible degree. We are determined to preserve our allegiance with her, as we are with all the other allies."

Referring to Russia, Lord Robert said: "We have no quarrel with Russia at all. On the contrary, with the Russian people we have always desired to be on the closest possible terms of friendship. We are anxious to do all we can to support and assist the Russian people to preserve Russia as a great country, not only now, but in the period after the war."

Lord Robert denied that Great Britain had any quarrel with the Bolsheviki over their domestic policy, saying:

"That is a matter for Russia, and Russia alone; we have no other desire than to see Russia great, powerful, and non-German."

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

There has been much speculation as to the German losses in the series of battles beginning on March 21, but the various estimates have been so at variance that little reliance can be placed on any of them. We may, however, draw certain conclusions from the casualty lists announced by the British, which cover at least a part of the fighting.

For the week ended May 5 the British have announced that their casualties are about 42,000. This does not mean that this list is complete to May 5. On the contrary, it is much more probable that this list was made up as of some date two or three days earlier, about May 2. If we assume, then, that this British list is for the week ended on the 2d, or even the 3d, the period covered included what was probably the most serious fighting of the entire German effort—the fighting about Mont Kemmel which followed immediately the capture of that place. In this fighting the German troops were completely defeated.

All the testimony which has been received is unanimous in telling of the great German losses in their effort to take the series of crests west of Mont Kemmel. Not only that, but it is always the case that the most serious losses are incurred in unsuccessful attacks. This has been experienced time and again since offensive operations in the west began. In the battle of the Somme there were cases where a successful attack by a brigade involved losses of comparatively few men. But in the same battle unsuccessful attacks cost divisions as high as 9,000 infantry out of 12,000 engaged.

After all, this is but logical. The artillery may not have done its work as thoroughly as it was expected to do; the strength of the enemy at a given point may be underestimated; either of these would leave the defense practically unshaken and permit a devastating fire from rifle and machine gun. Then, when the attack is rolled back the storming troops are caught as they retreat and subjected to the same fire until they are again in the safety of their trenches.

What was the situation in the last days of April? The German artillery had not yet had an opportunity to come up in force. The heavy artillery, indeed, was for the most part not in action. Destruction of the allied batteries, well posted on commanding heights, could not be effected by light artillery.

On the other hand, the Allies had their artillery of all calibres actively engaged. They fell back along their line of communications, so that they were drawing toward their bases, and not away from them. They therefore had an artillery superiority which was growing the farther back they retreated.

Moreover, while the fire of field artillery is disconcerting and often very effective, it has not the shattering effect on the nerves that is produced by the fire of heavier guns. It is, therefore, particularly in view of the nature of the defense itself, improbable that the allied infantry and machine gun companies were shaken by the German artillery fire.

We do not know, of course, what estimate the Germans placed on the strength before them. But whatever it was, we have reason to believe that the German idea was an underestimate. We know, moreover, that attack after attack was flung back; that in many cases the attack never even reached the trenches, but was broken up as it was formed; we know that after days of the heaviest fighting the Germans were forced to desist, although the position in which they were left was most uncomfortable.

Under the circumstances, it was unavoidable that the losses must have been much heavier than those of the defense, in this case probably two to one or even heavier. Therefore, in the fighting south and east of Mont Kemmel, the German losses must have been close to 100,000 men, and that in not more than a week's fighting.

In this area about Mount Kemmel and in the other parts of the Flanders salient there were about thirty divisions engaged, a total force of about 400,000 men. In this week, therefore, the German loss was at least equal to 25 per cent. of the troops engaged. While this ratio of losses would not hold good throughout in an equal space of time, taking the offensive operations as a whole since March 21, the total could not have been much less than 400,000, if, indeed, this figure was not exceeded. Naturally, Germany does not publish her casualty lists now, and if she did they could not be relied upon, but from those of the Allies who have been in the hardest fighting one may draw a fair comparison.

As to the operations of yesterday, there is still a marked quiet on the front in France, broken only by sporadic artillery fire, which at times grows to the intensity of drum fire. There is no indication yet that the German attack is about to be resumed. Yet a few hours may change the situation, since German tactics, as recently exemplified, are to throw a deluge of high explosive and gas shells for but a few hours and then to send over the infantry.

The only fighting has been about Hill 44, that little knoll in Flanders north of Kemmel which the French wrested from the Germans several days ago. It has, apparently, changed hands several times, the French being alternately down in the muddy plain and on top of the hill. Now, however, it appears to be firmly in French hands.

WILSON IN ACCORD WITH BALFOUR SPEECH

May Supplement It with a Public Utterance—No Complaint as to Sixtus Letter.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Either through a public address or a diplomatic note President Wilson, in the near future, may take occasion to comment upon and supplement the statement made today by Foreign Minister Balfour, in the British House of Commons, in connection with the Austrian peace feelers through Prince Sixtus of Bourbon.

It was authoritatively stated today that the American Government fully reciprocated Mr. Balfour's expressions of confidence and regard, and had no intention of permitting the machinations of the enemy to mar the perfect understanding which governed the relations between the United States and the Entente. There is declared to be no public sentiment in this country such as that which appears to exist in a small but active English pacifist circle, holding it to be the duty of the Government to consider any kind of a peace proposal that may be made, regardless of the source or of a mischievous purpose.

There is no disposition in Administration circles here to complain because the Washington Government was not advised of the Sixtus letters, for it is realized that the peculiar conditions under which the correspondence with the Austrian Emperor's brother-in-law was conducted imposed obligations of confidence and secrecy that could not be disregarded by an honorable statesman. It is pointed out also that the United States Government has not entered into any such formal undertaking as bound the Entente allies not to consider peace proposals separately, though President Wilson has declared in his speeches that any peace which would be acceptable must embody fundamentals upon which America and the Entente allies were in complete accord.

Had the proposals of Prince Sixtus been found to demand serious consideration no doubt is felt here that before undertaking negotiations the French and British Governments would have insisted upon the removal of the seal of secrecy so as to consult not only America, but Italy, Belgium, Japan, and, in fact, all of the countries fighting Germany.

If today's parliamentary debate in London leads to a further expression of opinion by President Wilson on the subject of peace it is probable that he will not find it necessary to do more than refer to the aims which he has set out in his addresses to Congress.

be afforded by the presence of American forces. In the face of a threatened Austro-German offensive on the Italian front, the dispatch of American troops to Italy, it is declared, would convince the Italian people that America stands firmly behind their country.

German propaganda is active in Italy, from Sicily to the Alps, telling the people they are left to their own resources; that they are fighting hopelessly, and that America has been bluffing. It is to combat this propaganda that the Italian Government has suggested the presentation to Italians of the proof of American determination in the form of American soldiers, under the American flag, on Italian soil.

ROME, May 16.—The meeting of Kaiser Charles with the German Emperor continues to be the subject of much comment in diplomatic and political circles here. A Senator, speaking on the matter, said:

"It is quite evident that the German Emperor insisted to Charles that the Austrian Army must make a move and come soon into action against Italy. An offensive on our front therefore is daily expected—on what point we are not yet able to ascertain; but wherever it may happen, our soldiers are ready calmly and courageously to meet any eventuality."

RUMANIANS FOR WEST FRONT.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—A diplomatic dispatch, received from Paris today, stated that Rumanians were to fight on the French front. The Rumanians of Transylvania and Bukowina, living in France, had held a meeting, it was said, to form a national committee to continue the struggle against the Magyars in accord with the oppressed nationalities of Austria-Hungary.

IV. of France. In their steel casques they have a medieval look like their own ancesters of the sixteenth century, who crowded the taverns of Arras and tweaked the nose of any Burgundian or Austrian trooper if he looked crosseyed at a gentleman of France.

Allied Comrades Camp Together.

French soldiers and English soldiers are bivouacked in the woods and fields side by side, and yesterday I saw them bathing in one of the rivers which Henry V. crossed on his way to Agincourt when their forefathers and the British were not comrades in arms. That was a good picture with the sunlight streaming through the trees, so that the stream gleamed like a sword blade. While some of the men washed their feet, others lay full stretched in the grass, sleeping in every attitude of langorous ease with their steel hats among the flowers.

So I lay down also in a ditch full of flowers, and drowsed and forgot the war until the usual noises overhead made one open one's eyes again. There was a German airplane over our country, high enough to be invisible but not too high to silence the drone of its engine or to avoid observation from the "archiemen" searching for him with their glasses. Bang went a gun, and presently there was a fusilade in the sky, and the tattoo from machine guns in the grass, and then the throb of several engines as a covey of British planes came over to chase the intruder.

Host of Air Battles.

The enemy's air scouts were out and about yesterday because of the wonderful visibility, and they came peering over the allied lines and villages as if searching for some special secret. There must have been many fighits in that cloudless sky, for the British were up there, too, and away over the enemy's lines, and all day long there were puffs of shrapnel overhead, so that the peasant girls, harrowing the fields, gazed up with their hands to their ears, and the French soldiers standing outside the camps, gave a glance upward. And every now and then a crash of noise came through the humming drowsiness of this May day, where a bomb had been dropped.

The Smiling Chinese.

In one field was a German airplane, newly brought down, a silver-looking thing with iron crosses painted on its framework and some of the British airmen gathered around it to study its details.

There are many types of many breeds of men along these roads, but the strangest of all are the Chinese laborers, who seem to be spectators of all this pageant that passes outside of its purpose, ignorant of its idea.

Nothing more uncanny has come into the western theatre of war than these orientals, whose bronzed faces are always screwed up into wrinkled smiles, as if eternally amused by us. Many of them are big men, lean and sinewy, with long black hair like snakes about their high cheekbones under fantastic headgear, which ranges from billycocks and bowlers, to red-banded caps like those of the British generals and little skull cap, with earflaps, belonging to their native fashion.

They smile as they work. They are woodmen, and smile between their axe blows. They mend roads and smile, and they smile as the cars go past and the guns and all the traffic of the columns. To them all this war of the western men seems a huge and frightful jest, with marvellous toys, such as flying machines, at which they stare up and grin. It is but a twist of their features, and what is passing in their minds behind those bronze, masklike faces I cannot guess.

Such, then, in but a glimpse or two is a picture of this scene of war in these May days when the armies wait for another act in the great drama which is now being rehearsed behind the lines.

LYS AND AVRE AREAS ARE STORM CENTRES

LONDON, May 16.—Heavy artillery fire at various points was virtually the only activity along the western front.

The centres of the heavy gunfire were the region north of Kemmel, the valleys of the Somme and the Ancre, and the area north and south of the River Avre, in the Hailles-Castel district.

Of the general activity along the Avre a dispatch to The Associated Press from the French Army Headquarters gives this view:

"Every day the number of trench raids from both sides increases along this battlefront, where the concentrated forces of the opposing armies must soon be engaged again.

"In the neighborhood of the Somme and southward from Hailles, where the railroad line from Amiens attracts the enemy's attention, and on the flank of the German line between Montdidier and Noyon, the artillery is incessantly most active.

"At Rollott, on the Abbéville road, south of Montdidier, where an enemy attack is expected momentarily, the Germans yesterday let down a severe bombardment, but their infantry, although showing indications of an intent to advance, was kept back by the French gunners and could not leave its position.

"The Germans are endeavoring to locate the position and estimate the strength of the allied batteries by tempting them to open fire, and thus disclose their emplacements and show where their barrage fire strikes.

"A German order captured in a recent raid gives directions to artillery observers. It says: 'The enemy's barrage should be verified minutely, and also the amount of time elapsing before it starts after our attack. A note should be made regarding spaces where shells do not strike, and estimates should be made as to how many guns participate and whether there are any big-calibred pieces. Roads under fire should be marked.'

"In this way the enemy hopes to gain information as to areas where infantry can pass with the smallest losses when a real attack opens."

Today's statement of the French War Office says:

> An artillery duel took place in the Hailles-Castel sector.
> French patrols, operating north of the Allette, brought back prisoners.
> The night was quiet on the remainder of the front.

The French War Office statement tonight is as follows:

> There was no infantry action. The activity of both artilleries was marked north and south of the Avre.
> On May 15 our pursuit machines were extremely active in the air. Eighteen German planes were brought down and four captive balloons were set on fire.

Heavy Firing on the Lys.

Field Marshal Haig's report from British Headquarters in France tonight says:

> Beyond artillery activity on both sides, particularly on the battlefront north of the River Lys, there is nothing of special interest to report.

The day report of the British War Office reads:

> Our troops raided the enemy's trenches last night in the neighborhood of Gavrelle (northeast of Arras) and captured a few prisoners.
> Byond artillery activity on both sides at different points, particularly in the valleys of the Somme and Ancre Rivers, east of Arras, and on the northern battlefront, there is nothing further to report.

Army officers here hope that while General Pershing may feel that it would be improper for him to issue formal statements as to operations where his forces are holding sectors in French corps or army fronts, he will be able to follow up today's practice and give detailed accounts of events in which only American troops are involved.

Designation in the communiqué of the flight for which Major Ralph Royce was decorated by the French army corps commander, as the "first American flight over the enemy's lines," was taken here as an announcement that a complete American air squadron was now in operation at the front. Heretofore American fliers mentioned for gallantry have been attached to French squadrons.

Officers saw in the official reports of the raiding and scouting operations evidence of the dash and initiative which they have expected the American troops to show in action. They are supremely confident that the average American will play the game at the front just as well as Americans have played all games.

SIX OF FOE TO YARD OF FRONT.

French Newspaper So Figures the Density of German Concentration.

PARIS, May 16.—There are six Germans to the yard on the greater part of the Franco-Belgian front, from the North Sea to the Oise, according to the Gaulois, which bases the statement on the information it reports having reached the General Staff that 150 German divisions are situated in this area.

Ten of these divisions, it is stated, are in the region between Nieuport and Ypres, forty divisions are between Ypres and La Bassée Canal, and 100 divisions from La Bassée Canal to the Oise.

On this basis, it is estimated, says the newspaper, that the German strength from Ypres to the Oise is about six men to the yard, except on the northern part of the front above Ypres, where the estimate is a third of that number.

LESS GUNFIRE, SAYS BERLIN.

Repulse of Allied Attack West of the Avre Is Chronicled.

BERLIN, May 16, (via London.)—The official communication issued by the War Office today reads:

> After the close of yesterday's infantry engagement north of Kemmel, during which we ejected the French from positions where they broke through our lines in that locality, the artillery duel there became weaker.
>
> On other fronts, also, the artillery activity declined, although vigorous outbursts of surprise firing against our artillery and infantry positions on both sides of La Bassée Canal, as well as between the Somme and Avre, continued.
>
> On the western bank of the Avre, the enemy yesterday morning at an early hour advanced with large forces out of Senecat Wood. He was repulsed with heavy losses.
>
> The extensive use of airmen on the fighting front led to numerous aerial engagements. We shot down thirty-three enemy airplanes, fourteen of which were destroyed by the chaser squadron formerly commanded by Baron Richthofen.

RUSSIAN AMBASSADOR DEFIANT IN BERLIN

GENEVA, May 16.—Adolph Joffe, the Bolshevik Ambassador to Germany, continues to defy the German Emperor and the Government, according to a Berlin dispatch received here. In spite of every warning the Red Flag of Russia is still flying over the embassy, and diplomatic etiquette is still ignored by refusal to pay the usual visits of ceremony.

The newspapers are irritated over the fact that the Ambassador confines his attention to the minority Socialist Deputies and revolutionists. Sevxeral demand his expulsion as a dangerous and undesirable resident. M. Joffe is said to be more amused than affected by the German newspaper comment.

ANALYZES THE SITUATION

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 16.—The Daily Chronicle will publish tomorrow the following article by Major Gen. Sir Frederick Maurice on the military situation:

"Indications are steadily increasing that the third phase of the campaign of 1918 on the western front is about to open.

"Since their serious reverse in Flanders on April 29 the Germans have done nothing more than is to be expected from an active and energetic enemy desirous of keeping us on strain and under threat of attack. No one considered that the Germans would be content with what they had so far achieved, and it surprised no one that they were preparing for another heavy blow.

"Today about two-thirds of the whole German force in the west is concentrated between Ypres and the Oise. That is, roughly, only one-fifth of the whole western front, but a vitally important fifth, for it includes the roads to Paris and the Channel ports.

"Our position in Flanders has never been a pleasant one, from the day we first marched into it from the Aisne, and the general map of France will show why that is so. At Cape Gris Nez, between Calais and Boulogne, the French Channel coast makes a sharp bend, and runs from that bend due south to the mouth of the Somme. The allied front line from Nieuport to Amiens runs parallel to and, roughly, fifty miles from this stretch of coast. Within this strip of fifty miles the main roads and main railways run, roughly, north and south, leading from Rouen and Paris to Lille, Dunkirk, Calais, and Boulogne. That is to say, they are parallel to our front.

"Now, the ideal arrangement for the communications of an army is that they should run at regular and frequent intervals straight back from the front to the base which feeds it with men, munitions, and supplies, and all its thousand and other requirements. That is the enemy's position. The most unsatisfactory is when these main arteries of supply run parallel to the front. That is our position.

"In such a case a successful attack on any part of the line threatens the communication of the whole, and, if, in addition to this, the space is limited, then it becomes difficult to give ground voluntarily to avoid a blow or to establish a better front.

"It will be remembered that in the beginning of 1917 Hindenburg, finding part of his line compromised as a result of our successes on the Somme and the Ancre, fell back some thirty miles without uncovering any vital communications or losing anything except an area of ground which he had systematically devastated.

"We can nowhere give up one-third of that distance on the front north of Amiens without at least suffering grave inconvenience. This is doubtless what Sir Douglas Haig meant when he said, 'We are fighting with our backs to the wall.'

"Apart then, altogether, from striking at the army of the people whom they regard as the most obstinate supporters of the war among the Entente nations, there can be little doubt why the Germans have selected the northern part of the allied line for their great effort in 1918.

"On March 21 the enemy struck his blow between Arras and the Oise and great part of the troops which he then concentrated for battle are still on or behind that front. Many divisions have been withdrawn from the fighting line and refitted and refilled with drafts of men, and have probably received some training. There has been time to bring over more men and more guns from the Russian front. These are factors in the enemy's favor.

"Now for our side of the picture. Except in one respect we are certainly in a better posture to meet the attack than we were on March 21. We lost ground, and our position, already cramped, has become more cramped.

"On the other hand, we have a unified command, and while our losses have been heavy, there is the clearest evidence that the enemy's losses have been heavier.

"As we have seen, American troops have been pouring steadily into France. We know that an Italian contingent has arrived, and there has been time to readjust the positions of the allied forces on the whole front.

"As the Prime Minister has stated and has quoted me as saying, the Allies and the enemy were on March 21 approximately equal in numbers but the enemy, by keeping both ourselves and the French under the threat of attack was able to concentrate first against us alone.

"Now Foch, as I have explained in my last article, was before 1914 a great student of war. One of the doctrines which he preached was that of 'economy of force,' which may be explained as meaning that one of the secrets of victory is to keep the largest possible numbers of reserves until the decisive phase arises and to employ until then the absolute minimum of force necessary for safety. It is on this principle that we have up to the present had to bear the brunt of the hammering, and however hard this has been for our men, struggling constantly against superior numbers, and however grievous to those who have lost their dearest, it is, without question, for the common good, for it means economy of force.

"On April 9 the Germans started what was undoubtedly meant at first to be a subsidiary enterprise in Flanders. Tempted by success, they have had to call and to call heavily upon their fresh divisions, and they are by that much the weaker for the next blow. We mya be sure that by now Foch has his reserves where he wants them, and we are by that the stronger.

"The enemy had prepared for March 21 by putting his troops through a thorough course of training. The cream of his instructed men have gone. He cannot replace his losses as easily as before without calling prematurely on his classes of boys.

"We shall have anxious times before us, because if the enemy attacks he will probably gain ground, and ground is precious to us.

"Small as our gains in Flanders may seem when, compared with what the enemy recently achieved, we have never attacked without making some progress.

"We must count on the enemy doing the same, but provided that we can replace our losses, provided that we send every man who can be spared to France, there is no reason why we should not check the enemy's next blow as in less favorable circumstances we defeated his last."

BIG CONQUEST AIMS IN GERMAN DOCUMENT

Annexations, Sea Predominance, and Augmented Colonies Demanded in Captured Paper.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY, May 15, (Associated Press.)—Germany's conditions of peace are clearly stated in a document found in a German trench that was recently recaptured by allied troops. A resumé of the principal conditions, as given in an official translation, reads:

"After the enormous sacrifices we have made of our blood and property we exact as a necessary minimum to the preservation and development of Germany the following:

"Belgium, especially the Flanders coast with Antwerp, is to remain under German military, economic, and political dependence.

"Liberty of the seas shall be properly established for all nations, the Central Powers being allowed a commercial fleet totaling 17,800,000 tons, while that of the Allies should amount to 10,900,000 tons.

"Our colonies shall be returned with augmentation.

"We are to have more numerous and stronger naval stations.

"The Longwy and Briey mine fields, which furnished France its weapons for attack, shall become German.

"Readjustments of the frontiers, particularly in the Vosges, are to be fixed according to the military situation and the appreciation of the commandant. Our frontiers must be such that their defense is made easier.

"The former German Baltic provinces shall be incorporated, their rich soil furnishing new cereal fields for German peasant emigrants, thus protecting the empire against the dangers of famine.

"Courland, Lithuania, Livonia, and Esthonia are to be colonized.

BOLSHEVIKI FAIL TO RESIST GERMANY

Entente Satisfied They Will Use Army Only to Consolidate Own Power, It Is Said.

IS VIEW OF RUSSIANS HERE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The Berlin Government is disseminating the statement by wireless that the German forces in occupied Russia are making no further advances. This fact was conveyed to the State Department today from two different sources.

A radiogram from Joffe, the representative of the Soviet Government in Berlin, informed his Government that the Germans were no longer advancing in Russia. This message was sent on May 13. The State Department earlier in the day received, from Ira Nelson Morris, the American Minister at Stockholm, a dispatch saying that the newspapers in Sweden had published a Wolff Agency denial of the charge wirelessed to Berlin by the Bolshevist Government that German troops were advancing beyond Ukraine and into the Crimea in violation of the Brest-Litovsk treaty, this notwithstanding that they occupy the whole of Crimea, including Sebastopol.

There is a growing impression here that the Soviet Government is not going to be able to realize its promises for a reorganization of the Russian Army. The Berlin Government is vigorously insisting upon the disarmament of Russia and no tangible evidence has reached Washington that the Soviet Government is making any bona fide effort to establish Russia's fighting power.

Moscow Government Sounded.

It is understood that the Entente Governments have sounded out the Government at Moscow with the view of learning whether, with allied assistance, financial and military, the Bolshevist authorities would be inclined to resist with arms the continual Austro-German aggressions, and that they have been satisfied that there is no prospect of Russia, under the rule of the Maximalists, again taking up arms, except to consolidate their own power within Russia.

This has been the view of spokesmen for Russia here ever since the downfall of Kerensky. Their attitude, together with that of most of the Russian democracy's representatives in other belligerent countries, has influenced the powers at war with the Central Empires in withholding recognition from the Lenine-Trotzky régime. Russian diplomats in America, Europe, and Asia have been exchanging views on developments, and it is understood that shortly they will have concrete recommendations to make to the associated Governments with respect to the rescue of their country from its present disorganized state and from the loss of European Russia to Germany.

In the early days of the Bolshevist rule it was believed by these diplomats that the Maximalists would be overthrown from within, and their comparatively long tenure, with small indications of any successful early movement against them, has created the impression that the loyal Russians in Russia must be assisted from the outside. Official reports received here give no promise of successful counter-revolutionary activities, and even the anarchists, who have been tolerated at the present seat of the Russian Government, have been unable to secure any formidable following, and constitute, in the opinion of officials here, no real menace to the Bolsheviki.

Japan does not consider the extension of German influence to Central Siberia a sufficient menace to cause her to intervene, except as the mandatory of the allied nations and of the United States, and it now seems certain that nothing short of a revision of its views by the United States would induce Japan to send an army into Siberia.

It is reliably reported that the representatives of the Provisional Government of Russia in the allied countries are not hostile to the idea of allied intervention in Siberia, but desire that the United States should participate in it in the event that it is decided on. The objection still entertained by the American Government, it was asserted today, is based on the belief that should foreign forces penetrate Russia the Bolshevist authorities would raise the cry of conquest, imposing upon the credulity of the ignorant Russian masses, and more effectually than at present deliver Russia up to the Germans and Austrians.

Message from Russian Labor.

The strongest labor party in Russia has issued a message which is considered as significant, says an official French dispatch received here today.

"The adversaries of the Bolshevist Government in Russia," says the dispatch, "are beginning to lift up their heads. They feel that the moment has come to separate from the men whom they accuse of having brought their country to ruin. Thus it is that the Central Committee of the Social Revolutionary Party has just sent to the National Council of the French Socialist Party and to the Parliamentary Socialist group a message which is most significant.

"After having protested against the foreign policy of the present dictators of Russia, this document continues:

"'The Social Revolutionary Party declares at the same time that the newly formed Communist group, formerly Bolsheviki, must on all accounts be excluded from the Internationale for having called upon the most elementary principles of democracy to resuscitate forms of despotism and violence. They have betrayed the cause of international socialism by an infamous separate peace with the crowned despots of Central Europe, transferring Russia, disarmed, humiliated, and crushed, into an administrative supply house destined to sustain the German offensive in the west.

"'The Social Revolutionary party expresses the hope that all the national sections of the Labor Internationale will determine their attitude as regards the Bolshevist usurpers, taking into consideration this declaration of our party, which itself has the right to speak for all Russian labor, having held an absolute majority in the Constitutional Convention, whose powers will be resuscitated in spite of the sanguinary repressions made by the usurpers of power.

"'We beg our French comrades to send this declaration to the Socialist parties of the allied countries.'"

A declaration on conditions in Russia by Captain Lukich, an officer who served in the Jugoslav Corps in Russia, and who left that country five weeks ago, was received here through diplomatic channels today.

"The internal political situation is vague," he said, "civil war is being waged with the utmost violence. But on the other hand the Russian people, including the Bolsheviki, highly resent and feel the humiliation imposed upon Russia and her people by the Germans and their arbitrary breach of the Brest-Litovsk treaty. As a first consequence of such feeling may be taken the feverish organisation of the new Russian Army, Red Guard, which possesses good discipline. From a trustworthy source, it is asserted that most of the arms and munitions were saved by the Russian Army and indeed in such quantity as will enable the equipment of an army of a million and a half soldiers.

"Prisoners of the Czech and Jugoslav nationalities have formed and organized an army which is now engaged in fierce fighting with the invading German and Austrian Army. One part of them succeeded in passing through Siberia and were transferred thence to Japan, whence they will proceed to Saloniki and different Allied battlefronts."

REPORT KERENSKY COMING TO AMERICA

Expected Here Within Two Weeks, According to Gen. Oberoucheff's Information.

Rumors of the approaching arrival in America of Alexander F. Kerensky, former Premier of Russia under the Provisional Govenment, were circulated last night at a meeting of the New York Group of Russian Social Revolutionists at Cooper Union. General Constantin M. Oberoucheff, former commander of the military forces in the Kiev District under the Provisional Government, who spoke at the meeting, told a NEW YORK TIMES reporter that, although nothing definite was known, he had been informed, through sources which he preferred not to mention, that Kerensky would be in New York within two weeks. After the fall of the Provisional Government and his flight from Petrograd, Mr. Kerensky succeeded in making his way to Sweden, where, at last reports, he was residing.

Speaking on the internal conditions of Russia, General Oberoucheff said that if 25,000 American troops were sent to Russia a fighting Russian army could be raised with their aid and made a menace to Germany in the east.

General Oberoucheff, who came to this country from Stockholm secveral weeks ago, said that from the information he had obtained there, the Bolshevist régime was nearing an end in Russia, and would soon fall to pieces by lack of its own cohesive powers.

RUSSIAN MAY DAY QUIET.

By ARTHUR RANSOME.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, May 15, (Wednesday.)—The first of May (May 14 in our calendar,) celebrations in Moscow were of a different character to those of last year. Then the red banners of the working classes seemed triumphant, but at the very time when they waved in the streets of Petrograd Milukoff was sending his note to the Allies which proved very sufficiently that the power was only nominally in the hands of the working classes. The Government then still belonged to the burgeoisie, who looked from their windows and said they were sick of red flags.

This year the opponents of the Soviet criticised the Red May Day, saying it had become a mere official ceremony. This is indeed true, because this year the working classes in Russia are themselves their Government, and, as Stekloff points out, the hope of every May Day in the past has been that some day it should be an official ceremony of the ruling class instead of a protest of subjected labor.

In spite of gloomy forebodings, the day passed in perfect order, not a shot being fired. The whole town was red with flags, the walls of the Kremlin being hung with red banners and the ancient towers garlanded in scarlet.

In spite of efforts of the Church to prevent the celebration in Holy Week, (hundreds of sermons were preached against it on Sunday,) in spite of the general consciousness of the tragic seriousness of the moment, the streets were full of people, and the demonstrations showed real faith, both in the present and the future. Between 15,000 and 20,000 troops of the new army, cavalry, infantry and artillery, took part in the parade and showed better discipline and better kept horses and guns than any troops since the Revolution.

Count Mirbach must have been delighted to see that a company of German and Austrian prisoners who swore to support the Soviet were marching past with revolutionary banners with German inscriptions.

WANT MONARCHY IN FINLAND.

Bourgeois Parties Also Advocate Joining the Central Powers.

HELSINGFORS, May 16.—An appeal signed by representatives of all the bourgeois parties, including the Young Finns, calling upon all citizens to support a monarchical form of government for Finland, is published by the Hufvudstadsbladet. The appeal recommends the reconstitution of the Lantdag, and also that Finland join the Central Powers. (The fact that a number of prominent members of the Young Finnish group were advocating a monarchy has previously been developed in Helsingfors dispatches.)

The present Lantdag comprises 51 members of the Old Finnish group, 25 Young Finns, 26 Agrarians, 21 Swedes, and about 20 Socialists. The majority of the Young Finns and the Socialists are advocates of a republican form of government. The attitude of the Agrarians is uncertain.

RUSSIANS BLEW UP ICEBOUND SUBMARINES

Destroyed Four American and Seven British Boats Before Leaving Hango.

LONDON, May 16.—Russian naval officials blew up their four American submarines before retreating from Hango, in Southwestern Finland, last April, the British Admiralty announced tonight. Seven British submarines also were destroyed. No British vessel fell into the hands of the enemy.

The effect of the destruction of the submarines upon the crews of merchant vessels was excellent, the statement says, and induced the destruction of many ships which would otherwise have fallen into the hands of the enemy.

"The guns at and near Hango," the Admiralty announcement says, "had already been dismantled, and upon the appearance of the German forces the Russians retreated from the vicinity after blowing up their four American submarines.

"Four British submarines of Class 3 were taken outside the harbor of Helsingfors on April 3 and blown up and sunk. Three C-boats were demolished between that day and April 8. Their crews were removed to Petrograd."

LONDON, May 16.—All British submarines in the Harbor of Helsingfors were destroyed when the German naval forces approached the city, because it was impossible to get them away, owing to the fact that they were frozen fast, according to an Admiralty statement this evening.

The submarines, which had been operating in the Baltic since the early part of the war, were blown up, together with their stocks of torpedoes, ammunition, and other materials. Their crews have arrived in England, having traveled by way of Mourmansk.

GERMANS CLOSE AZOV SEA.

Ukrainians Accuse Them of Using Russian Warships to Seize Coal.

LONDON, May 16.—Anti-German agitation in the Ukraine continues unchecked, says a Vienna dispatch to the Lokal-Anzeiger of Berlin and transmitted from The Hague by the Exchange Telegraph Company.

Ukrainian newspapers attack Germany bitterly and accuse her of using the Russian warships at Sebastopol for the purpose of seizing coal and Ukrainian merchantmen. It is reported that the Germans have mined the Strait of Yenkale, closing the passage into the Sea of Azov.

Serious trouble, it is added, has occurred at Nikolaiev, where the Germans have dismissed the City Council.

EVACUATING FINN BORDER.

Russians Said to be Deserting Railroad to Petrograd.

STOCKHOLM, May 16.—A Helsingfors dispatch says the Russians have begun the evacuation of territory along the border of Finland.

They still hold the frontier fortress of Ino, but otherwise are withdrawing as far as Kronstadt. The railway from Valkeassare to Petrograd is being deserted by the Russians, the dispatch reports.

RUMANIA TO DEMOBILIZE.

Ukraine Government Stops Exports to Bessarabia and Rumania.

AMSTERDAM, May 16.—An order for the demobilization of the Rumanian Army was published in the Official Gazette at Jassy, on May 14.

Alexander Marghiloman, the Rumanian Premier, while conversing with a Rumanian newspaper representative, said that Bessarabia, with the exception of a slight rectification of its northern frontier, would be joined to Rumania.

Advices from Kiev say that the Government has prohibited the export of raw and manufactured metals and rubber. All exports from the Ukraine to Rumania and Bessarabia are forbidden, "as Bessarabia has been annexed and its political and economic relations remain unsettled."

LABORITES SPURNED PACIFIST SCHEMING

FIRMLY REJECTED PLEAS

Visitors Convinced That Mass of French Workers Want No Conference with Teutons.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 16.—George L. Berry, a member of the American Labor Delegation, in a letter to the Daily Telegraph in reference to its Paris dispatch [giving an account of the efforts of French labor and Socialist elements favorable to a conference with German workers to prevent the Americans from coming in contact with the win-the-war labor party in Paris] says:

"It is true that the Executive Committee of the French Federation, as well as the Socialist parties, are controlled by those favorable to a conference with Socialist and labor leaders of the Central Powers. It is likewise true that a policy had been adopted prior to our arrival, whereby only representatives of labor and the Socialistic movement of France favorable to that view were to address the American delegation.

"It was instantly apparent to us that the purpose of the arrangement was to overwhelm the American delegation with the idea that all the leaders of the trade union movement of France, as well as the workers of that country, were for a meeting with the German workers, Socialists and trade unionists, and in some instances were for peace at any price. This fact was made known to us by members of the Executive Committee who were in harmony with the position of the American Federation of Labor, but who were denied the opportunity of presenting their position before the conference held in France.

"Instead of this arrangement having the effect desired upon the American mission, it worked to the opposite effect, and we endeavored to accentuate our position. Certainly our determination to maintain the position of the American Federation of Labor was increased.

"Out of the conferences came converts to our position. We were satisfied at the conclusion that the labor movement of France was in the main opposed to the program of certain pacifist leaders of the federation and of the Socialist Party. In addition, it might be said that we were convinced that the position of many of the French leaders, so-called pacifists, was really political and not representative of the wishes of the workers of France.

"So far as the American labor delegation is concerned, there was no misunderstanding as regards the purposes of the conference or of what was said there. We were not misled as to the attitude of the leaders of the conference or as to statements made at the conference. The facts are that the French leaders insisted upon meeting with Socialist and labor representatives of the Central Powers and the American labor delegation very frankly declined to be drawn into such a meeting directly or indirectly. We understood the position of the French representatives throughout and we are confident that they understood our position."

Bonar Law Formally Denies Reports of a Coming Army Change.

LONDON, May 16.—Reports that were in circulation to the effect that a change was imminent in the higher command of the British Army in France were denied in the House of Commons today by Chancellor Bonar Law, spokesman for the War Cabinet.

Replying to a question, Mr. Bonar Law said that no change in the higher command had taken place, nor was any in contemplation.

KING GEORGE GREETS LABOR DELEGATES

HOPE FOR PERMANENT TIES

LONDON, May 16.—The American Labor delegation was received by King George at Buckingham Palace today. The visit lasted an hour.

The King, on receiving the delegation, said:

"It gives the Queen and me great pleasure to receive you here today and we trust that if the experiences of your stay in this country have been agreeable they may also prove interesting and helpful. You have had opportunities for judging the efforts were are putting forth at home in order adequately to meet all the demands from the various theatres of war. I hope these experiences will enable you to assure the people of the United States that we are doing and mean to continue to do our utmost in this direction.

"Your delegation includes lady representatives who, I trust, may be able to give a satisfactory report of the manner in which British women have come forward to replace men called from various industries to the fighting ranks, and how efficiently they are carrying out the work entrusted them.

"It has always been my dream that the two great English-speaking nations, with their individual national characteristics, should work together in close and harmonious relations towards those ideals of progress and civilization common to both peoples. Fate has decided that the war should fulfill this dream. The two nations have made common cause in the defense of freedom and justice. In the future days of peace may they continue to stand side by side to attain the same ideals and aspirations.

"We wish you a safe and happy return home. Science is daily increasing the power of rapid transportation between our islands and the continent of America, thus facilitating the interchange of these visits, and so strengthening the ties of mutual understanding, confidence and good-fellowship which, please God, may ever henceforth unite us."

E. O. McCormick, of San Francisco, replied briefly in behalf of the Americans, thanking the King and expressing the pleasure which the visit had afforded the delegates and how they appreciated it.

Each member of the delegation was presented to King George and Queen Mary, as well as to the Princess Mary, and nearly an hour was spent in informal conversation.

British labor will trust President Wilson to secure a democratic peace and will aid American labor in backing him up, said Arthur Henderson, leader of the Labor Party, at a meeting of the Manchester-Salford Trade Council last night. Three members of the American labor delegation accompanied Mr. Henderson to the meeting.

"If there is anybody," Mr. Henderson said, "in whose hands we would trust our destinies when a proper peace is to be secured, it is the President of the United States. When the time comes I believe there will be no stronger force behind President Wilson than American labor, seconded by British labor, determined to keep representatives at the table until we have secured a clean, honorable, and democratic peace, based on the will of the people."

Found the King Democratic.

LONDON, May 16, (By Canadian Press, Limited.)—The American labor delegates were deeply impressed with their visit to Buckingham Palace today. James Wilson said that the King was "a true democratic gentleman. Throughout our visit to Europe we have not been to a less formal function."

John P. Frey said:

"Even the receptions at the White House are not so simple. We Americans did not realize that the King was so human."

George L. Berry said:

"King George chatted with us a long time and none of us felt ill at ease a single moment."

HEAR OF CLEMENCEAU AIMS.

Socialists Learn of War Plans and Also Visit Premier.

PARIS, May 16.—René Renoult, President of the Army Committee of the Chamber of Deputies, today laid before a meeting of the Socialist Radical Party, the largest in the Chamber, Premier Clemenceau's declarations after the Interallied Conference at Abbéville early this month, regarding the utilization of American aid, which is being importantly developed.

M. Renoult also showed the utility of small tanks as a reinforcement for infantry.

Henry Franklin-Bouillon, Chairman of the Interallied Parliamentary Conference, made a speech in which he dealt with the Austrian negotiations of 1917. He said that they never were susceptible of obtaining a peace acceptable either from the viewpoint of France's fidelity to her allies or the war aims as defined by President Wilson, to which the Entente Powers remained attached.

A delegation of Socialist Deputies saw Premier Clemenceau last evening.

When M. Clemenceau took the Premiership last Fall the Socialists were not friendly to him, because they insisted that he lacked understanding of the labor world's ideals, and the Socialist organs expressed decided hostility—a hostility that had had its origin long prior to the war. On the first test in the Chamber, however, after M. Clemenceau had delivered his statement outlining an aggressive war policy, all but certain of the unified Socialists joined in acclaiming him, and on the vote of confidence only sixty-five votes were cast in the negative.

Despite this, close co-operation between the Socialists and the Clemenceau Government has been lacking.

TUSCAN "WOLVES" HONOR D'ANNUNZIO

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, May 16.—"Oh, Wolves of Tuscany, my whole soul thrills at your splendid deeds!" said the poet-soldier D'Annunzio today at the distribution of medals for valor to a brigade of Tuscany, the soldiers whereof have been nicknamed "Wolves" after distinguishing themselves on the Carso by conquering what were considered inaccessible heights. What gave the ceremony an unusual character was the presentation to the poet by the brigade of a bronze circlet ornamented with gold laurel leaves, in the centre whereof was the silver halberd crest of Trieste. This circlet was given to D'Annunzio in memory of an incident which happened during the conquest of one of the mountains on the Carso. During the attack an Austrian shell fell between him and Major Randaccio, commanding the Tuscans, without exploding. The latter ordered the bronze circlet surrounding the shell to be removed and presented to the poet in memory of his escape. The soldiers of the Tuscan brigade clubbed together to have the circlet ornamented with gold laurel leaves.

In the next fight Randaccio fell heroically.

NEED OF EXPERTS ON AIRCRAFT BOARD

NEARLY A BILLION GONE

By FREDERICK UPHAM ADAMS.

SECOND ARTICLE.

The charge cannot justly be made that lack of financial support has handicapped the chances for success of our aircraft program. From a statement recently made by the Signal Corps we learn that thus far expenditures and contract obligations total the impressive amount of $907,339,000, and an additional appropriation of $1,000,000,000 is pending before Congress and will doubtless be granted. We should have quite an aircraft fleet after expending $1,900,000,000. Prior to the war we thus expended only a few miserable millions. We used the word billion then only in discussing such inconceivable things as the distances of fixed stars.

Thus far we can discern no appreciable war result from the use of this $907,339,000. There is a decided and growing national curiosity concerning what has been or will be done with this tidy amount. Nothing yet disclosed gives any clear idea on this point.

There is only one way in which the common mind can even faintly grasp such an amount, and that is by instituting comparisons between this $907,339,000 and small things with which we are more or less familiar. For example, a $10,000 house set on a lot with 100-foot frontage makes of its owner an enviable man. It would require a row of such houses more than 1,600 miles long to foot up to $900,000,000, and there would be 90,000 of them in this long and pleasing row. We certainly should hope to get an airplane compete for the cost of two of these $10,000 houses, and this would net us 45,000 airplanes. How many may we expect?

The average American citizen is fairly content with a $3,000 house or cottage. There could be built 200,000 of such houses with an expenditure of $900,000,000, and they would comfortably shelter a population of more than 1,000,000 persons.

The greatest world's fair ever held was that of the Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1893. All of the magnificent buildings, grounds, and adornments cost less than $30,000,000. You could therefore indulge in thirty of such international displays for what has thus far been appropriated for our aviation program.

The most famous and disastrous fire in history is also claimed by Chicago. In 1871 it swept away more than three square miles, including all of the business district of the Western metropolis, destroyed 17,450 buildings and more than 200 lives, yet the total loss was only $190,000,000, much less than one-quarter of what we have set aside already for our aircraft program.

All of the great fires of the last fifty years, including those of Chicago, Boston, Baltimore, San Francisco, and numerous other ones, combined with all of the great international expositions held within the last half century, would not total $900,000,000.

We are justly proud of our magnificent Capitol building in Washington and of the splendid cluster of departmental buildings which make of it the "City of Magnificent Distances." Yet the cost of the superb Capitol building and of the twenty or more palaces which house the tens of thousands of officials and clerks of the greatest nation in the world was only $90,000,000. Thus we could duplicate them ten times with the fund which has already been expended and appropriated on an aircraft program which has not yet resulted in one fighting plane deemed fit to cross the battle line in France.

Not Stinted for Money.

I could submit many other interesting comparisons, but these may serve to show that the Aircraft Production Board and the Signal Corps have not been stinted in their money allowance.

We learn from this preliminary financial report that the $900,000,000 fund includes $563,000,000 for "engines, airplanes, parts, &c." The contract price of a Liberty motor is understood to be about $6,000, when the manufacturer is working under a fixed price arrangement. This is also the approximate price of the 300 horse power Hispano-Suiza motor, now being manufactured in quantity for the Government. The cost of airplanes complete, including such motors, ranges from $10,000 to $20,000, with $15,000 as a fair average.

It follows that this $563,000,000 should supply us with a fleet of not less than 37,500 powerful and perfectly equipped airplanes. The remaining $344,000,000 of this $907,339,000 appropriation would seem ample to defray the expenses of training camps, construction work, experimenting, and all of the other incidental expenses which could be incurred in the first year of operation.

The nation is not vastly concerned with what Sculptor Borglum did, or did not do, but it is vitally concerned with what has become of or will eventuate from the expenditure of this $900,000,000. Where are these 37,500 completed and perfected airplanes? When will even a few thousand of them go "over the top" of the top? What are we to expect from the additional $1,000,000,000 asked for?

You will have to pay your share of this bill, and you can obtain a clearer view of the character of the obligation incurred by reading carefully this epitome of what thus far has happened:

When we entered in this war a year or more ago our War Department had a few airplanes which proved themselves worthless when tested in Mexico. We had a number of aircraft inventors and experts. We had men of capital who believed in the future of the airplane both for purposes of war and of peace. The Dayton-Wright Company was making planes and other accessories, but was not manufacturing motors. The Curtiss interests were making planes and engines. The Wright-Martin Aircraft Corporation was making the Hispano-Suiza motors for the French Government. Other concerns were making parts of the Rolls-Royce for the British Government. There were a score or more of companies hard at work on various types of engines and completed planes.

Had a Firm Foundation.

We had laid the firm foundation of the aircraft industry. This industry thought it had the right to expect the support and patronage of our Government. No such support was extended when Germany invaded Belgium and plunged Europe into war in 1914, but our inventors and manufacturers of aircraft devices renewed their efforts so as to be better prepared in the event we were dragged into the conflict.

We declared war against Germany in April, 1917. A small appropriation for aircraft purposes was made by Congress. In the following June an appropriation of $640,000,000 was voted, and an Aircraft Production Board was established. A branch of the Signal Corps was detailed to co-operate with it.

Not a man closely familiar with the science or practice of aviation or of aircraft production was appointed to either of these boards, and up to the present date not a man recognized as an aviation expert has been called by the War Department to duty in either of these official bodies or given any authority in directing its policy and in expediting the speedy production of aircraft fit to meet the up to date and highly efficient German air fleet.

The Wright brothers invented the airplane and founded a great industry in the United States, and they did this despite the fact that its Government failed to take advantage of their genius and of their long and hazardous years of work and experimenting. Mr. Wright, the "father of the flying machine," was not called to the aid of the War Department, neither were any of the men who had been trained under him in the years when the airplane was ignored in Washington, but constructed by the thousands in Germany, which was then plotting for the mastery of the world and the overthrow of democracy.

Few Fliers Were Available.

We did not even have a sufficient number of capable aviators with which to man our obsolete machines. We officially knew less about the flying art than any first-class nation in the world, but we had $640,000,000 with which to build an air fleet.

All of our allies and most of the foreign builders of airplanes and engines placed their models and wares at our disposal. We ignored these offers. We decided to reject all that Great Britain, France, Italy, Germany, (we had all of the German models,) and all that other nations had learned from years of study and from two years of practical and thrilling tests in the battles and campaigns of the world's greatest war, and preferred to go ahead on our own account. We confidently announced that we would astound the world with the speedy production of an enormous air fleet which would sweep the German flyers from the sky.

Whenever I think of our ravishingly beautiful air program of those Summer months of 1917, I am disagreeably reminded of the song of Kipling's monkey folk, the Bandar-log:

> Here we sit in a branchy row,
> Thinking of wonderful things we know;
> Dreaming of deeds we mean to do,
> All complete in a minute or two—
> Something noble and grand and good,
> Won by merely wishing we could.
> Now we're going to—never mind,
> Brother, thy tail hangs down behind!

Months before we appropriated this $640,000,000 certain of the engineers of the Packard Motor Company of Detroit began experimental work in an attempt to transform their "twin-six" automobile engine into an aviation motor. They planned to incorporate with it many of the features of the Mercedes, the type mere generally used by the German aviation engine manufacturers. They built an engine which stood tests satisfactory to them. Other men of affairs connected directly or indirectly with the automobile industry took a keen interest in this motor.

I do not mean to imply that this was a selfish or mercenary interest. They doubtless believed that a wonderful and superperfect motor had been developed. They took it to Washington and convinced Secretary of War Baker that he need seek no further for a solution of the aircraft problem. Not one of these automobile experts knew enough about the aviation problem to realize that a shop test of a motor is only of comparative value, or that the successful use of a motor in one type of plane does not imply that it can safely be transferred to another type of plane. There were a score of other vital facts which these inexperienced enthusiasts did not know —and that is the main reason why we have expended hundreds of millions of dollars without producing airplanes which we dare ship abroad for battle use.

Called Liberty Motor a Success.

On Sept. 12, 1917, Secretary Baker announced the triumphant and unqualified success of the Liberty motor in an official statement which will endure as a classic. How Secretary Baker was deluded into making this grotesque statement is a mystery which Washington never wearies of discussing. It is doubtful if Secretary Baker wrote this statement, but he surely gave it to the public with the weight of his name and office.

In this famous statement and prediction Secretary Baker said:

> The United States aviation engine has passed its final tests. They were successful and gratifying. The new motor, designed by the Signal Corps as the "Liberty Motor," is now the main reliance of the United States in the rapid production of large numbers of high-powered battleplanes for service in the war. In power, speed, serviceability, and minimum weight the new engine invites comparison with the best that the European war has produced. I regard the invention and rapid development of this engine as one of the really big accomplishments of the United States since its entry in the war. * * * Progress already has been made toward organizing industry for the manufacture of the new machines, and deliveries will be made within a comparatively short time.

It was because Secretary Baker implicitly believed what he thus announced that he formulated his unfortunate policy of committing the fate of our aircraft program to a group of men who had won deserved fame as designers of automobile engines, but who had no knowledge of the science of aviation except that derived from a brief period of experimenting with a motor type which, when put into production under their direction, developed innumerable real or fancied defects. The draftsmen and experts under their control have ordered hundreds and even thousands of changes in the nine months which have passed since Secretary Baker was led to believe that he was warranted in proclaiming to the world the perfection of a motor which is not yet out of the experimental stage.

Even had the Liberty motor been even more nearly perfect than thus officially advertised, there would have been no warrant in committing the sole direction of our aircraft program to its designers and intended manufacturers. The motor is only one detail in a fighting airplane—an important detail, it is true—but the motor must harmonize with all of the other parts and features of a complete type of flying machine, and there are a number of types absolutely required for war and training purposes.

Your aviation engine designer does not of necessity know more concerning the detailed construction of an airplane than does a plumber or a heating expert about the architecture of the building into which his plumbing or heating appliances are incorporated.

More than that, the most capable and inspired aviation motor designer or a group of them, combining mastery over every detail of designing such engines, would probably be absolutely unfitted to conduct the vast manufacturing operations necessary to put their creation into quantity production.

More than that, these motor experts could not be expected to have any grasp of the vitally important military problems involved in formulating and executing a constructive program.

Please do not construe this as fault finding for the sake of the satisfaction some find in that quest. But we must terminate our seemingly inevitable period of "muddling," without a day of avoidable delay. We must profit at once by the mistakes we have made. The lesson to be drawn from this sketch of our experience in aircraft production, so far as I have completed it in this and the preceding article, is this:

The membership of the Aircraft Production Board should largely be composed of men who have had actual and long experience in the designing and manufacture of airplanes. If these cannot be found in the United States, send abroad and get them.

HUGHES TO HAVE CHARGE.

Full Sway in Aircraft Inquiry—To Go to Washington Soon.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Charles E. Hughes today notified Attorney General Gregory that he would come to Washington as soon as possible to take up investigation of the airplane production situation at the request of President Wilson. Although the Attorney General made no announcement of plans for the inquiry after communicating with Mr. Hughes, it is understood that Mr. Hughes will have full charge and will be assisted by William L. Frierson, Assistant Attorney General.

Among the many telegrams received at the White House commending the appointment of Mr. Hughes was one from General Felix Agnus, the veteran editor of The Baltimore American and The Baltimore Star. It read:

"I heartily congratulate you on the appointment of Mr. Hughes. He is a man of natural legal force, who understands the prosecution of a righteous cause and the administration of justice, and one who puts patriotism above partisanship. The whole country applauds your decision to enlist his talents in the common cause. The Republicans are with you to win the war. We are a nation undivided, resolved upon victory and confident in your leadership.

STARVING JEWS TO DEATH.

Turks in Palestine Seek to Exterminate Them by Hunger.

AMSTERDAM, May 16.—The persecution of Jews in Turkish-occupied territory in Palestine is not yet ended, according to the Jewish Correspondence Bureau at The Hague. Of 4,000 Jews in the City of Safed, near the Sea of Galilee, 3,000 are without bread. Djemal Pasha, formerly Turkish commander in that district and now Minister of War at Constantinople, devised new plans to bring the still remaining Jews to a slow but sure death, the bureau says.

Since the beginning of April he has ordered all Jews to evacuate colonies and towns near the front. Not a single Jew has been left in the village of Kefr-Saba, northeast of Jaffa. Only Jews were driven out of the village and the remainder of the population was allowed to stay. In Kefr-Saba five or six persons die daily from hunger and typhus.

PLANS MORE AGREEMENTS.

Berlin to Have Compacts with Other Allies Also, It Is Said.

AMSTERDAM, May 16.—Definite decisions have been reached regarding the armed assistance that Austria is to render on the western front, according to the Vienna correspondent of the Vissische Zeitung of Berlin.

It is also reported from the same source that agreements similar to those just concluded between Germany and Austria will also be concluded between the Central Powers and Bulgaria and Turkey.

These agreements have to do with strengthening the alliance between the powers with respect to economic and military questions.

liaison mission on April 12. Flying at 300 meters, they finished their mission in spite of intense fire from enemy machines and anti-aircraft guns.

North of Toul, on the afternoon of May 14, Lieutenant Angel and Lieutenant Emerson were killed by a fall within our lines in an observation plane in which they were flying. The accident took place within a cloud and the particulars are not known.

North of Toul our aviators today brought down three German two-seated machines, one of our aviators bringing down two and another bringing down one.

FIRES IN MONTDIDIER STARTED BY OUR GUNS

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 16, (Associated Press.)—Several fires were set in Montdidier and behind the German lines by the American batteries last night. Enemy communications are continuously battered by the American heavy artillery and the aerial services on both sides are active. The infantry, however, has not been engaged.

Two German airplanes were brought down yesterday by French aviators in this sector.

Camp Court to Try Negro Slayer.

CAMP UPTON, N. Y., May 16.—Laton James, the negro infantryman who confessed to the murder of Mrs. J. Harrity and Private Michael Maloney in the woods here on May 5, will be brought here in a few days to be tried by general court martial. Major H. H. Walker, the cantonment provost marshal, made the positive statement that the murder was the result of an altercation that ensued when Maloney made an impertinent reply to a flippant remark by James. It was also declared that James was not on sentry duty on that post at the time and did not stand guard over the bodies after the shooting. If James is convicted of murder here he will be hanged within the reservation.

OUR AIRMEN SWIFT IN DOWNING FOES

Peterson Calls It a "Cinch" as He Briefly Tells How He Destroyed Two Machines.

MARR SURPRISED ENEMY

Opened Fire Before They Knew He Was Near—Victors Off Hunting Again Next Morning.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 16, (Associated Press.)—Captain David Peterson of Honesdale, Penn., and Captain Kenneth Marr of California, heroes in the aerial battle yesterday in which Captain Peterson brought down two German monoplanes and Captain Marr destroyed an enemy biplane in the Toul sector, told their stories of the battle today.

"I was flying near Thiacourt at an altitude of 5,000 meters," said Captain Peterson, "when I saw two German Albatross scouts going away at right angles in the distance. One was ahead of the other. I ascended 200 meters, circled, and stopped my engine and darted after them. I finally got close to the last plane. At a distance of 100 yards I opened fire with incendiary bullets and the German machine almost immediately burst into flames and fell.

"I continued straight on my course and within two minutes had the other enemy machine before me. He started a quick dive but I am certain that some of the bullets went home. One of the wings of his machine crumpled up at the same moment. As I circled about I saw one machine burning on the ground and the other, smoking in its downward plunge, crash to the earth. That is all there is to it. It was a cinch."

Captain Marr was flying at an altitude of 2,000 meters when he saw an enemy machine over the American lines.

"As I sailed out I saw him far away, circling out from our line amid a cloud of puffballs from our 'Archies,'" he said. "I circled out wider and finally passed the German and turned again down our line, between the enemy and the sun. Both of us had the sun at our backs.

"As I opened up my motor and approached nearer I saw that I had a two-seater to deal with. I thought that the German might see me or hear my motor, so I went a hundred meters lower until right under the tail of his machine. Then I pointed the nose of my airplane upward and went on a level with the enemy and opened fire at him at point-blank range.

"The German never knew I was there until incendiary bullets, alternating with ordinary missiles began pattering through his machine. After twenty shots his machine toppled. I must have got a lucky shot home on the pilot, for the machine went down, wavering through the air like a leaf falling from a tree.

"I saw the observer standing up in the machine trying to get his machine gun to bear on me, first from one side and then from the other. I certainly felt sorry for the helpless beggar. There he was dashing to certain death, but to the last gamely trying to give me a fight."

Captain Peterson and Captain Marr were standing on their flying field at daybreak this morning as they spoke. It was a perfect day for flying and they were about to leave for a patrol over the enemy lines. As they stepped into their machines Captain Marr said:

"Well, we're off again. Maybe we will get some more. Maybe they will get us. Anyway, its a fine day for it. So long."

The motors started and the two airplanes, with several other machines, took the air and disappeared toward the front.

FAILED TO REACH PARIS.

Two Groups of German Airplanes Made Futile Efforts.

PARIS, May 16.—Two successive attempts to reach Paris were made by two distinct groups of German airplanes last night. The first group, after dropping bombs eighteen miles south of a point where they crossed the line, regained their base shortly before 11 P. M.

A few minutes later a second group of four airplanes crossed at about the same spot and headed southwestward. This group was headed off after it had covered thirty miles. The machines belonging to it dropped a few bombs, which fell in fields.

SAYS KAISERS CUT PARLEY.

Was to Have Lasted Six Days, Zurich Dispatch Asserts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Official advices from Zurich reached Washington today indicating that all may have not gone well in the recent conference between Emperors William and Charles, which the Bavarian and Saxon monarchs insisted upon attending uninvited. The dispatch from Zurich asserts that the return of Emperor Charles to Vienna has caused the most diverse comments.

"The conference was to have lasted six days," says the dispatch. "It was prematurely interrupted. It is not difficult to conclude that the conversations must have taken a less satisfactory turn than was hoped, and that certain divergencies of view rendered the adjournment necessary.

"Obviously nobody thought that the details of the new treaty of alliance would be drawn up and sealed in a few days, but the possibility of an agreement upon the two essential questions, closely related to each other, was admitted, these questions being the regulation of the Polish question in favor of Austria, and Austria's obligation to put her armies at the disposition of Germany, whether on the Italian front or the western front. It will be seen in a few days whether this agreement was reached. Concerning the first point the correspondent of the Frankfurter Zeitung states that nothing definite was decided."

DOWN 55 GERMAN AIRPLANES IN A DAY

British Airmen Account for 37 of Them and French for the Remaining 18.

LONDON, May 16.—Fifty-five German airplanes were brought down by British and French aviators on Wednesday, according to the official reports on aerial activities, issued tonight.

Thirty-seven airplanes, twenty-five of which were destroyed, were accounted for by British airmen. The official statement on aerial operations reports a marked increase in the activities of aerial forces on the western front. It reads:

> A great deal of work was done by our airplanes and observation balloons on Wednesday in conjunction with our artillery. Our bombing machines began their attacks at dawn and continued until dark, dropping over twenty-four tons of bombs on targets, including the railway stations at Tournai, Courtrai and Chaulnes and billets in the neighborhood of Douai, Bapaume, Menin and the River Somme and on the Zeebrugge-Bruges Canal.
>
> Enemy aircraft was active in the early morning and again in the evening, hostile scouts attacking our bombing machines with particular insistence. Twenty-five German machines were brought down and twelve driven down out of control. One was shot down by machine gun fire from the ground.

The report of the French War Office is as follows:

> On May 15 our pursuit machines were extremely active in the air. Eighteen German planes were brought down and four captive balloons were set on fire.

ALLIED AIRMEN SUPREME.

Have Acquired a Marked Superiority in Alsace and on the Rhine.

GENEVA, May 16.—Swiss troops, stationed along the frontier, have noticed in the last three months an increasing superiority of the Allies over the Germans in the air over the territory under Swiss observation.

The German aviators, operating in Alsace and along the Rhine, have become scarcer, while the allied aviators are circulating freely in those regions.

The front further north, it thus appears, is demanding the services of the best of the German aviators.

VOTE ON CREEL TODAY.

House Committee Expected to Decide for an Investigation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The House Committee on Rules to which was referred Representative Treadway's resolution, calling for an investigation into a recent utterance by George Creel, Chairman of the Committee on Public Information, alleged to reflect on Congressmen, is expected to act favorably tomorrow. The matter was informally before the committee today. Democratic members sought to belittle the importance of the resolution, but it is believed there will be enough votes to obtain a favorable report.

Representative Pou, Chairman of the Committee, speaking for himself, today said:

"If Mr. Creel did not make the statement reflecting upon Congress he should, in justice to himself, repudiate the statement. If he did make the statement, it seems to me a question is raised to be dealt with by the President. Personally, I do not regard the incident of sufficient importance to warrant any action whatever by the House."

The belief exists in the Rules Committee that if Mr. Creel should act upon Representative Pou's suggestion the proposal for an investigation would be dropped.

TWO CARGO SHIPS LOST.

One Torpedoed and One a Dutch Ship, Was Sunk in Collision.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The Navy Department was advised, late this afternoon, of the loss of two large cargo-carrying steamers employed on the lines of supplies and communications between this country and Europe, one of the vessels lost, the Neches, having been torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine, and the other, the Zaanland, having been lost in a collision at sea. No lives were lost with either vessel and no troops were being carried. The announcement regarding the loss of the Zaanland follows:

"The Navy Department is informed that the U. S. S. Zaanland was sunk in collision at sea on May 13. All on board were rescued and will be returned to the United States. The Zaanland was a cargo carrier and was one of the Dutch ships taken over by the United States Government, and was 8,700 tons dead weight. It was commissioned and manned by the navy for army account."

This statement was authorized by Secretary Daniels regarding the sinking of the Neches:

"The War Department has received information that the Neches, a cargo carrier of 7,175 tons, was torpedoed and sunk on the night of May 14 or early morning of May 15.

"All on board are reported saved. The vessel was returning without cargo. It is believed that the vessel carried a crew of about 125 men. No troops were on board. The Neches was under charter by the United States Shipping Board. It was a steel ship, built in 1914, and had a capacity of about 14 knots per hour."

BELGIANS STARVING; LACK OF FOOD SHIPS

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Belgium is now starving, and some of the ships supplying the Allies must be diverted to carry relief, President Wilson was told today by Food Administrator Hoover. Under the present plan of pooling the ships and the food supplies, Mr. Hoover said that other countries were getting the food and Belgium was being neglected.

Ever since the United States began sending large numbers of troops to France the question of tonnage for Belgian relief has caused much uneasiness.

Last month the food situation was so serious that shipments to the civil populations of the allied nations were suspended for about ten days in order to move 3,000,000 bushels of grain to the Belgians and the inhabitants of German-occupied Northern France.

One of the factors in the present situation, which Mr. Hoover is understood to have brought to the attention of the President, is the diversion of tonnage to ship grain to Switzerland under America's agreement with that country. Recently the United States arranged to send grain-laden ships to a French port for Switzerland in defiance of the German submarine menace and under naval convoy. Several have gone, and others will follow under the arrangement.

and that a total of 4,000,000 men during the year will be nearer the mark.

Secretary Baker explained today his view as to what the new practice of brigading American units with French and British divisions and the appointment of General Foch as supreme commander might bring about in the way of producing mixed army corps or divisions.

It was possible, he said, that American division or higher commanders would have command of French or British troops or both under the arrangements made by General Foch. Where a mixed division or corps was constituted and American troops predominated, Mr. Baker thought it probable that an American would command if one of adequate rank and experience is available.

ASSERT WE WILL PUT 5,000,000 IN FIGHT

And If More Are Necessary to Win They Will Go Too, British and Italians Are Told.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, May 16.—"We intend to act seriously. We intend to win whatever the cost. If 5,000,000 men are not enough, if it is necessary we will send 10,000,000," writes Irving Bacheller of Riverside, Conn., to Ernesto Nathan, ex-Mayor of Rome.

Bacheller continues, saying that if Nathan and his countrymen were able to see the feverish activity occurring in America, they would not have moments of doubt about the future. He concludes:

"Tell our Italian brothers to fight with undiminished faith and light heart. If other means should fail, we will construct with our ships a bridge across the Atlantic, thus attaining our mutual aim to join hands in the name of liberty across the ocean."

The press publishes the letter with large headings producing an excellent impression.

LONDON, May 16, (Associated Press.)—American preparations on the western front are amazing in their immensity and plans are being made to care for 5,000,000 American troops, Harry E. V. Brittain, Secretary of the English branch of the Pilgrim Club, told the Royal Colonial Institute last night. If the Germans do not give in, he added, the number of American troops will be increased to any amount necessary.

Sir Charles P. Lucas, former head of the Dominions Department at the Colonial Office, said he wondered if the Germans realized what the entry of America into the war meant. It meant, he said, not only the accession to the Allied powers of many millions of fighting men and the addition of vast resources, but also the coming in of the only one amongst the great peoples of the world who have seen and carried through to an unmistakable issue a four years' war.

The United States, asserted Miss Higgins, of the American Labor Delegation, had answered the call of blood. England had been a wonderful inspiration, and the heart of America was full of gratitude for what England's sons had achieved.

PRESIDENT OPPOSES ANY WAR INQUIRY

who, with Senator Jones of New Mexico, voted against reporting the resolution out, said he wanted time to file a minority report.

"For the life of me, I cannot see any objection to the resolution, amended as it is to meet objections that have been raised before our committee," said Senator McKellar. "Everything to which objection was raised has been eliminated."

Senator Thompson said there were still "a few objections" to the resolution, and he would point them out in the minority report.

"I do not think a conflagration is going to take place unless we go at double-step to take up this resolution," interpolated Senator Martin. "I want to see both these reports, and I want ample time for it. Indeed, I had hopes that the steps taken by the President in appointing to the case one of the best lawyers in the Department of Justice, associating with him Justice Hughes, would satisfy every Senator that the Government proposes to make a full investigation of this matter."

Senator Thompson was assured that he would have ample time to put in his report. He expects to have it ready tomorrow morning. The Chamberlain resolution is on the calendar for tomorrow, but no effort will be made to put it to a vote unless its advocates feel assured of enough votes to adopt it.

Senator Brandegee later in the day told of receiving the letter and affidavits mailed to him by Gutzon Borglum to refute the charge that he was interested in an aircraft concern at the time he was investigating for the Government. The Connecticut Senator, while disclaiming responsibility for the Borglum data, said he felt there were things in it that ought to be considered by some committee of the Senate.

"Mr. Borglum makes some serious charges against two gentlemen in affidavits accompanying his letter," said the Senator. "I hesitate to stand sponsor for them, and yet I do not want to pocket them. If the charges made by Mr. Borglum are true, criminal prosecution would lie against the men he names, and if they are not true they are libelous."

Senator Brandegee suggested that the Borglum data be referred to the Military Affairs Committee in confidence, with the privilege of making it public if considered wise. This was done.

Smart shades of Brown.

Mottled colorings.

And many others too numerous for detailed description.

¶ Few suits are as individual in styling as these, regardless of price, and no other popular-priced collection of suits offers so much latitude for choice in coloring and patterns. They are tailored in a manner that would be commendable even in much higher-priced productions.

No other suits at anything near these prices reflect so much care in every little detail of making.

SUFFRAGISTS CHIDE POLITICAL SPEAKERS

MISS HAY STOPS HISSING

The principles and achievements of political parties were recommended to an Aeolian Hall audience of women last night, women who are going to enroll on May 25, and wanted to know how to pick their parties. Fifteen minutes of oratory and five of question and answer were furnished for the Prohibitionists by Dr. Ralph Meyer, for the Socialists by Morris Hillquit, for the Democrats by Senator Robert F. Wagner, and for the Republicans by Senator Albert Ottinger. And when they had finished, Miss Mary Garrett Hay, Chairman of the Woman's Suffrage Party of the city, which had organized the symposium, asked her audience: "Well, have you learned anything?" And the women answered with an enthusiastic shout of "No!"

Whereupon Miss Hay advised the women voters to go home and get the literature of all the parties, study it hard, and then make up their minds for themselves.

The crowd, which included a scattering of men, was earnest enough at the outset, but developed a somewhat irreverent attitude toward the speakers in the latter part of the evening. Most of the earnestness was exhausted in asking Morris Hillquit about the Socialist Party attitude toward peace, but there were enough Socialists left who had things to ask of the representatives of the old parties to keep things lively in the latter part of the meeting. Miss Hay was an iron-handed Chairman. She stopped hissing with the firm and definite statement that it would not happen again while she was Chairman.

Deprived of its opportunity to hiss and heckle, the crowd developed the habit of interrupting a speaker with loud applause of somebody whom he was denouncing, and many a burst of oratory was greeted with tumultuous laughter. The speakers held on gallantly, however, and most of them evaded the unpleasant possibilities of the five minutes given over to questions from the floor by answering a single question at such length that it took up nearly all the time allotted.

While apparently the bulk of the women were there to get guidance in making up their minds as to party affiliations, a good many of them had preferences that were indicated by their applause. They cheered pretty liberally for all the parties and all the public men, and of them all the largest outburst was provoked by the name of Theodore Roosevelt, with the President a close second.

And after the party representatives had set forth their views Governor Whitman came in to beg the women to enroll themselves in some party—not any particular party, he was careful to state, though admitting a personal preference; but in some party.

"I am a member of a party," said the Governor, "but in the discharge of the very onerous and difficult duties connected with that office I am not and never have been a party. Greater and more important than partisanship is patriotism, and the man who assumes that all patriotism and all Americanism resides within his own party deceives himself."

Dr. Meyers, the first speaker, got on better with the audience than his successors. He pointed out that the Prohibition Party had been strong for woman suffrage, and declared that it didn't want to prohibit any of the just rights of man, but only to institute a greater measure of liberty, justice, and happiness.

Mr. Hillquit suggested that women might be voted for at the primaries this Fall, at which Miss Hay shook her head, explaining later that what she meant was that women should not be voted for simply because they were women. The difficulties of the Socialist representative began with the questions, when half a dozen persons popped up to ask him about the war. Miss Hay explained that he was only representing a party, and that the question was not Mr. Hillquit's attitude toward the war, but the Socialist Party's attitude. Thereupon a man at one side of the auditorium asked:

"Does the Socialist Party support a military organization in the United States for home protection?"

"The Socialist Party here as elsewhere," said the speaker, "is opposed to all war all the time." [Applause.] "In this we are not alone; you all are—" [Hisses and many shouts of "No!"] Then Miss Hay declared that there would be no hissing while she was Chairman, and Mr. Hillquit went on to explain that what he meant was that no sane person was in favor of war as such, but that the Socialist Party would not favor any kind of a peace; that it was opposed to a peace of subjugation and enslavement; and that "the Socialist Party in this city long before the war expressed its hatred of the German system of monarchy and militarism."

Senator Wagner and Senator Ottinger, combating the growing levity of their hearers, had a harder time of it; particularly Senator Ottinger, who finished up his remarks by declaring that "the Democratic Party of today resembles Jeffersonianism as much as Mayor Hylan resembles Daniel Webster," only to be met with the question: "You've told us what the Republican Party did back in 1492; what are you going to do?"

"The Republican Party," said the Senator, "is going to do what it has done in the past if you put it in power, but it will not do it if it is not restored to power." Then Miss Hay got the audience's opinion of the speakers and the Governor's appeal closed the meeting.

ALUMNI TO AID FUND.

University Graduates Enlist in the Campaign for $450,000.

The alumni of New York University met at dinner last night at the Hotel McAlpin and formed plans for a campaign to raise a fund of $450,000 to enable the institution to meet current operating expenses and to provide equipment for the engineering school, which is now training 600 soldiers. Although the actual campaign for subscriptions has not begun, the Executive Committee announced that $85,000 had already been obtained.

The speakers who explained the object of the campaign were James Boyd, Chairman; Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown, William M. Kingsley, Cyrus C. Miller, and M. H. Avram, Chairman of the Engineering Fund Committee.

WOMEN FOR RADIO WORK.

Ten Volunteers Called from East Side Y. M. C. A. Class.

Ten young women for Government radio service were called for yesterday at the radio class for women at the East Side Branch, Young Men's Christian Association, 153 East Eighty-sixth Street, where a class of twenty-five young women is studying. An officer of the Signal Corps in Washington asked William C. Bohn, instructor of the class, to fill the places. The girls will be placed in large commercial plants where orders are being filled for the Government.

Two young women of the class immediately volunteered and will go to their positions next week. The other eight will follow later.

NO WAR WITH URUGUAY, BERLIN DECLARES

Germany Finally Answers Montevideo's Demand That She Make Her Position Known.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, May 16.—The German Government has informed Uruguay, in response to the request for a definition of the relations between the two countries, that it does not consider that a state of war exists. This official note was issued today:

"When the Uruguayan Military Mission was detained by a German submarien the commander of the submarine justified his arbitrary action by the state of war with Uruguay in which he said Germany had found itself, and said that he was acting in accordance with instructions from the Admiralty, which he exhibited.

"Our Foreign Office demanded that Germany state whether the submarine commander had acted in accordance with instructions from the Government at Berlin, adding that in case a negative reply should be given our military representatives should be relieved of their engagement. [This evidently refers to pledges which the members of the Uruguayan mission were compelled to give before being permitted to proceed.]

"Several days later the Spanish Government made an offer of mediation in regard to the promise made by the Uruguayan officers. Mediation was suggested by the German Ambassador to Spain. The Uruguayan Government refused, regarding this as incompatible with the dignity of the nation. Moreover, the fundamental point of the question, which was whether Germany was or was not at war with Uruguay, must be decided by Germany. The German Government responded that it relieved the Uruguayan officers of their engagement, but in exchange hoped that Uruguay would exert influence in France to the end that the Chilean mission in Spain be permitted to pass over French territory. [This apparently refers to a Chilean mission to Germany, which has been denied passage through France.]

"The Uruguayan Government, without accepting the abrogation of the pledges, called for a reply to the fundamental question; that is to say, whether Germany did or did not consider that a state of war existed. Germany replied that it was not at war with Uruguay. It said, furthermore, that the rupture of relations between Uruguay and Germany was not brought about by itself, and called attention to Uruguay's silence on the subject of the passage of the Chilean mission.

"Meanwhile, the Uruguayan Government inquired of the Chilean Government if it desired Uruguay to request the French Government to authorize passage of the Chilean mission over French territory. The Uruguayan Government decided to take this step only as a mark of deference to a friendly country. The Chilean Government replied that it had no interest in the passage of the mission. The Uruguayan Government informed Germany of this fact. Germany replied today that it relieved the Uruguayan officers of their pledges without any condition. It said that the Chilean question had been raised simply in a desire to consult Uruguay on the subject, and that, in view of the negative reply of Chile, the German Government considered the incident to have been closed."

CONBOY ANNOUNCES DISTRICT DRAFT QUOTAS

5,000 Men from New York City Will Be Mobilized Next Week.

Director of the Draft Martin Conboy made public last night the quotas of draft men from the various New York City districts who are ordered to entrain for the regular army mobilization camp at Fort Slocum during the five days beginning with next Monday. The call, which come unexpectedly, summons to the colors 5,000 men from the five boroughs and precedes the call for the much larger number of men who are ordered to report for duty between May 25 and 29. The quotas affected by this last call were published in THE TIMES last week.

Five hundred men selected by the Government from the New York State draft, including a large number from New York and Brooklyn, went into training yesterday on the campus of New York University, University Heights. The newcomers are a contingent of the 90,000 the Government is distributing among colleges and universities for technical training, and added to the 100 Iowans already at New York University makes 600 now at University Heights.

New York University was one of the first colleges to enter upon the work, though it was then thought the number of soldier students would be small on account of the housing problem. The gymnasium has already been given over to the Iowans, but the housing will be extended by turning the Hall of Fame Museum of six rooms set apart for the commemoration of great Americans, whose names are inscribed in the colonnade above, into barracks. Gould Hall will also be turned into barracks.

JURY DENOUNCES FUSION'S BIG FUND

URGES NEW REFORM LAWS

Would Put Election Workers on Fixed Pay—Finds Indictment Against Timothy Healy.

Recommendations for amendments to the election laws to prevent the use of unlimited funds by any political party were made by the extraordinary Grand Jury yesterday in a report reviewing its two months' investigation of the contributions and disbursements in the Fusion campaign in the municipal election in November. The jury denounced the "reckless expenditure of an amount of money so unduly large as to have shocked the public conscience."

To the previous indictments returned by this Grand Jury against William Hamlin Childs, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Fusion Committee, and against ex-State Senator Josiah T. Newcomb, Chairman of the Fusion Campaign Committee, and William Sulzer, one of the speakers of the campaign, the jury yesterday added a fourth indictment, against ex-Coroner Timothy Healy, President of the International Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen, charging him with attempted bribery, petit larceny and forgery.

The presentment of the Grand Jury, which was read by the foreman, J. Sinclair Armstrong, a Republican, who had made two contributions to the Fusion fund, evoked this statement from Justice Goff in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court concerning remedies suggested in the presentment for safeguarding the ballot.

"You have touched the vital spot. The foundation of our political institutions, irrespective of party affiliations or of leanings, and their existence and maintenance, we must all recognize, must depend upon the purity of the ballot box, and no more important presentment has ever been handed up to this Court in this county than the one you have handed up. For the services which you have rendered the people of the city should be deeply appreciative, and the Court adds to that appreciation its own expression of grateful recognition."

Justnce Goff announced that as the Legislature was not now in session, he would send a copy of the presentment to Governor Whitman, to be presented by him or his successor to the Legislature at the proper time.

The Grand Jury in the presentment pointed out that under existing election laws candidates were limited as to the amounts which they might expend, but no limitation was placed upon the amounts which committees might disburse on behalf of candidates. While the present law required the filing of a more or less detailed statement by such committees or persons as received and expended moneys subscribed for election purposes, the Grand Jury said that this was not a sufficient check to the existing evil. Continuing, the presentment says:

"The evidence before the Grand Jury as to the campaign conducted by the Fusion Committee of 1917 as regards the amount of money expended seems so detrimental to the purity of the ballot as to warrant the strongest condemnation, and it most earnestly recommends that a recurrence should be prevented without delay by remedial legislation."

Commenting on the present law that requires a political committee to consist of at least three members in order to handle funds in a campaign, the Grand Jury's presentment says:

"It expressly relieves such committee of responsibility for the proper expenditure or accounting of any amounts transferred to other political committees. In the opinion of the Grand Jury this is a source of evil and should be remedied."

The Grand Jury condemns the custom of political parties of paying out large sums of money "on the eve or on election day to so-called district leaders, who in turn dispense the same on election day without restriction, at their own pleasure and without regard to any other obligation than to furnish some kind of general voucher."

According to the tabulation made by the Grand Jury from financial statements, $170,851.42 in cash was placed in the hands of Fusion district leaders on election day. The presentment adds:

"There is before the Grand Jury, on well-substantiated evidence, a case where a large amount of money was paid to one individual, apparently with little reason, and with no obligation on the part of the recipient to further the political cause for which the money was subscribed. The total of the moneys expended in conducting the Fusion campaign of 1917 reached the astounding figure of $1,610,862.58."

In conclusion the Grand Jury recommends the defining by law of the status of every worker at an election, with fixed compensation, and says the payment to any person of an amount in excess of the fair and reasonable value of his services should be prima facie evidence of corrupt intent, and be punishable. It would restrict newspapers to the usual rates for advertising; would prohibit a political committee from giving money to any society, cult or organization with the intent of influencing the votes of persons conected with any such organization, and would compel the names of all election workers, leaders and others to be filed fifteen to thirty days preceding election.

MACHINERY BIG WAR NEED.

Manufacturers Warned of Coming Call for Ordnance Tools.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 16.—The nation's aircraft program collapsed because those directing the work failed to allow sufficient time for the patterning of the intricate tools necessary for their production before starting to manufacture, according to J. B. Doan of Cincinnati, President of the National Machine Tool Builders' Association, speaking at the annual convention of that body here today.

"Right now there is a scarcity of large size machine tools, which apparently will shortly be urgently needed to speed up war machinery," said the speaker. "It is obvious, therefore, that since it is not possible to produce them over night a program should be laid out as far in advance as possible, so that when production is demanded proper machinery will be in readiness."

Unless there is a big speeding up immediately in the production of machine tools of large size there will be a serious delay with the big ordnance program in 1919, said Major H. H. Reed of the Ordnance Bureau. The Major announced that the War Department was preparing to establish two mammoth ordnance factories at Pittsburgh and Philadelphia in the next few months, which will require $10,000,000 worth of machine tools for big guns and an additional $5,000,000 worth of smaller tools in reserve for small arms. Of this amount, only $1,500,000 worth are in sight, he said, urging the toolmakers to prepare for the huge order.

CATHOLIC CHURCH AIDS SALVATION ARMY DRIVE

Pastor of St. Patrick's Cathedral Calls on Parishioners to Give to War Fund.

With only two days left in which to get the last $75,000 of New York City's quota of $250,000, the Salvation Army campaign was spurred yesterday by an appeal to Catholics to support the drive, which was issued by Mgr. M. J. Lavelle, pastor of St. Patrick's Cathedral, and secretary to Cardinal Farley. Addressed to all Catholics in the archdiocese, the appeal was:

"One of the most striking changes brought about by the war, and the necessity of raising great funds for charitable work under the direction of the various organizations best fitted for it, has been the practical razing of old walls of religious insularism. These various drives have brought Jew and Gentile, Catholic and Protestant, and the nondenominational shoulder to shoulder.

This war has had a wonderful effect in bringing people together, making them waive differences of religion and party, and causing them, without the slightest diminution of loyalty to individual belief, to join hand in hand and stand together in every enterprise calculated to promote the welfare of our common country.

"We Catholics have striven to do not only our share, but our utmost, in the financial support of the Government and of all the war charities. We appreciate cordially the aid we have received from our non-Catholic fellow citizens in the Catholic War Drive; consequently we are deeply concerned in the success of the Salvation Army's present drive. I wish it well, and shall lend it every assistance. We know that the money thus raised—like that of the Y. M. C. A. and the Jewish Society—will be wisely used for the welfare and comfort of our soldiers in the camps and on the battlefield. This unanimity of sentiment in the present issue, is of great value to the country at all times, but especially in these days of danger and stress."

At the headquarters of the campaign, 148 West Fourteenth Street, announcement was made last night that the campaign total now stood at $175,000. Among the larger givers were Cleveland H. Dodge & Co., $1,000; Mrs. R. A. Wellington, $1,000; Clarence MacKay, $1,000; Mrs. Walter Damrosch, $1,000; R. G. Dun & Co., $500; American Telephone and Telegraph Co., $1,000; New York Telephone Co., $1,000, and $500 from Liggett & Myers.

A factory girl, who has relatives at the front, approached a Salvation Army woman yesterday and tendered two $100 Liberty bonds. Investigation disclosed that the girl was trying to give away her entire savings, and the bonds were returned. The girl, highly indignant, said she could use her own money as she pleased, and mailed her contribution right into headquarters.

The high cost of living was completely forgotten yesterday when John Beck, manager of the American Lithographic Company, 52 East Nineteenth Street, called his employes together at noon and talked to them about helping the campaign. With R. E. Newberry, a member of the firm, he rounded up all the men in the big plant and started to auction off doughnuts at $2 apiece and pies at $1 a portion. The auction brought $1,045 in twenty minutes.

Commander Evangeline Booth yesterday issued an order directing all Salvation Army workers to give one day to helping the Red Cross in its drive next week, besides helping all they possibly could while pursuing their regular duties. The Salvationists have already donated forty-six ambulances to the Red Cross, and furnished several drivers, who have won honors.

$17,000,000 in Record Income Tax.

Yesterday was a record-breaking day in the collection of taxes in the Second, or Wall Street Internal Revenue District. Collector William H. Edwards's appeal for advance payments of individual and excess profits taxes met with a gratifying response, for at the close of business yesterday the Collector estimated the day's collections at $17,000,000.

WASHINGTON

An Order By Aerial Mail

There is nothing spectacular in receiving an order from Washington—in fact, almost every Washington mail brings us news of the needs of some of our Washington customers—but there is something thrilling about an order received by air-post.

We wanted to have an order by the first regular air postal service, so we asked one of our customers in Washington to send us one. We exercised every effort to fill the order with all possible dispatch.

22 minutes from the time we received the order the goods were speeding on the way back to Washington.

We reproduce the order, the envelope in which it came, and the return registered receipt for the merchandise sent. It may be of interest to note what was ordered:

"Marchioness" Gloves

Fine quality, pure silk, so well shaped that they seem almost moulded to the fingers. Made with double finger tips.

"Purple Top" Hosiery

The Silk Hosiery that is synonymous with quality. Reinforced at the soles, heels and toes so as to give the maximum wear. A heavy grade, of fine appearance.

"Marchioness" Silk Vests

Cut a bit longer than the average silk vest so that it stays well below the longest corset. Made with shoulder straps that stay in place.

N. B. This is the second order we have received by aeroplane post in our sixty years of making merchandising history. The first was from a customer in Chicago and was carried by Victor Carlstrom in The Times Aeroplane in 8 hours 28½ minutes actual flying time.

DEAD OF BATTLE ARE THERE

By FLOYD P. GIBBONS.

[Seventh Article.]

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY UNDER GENERAL FOCH IN FRANCE, May 16.—Leaving the cellar where I had spent the night with the Major I explored the town by daylight the next morning, noting the havoc wrought by the shells that had arrived in the night. I had thought in seeing the refugees moving southward along the roads that there was little in the variety of article, related to human existence, that they had failed to carry away with them. But inspection of the abandoned abodes of those unfortunate peasants was enough to convince one of the greater variety of things that had to be left behind. Old people have saving habits, and the French peasants pride themselves upon never throwing anything away.

Cottage rooms were littered with the discarded but saved clothing of ages. Old shoes and dresses, ceremonial high hats, and frock coats, brought forth only for weddings or a funeral, were mixed on the floor with children's toys, prayer books and broken china. Shutters and doors hang aslant by single hinges.

In the village inn mud had been tracked in by exploring feet and the red tiled floor was littered with straw and with pewter mugs that would be dear to the heart of an antiquary.

The ivory balls were gone from the dust-covered billiard table, but the six American soldiers billeted in the cellar beneath had overcome this discrepancy They enjoyed their afterdinner billiards just the same with three large wooden balls from a croquet court in the garden. The croquet ball is a romping substitute when it hits the green cushions.

That afternoon we laid more wire across the fields to the next town north. The men who do this job, in my opinion, are the most daring in any organization that depends for efficiency upon uninterrupted telephone communication. For them there is no shelter when a deluge of shells drops upon the field across which their wire is laid. Without protection of any kind from flying steel splinters, they must go to that spot to repair cut wires and restore communication. During one of the shelling spells I reached cover at the side of the road and prepared to await clearer weather.

In the distance down the road appeared a scudding cloud of dust. An occasional shell dropping close on either side of the road seemed to add speed to the apparition. As it drew closer I could see that it was a motorcycle of the three wheeled, bathtub variety. The rider on the cycle was bending over the handle bars and apparently giving it all there was, but the bulky figure that filled the side car rode with his head well back.

At every irregularity in the road the bathtub contraption bounced on its springs, bow and stern rising and falling like a small ship in a rough sea. Its nearer approach revealed that the giant torso apparent above the rim was encased in a double-breasted khaki garment, which might have marked the wearer as the master of a four-in-hand or a Mississippi River steamboat of the ante-bellum type. The shoulders thus draped were surmounted by a huge head which, by reason of its backward, star-gazing position, appeared mostly a chin and double chin. The whole was topped by a fat cigar, which sprouted upward from the elevated chin and at times gave forth clouds.

I was trying to decide whether the elevated chin posture of the passenger was the result of bravado or an Adam's apple when the scudding comet reached the shelter of the protecting bank in which was chiseled the dog kennel that I occupied. As the machine came to a halt, the chin depressed itself ninety degrees, and brought into view the smiling features of Irvin S. Cobb.

"I have neither a sensitive nose, a saw-edge collar, or an inordinate admiration for clouds," he explained, with reference to his stiff neck pose. "But George here," waving to the driver, "took a sudden inspiration for fast movement. The jolt almost took my head off, and the wind kept me from getting it back into position. George stuck his spurs into this flying bootblack stand just about the time something landed near us that sounded like a kitchen stove half loaded with window weights and window panes. I think George made the record for this road. I've named it Buh-Looney Boulevard."

When the firing subsided we parted, and I reached the next town without incident. It was almost vesper hour, or what had been the allotted time for that rite in these parts, when I entered the yard of the village church, located in an exposed position at the crossroads on the edge of the town. A sudden, unmistakable whirl sounded from above, and I threw myself on the ground just as a high velocity small calibre German shell registered a hit on the side of the nave where the roof and wall met.

While the steel splinters whistled through the air an avalanche of steel tiles slid down the slanting surface of the roof and fell in a clattering cascade on the graves in the yard below. I sought speedy shelter in the lee of the western wall. Several other shells had struck the churchyard, and one had landed on the final resting place of the family of Roger la Porte. The massive marble slab which sealed the top of the sunken vault had been heaved aside and one wall removed, leaving open to the gaze a view of eight caskets lying in a row.

Nearer were fresh mounds of yellow earth, surmounted by new and unpainted wooden crosses, on which were inscribed in pencil the names of French soldiers with the dates, indicating that their last sacrifice for the tricolor had been made ten days prior. At the head of each grave an ordinary beer bottle had been placed, neck downward, and through the glass one could see a paper scroll, on which the name, rank, and record of the dead man was preserved.

While I wondered at this method of identification, an American soldier came around the corner of the church, lighted a cigarette, and sat down on an old tombstone.

"Stick around if you want to hear something good," he said. "That is, if that last shell didn't burst the organ. There's a poilu comes up here every afternoon at 5 o'clock for the last three days and plays the sweetest music on the organ. It certainly is great. Reminds me of when I was an altar boy back in St. Paul."

We waited, and soon there came from the rickety old organ the soothing tones of reeds. Ancient pipes, sweetened by the benedictions of ages, poured forth a melody to the touch of one whose playing was simple but of the soul.

We sat silently among the graves as the rays of the dying sun brought to life new coloring in the leaded windows of stained glass behind which the soldier of France swayed at the ivory keyboard and heavenly harmony ignored that thing of death and destruction that might have arrived through the air at any minute.

FORSTMANN AGREES TO SHOW HIS BOOKS

Consents to Admit Expert When Attorney General Makes Drastic Order.

HEARING AWAITS REPORT

Government Wants to be Sure That Transfer of Stock in Woolen Mill Was Genuine.

The Forstmann & Huffmann Company of Parrais, one of the largest woolen goods manufacturing concerns in the United States, decided yesterday to permit James A. McKenna, the public accountant retained by A. Mitchell Palmer, the Alien Property Custodian, to examine its books. In the course of the hearing before Attorney General Lewis on Wednesday, which was called at the request of the Government to inquire into certain transfers of stock in the company from German to American control, Mr. McKenna testified that when he went to Passaic the Forstmann & Huffmann Company declined to let him make such an examination of the books as was necessary in the case.

Samuel Untermyer, attorney for Mr. Forstmann, at that hearing said that Mr. McKenna was not acceptable to his client, and said that any one of the numerous other accountants would be acceptable. Mr. Forstmann, when questioned by Attorney General Lewis, said that he declined to permit Mr. McKenna to make certain examinations as a result of advice given to him by Robert H. McCarter of Newark, one of his attorneys. The accounts which Mr. McKenna said he had been denied access to were the personal ones of Mr. Forstmann. The German stock in the company, which figures in the present investigation, was sold to Mr. Forstmann, who is an American citizen of German birth.

Mr. Untermyer told Attorney General Lewis that several accounting firms which he named would be acceptable to Mr. Forstmann. It was a case, according to the testimony, of anybody except Mr. McKenna, who was selected for the work by the Alien Property Custodian.

At the close of Wednesday's hearing, which was at times a very stormy one, Deputy Attorney General Becker served a subpoena on Mr. Forstmann which called for the production in New York of all the books which Mr. McKenna desires to inspect. Attorney General Lewis told him to have the books at the office of the Attorney General at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The service of the subpoena was entirely unexpected by Mr. Forstmann. He was informed by Mr. Becker that the purpose of the Government was to determine whether stock known to have been owned by enemy subjects had been transferred into bona fide American control and ownership, in other words, whether it is actually owned by American citizens or merely held by them for persons who are enemy subjects. Checks with which it is said Mr. Forstmann paid for the stock are in evidence, the total amount represented being $670,000.

Yesterday afternoon Deputy Attorney General Becker was informed that Mr. McKenna was acceptable to the woolen firm and that he would be permitted to make the examination he desired without interference. Mr. McKenna immediately got to work and the hearing was adjourned pending his report.

The investigation which Attorney General Lewis is making for the Government in order to ascertain whether the Germans had, or still have, in this country 1,000,000 Mauser rifles and over 1,000,000,000 rounds of rifle ammunition will be resumed at 10:30 o'clock next Wednesday morning. It was said yesterday that Mme. Gadski, wife of Captain Hans Tauscher, may be called as a witness in this case next week. Captain Tauscher is said to have negotiated for the sale of the guns to revolutionary elements in Russia.

Mme. Gadski is said to be a friend of a Countess von Sievers, who is also reported to know something about the guns. She may also be called as a witness. Freiherr von Gersdorff, who is said to have offered to arrange for the transfer of the guns to Russian revolutionists, it was said yesterday, is now in an internment prison. He may be brought to New York to testify as to what he knows about the matter.

Foot Valued Above Man's Life.

A jury before Supreme Court Justice Cohalan returned a verdict yesterday for $30,000 in a suit of Harry Stoffman, a shipping clerk for a hospital uniform manufacturing concern, because he lost his foot in an elevator accident in a Childs company building while loading packing cases containing Red Cross uniforms. Another jury before Justice Cohalan gave Mrs. Rebecca Cohen $25,000 for the death of her husband, Benjamin Cohen, proprietor of a Summer hotel at Mountaindale, Sullivan County, who fell between two cars on the New York, Ontario & Western Railroad and was killed.

Collect $29,500 for Hospital Fund.

Mrs. James Speyer, Treasurer of the Woman's Auxiliary of the United Hospital Fund of New York, announced yesterday that $29,500 had been received in contributions as a result of the special appeal sent out to continue the work of the organization. The money is greatly needed now owing to the extensive work planned in connection with the war. Mrs. Charles B. Alexander, President of the auxiliary, pointed out that the amount was the largest collected by any auxiliary with the exception of the Bankers and Brokers, of which Walter E. Frew is Treasurer.

FINDS SHIPWORKERS KEEN FOR VICTORY

Dr. Charles A. Eaton Declares Appointment of Schwab Has Stirred Men Under Him.

LIBERTY RAIL FOR SEDITION

Rides on a Heated Iron Pipe Now Employed by Workers to Suppress Disloyalty in Yards.

"The shipworkers can be trusted by the nation, and the more the nation trusts them the better work they will do," said Dr. Charles A. Eaton, head of the National Service Section of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, yesterday on his return from a four weeks' circuit of the country's shipyards. During his trip Dr. Eaton, who was commissioned to gauge the spirit of the men and to stimulate them to greater effort, visited 154 shipyards and addressed about 125,000 of the 350,000 workers.

Dr. Eaton said that every man in every yard was now awake to his responsibilities and that there had developed an inter-yard rivalry that was putting all the workers on their mettle "in the practice of the gospel of speed the ships." Discussing slacking and pro-German attempts to slow up the men, he declared that the enemy activities had been practically stamped out through the organization of the men themselves to fight them. Enemy agents, said Dr. Eaton, are being seized right and left, and those the Department of Justice doesn't get are given severe treatment by Vigilance Committees formed by their fellow workers.

"Out on the Pacific Coast," he said, "the men have what they call the 'Rail Committee.' This is formed of workmen and is charged with seeing that every hand in the yards is 100 per cent. American and on the job eight hours, six days a week. In a yard at Seattle the rail committee has an iron pipe which is called the 'Liberty Rail.' It is kept near the blacksmith's forge. When a workman utters a disloyal remark, fails to buy bonds or war savings stamps, or in other ways proves he is lukewarm, the rail committee waits on him. The Liberty rail is heated at the forge and the disloyal workman is ridden about the yards on the hot rail. At one time, I was told, there were 12 men in a Seattle hospital recovering from 'Liberty rail' rides.

Unpatriotic Get Rough Usage.

"I saw a man at one of the yards who failed to take off his hat one night when the national anthem was played during a change of shifts. This man was seized by the workmen and badly beaten before the guards could rescue him. These punishments, rough but earned, should indicate the men's mood toward anything or anybody that attempts to block the shipbuilders' determination to carry their work through rapidly and thoroughly.

"The appointment of Charles M. Schwab has had an inspiring effect on the men," he added. "They appeared to be crazy about him and to regard him as 'one of them.' To hear the shipmen talk you'd get the idea that the big boss was a man who when he wanted a little change from the monotony of speeding things up would slip into overalls and drive a few thousand rivets or put in a couple of hours at the brake of a hoisting crane."

Though he was convinced that the men had done much toward eliminating the insidious work of Germans and their sympathizers he cited an instance to show that efforts were still being made to tie up the ships. He said that when his party visited the plant of the Union Iron Works at San Francisco 7,500 men assembled to hear speeches. Just as one of Dr. Eaton's aids, A. Richmond Parkhurst, started his talk a Secret Service man edged up to the platform and warned the speaker not to go on. He said the Government had been informed that five Germans armed with bombs planned to enter the yards while the speechmaking was at its height and, taking advantage of the assemblage, wreck some of the ships then on the ways. While Mr. Parkhurst suspended his speech, Government agents went through the crowd and the half-finished ships, but without success. Dr. Eaton said that while the search for the Germans was being conducted bands of angry workmen followed the Secret Service men with shouts of "Turn them over to us!"

Dr. Eaton said that orders had been received extending the scope of his department to include patriotic campaigns to increase the output of all factories turning out materials which enter into ship construction. In all, about 3,000 factories will come under his supervision.

SHIPWORKERS ON STRIKE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, May 16.—Ignoring the agreement made by the Associated Shipworkers' Union with the Wage Adjustment Board and their promise not to strike during the war, 1,800 riveters and ironworkers at the Sparrows Point plant of the Bethlehem Ship Coporation threw down their tools today, completely tying up the work now under way. The men say they walked out because the bonus promised them last February by the Emergency Fleet Corporation has not yet been paid in full, and they say they will wait no longer for this extra money.

They were told by the officials of the company that a large office force was busy working out the new scale, and just as soon as it was completed they would receive their pay. Officials say the scale will be completed tomorrow, and the men will be paid immediately.

The Wage Adjustment Board of the Emergency Fleet Corporation at Washington has wired Acting President Weyant of the Riveters' Union to endeavor to adjust the differences.

NEW RIVETING RECORDS.

Gang at Sparrows Point Drives 4,875 in Nine Hours.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 16.—A gang of negro riveters working at the Sparrows Point Plant of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation broke the world's record for driving rivets in a steel steamship today. Charles Knight drove 4,875 three-quarter-inch rivets, 2⅝ inches long, in nine hours. The previous high record was 4,442, established in shipyard in Scotland.

The work was witnessed by W. Tinsley and Joseph O'Keefe, Inspectors of the United States Shipping Board, and other men prominent in the shipbuilding industry.

PORTLAND, ORE., May 16.—By drivign 4,089 rivets in nine hours, a crew at the shipyard of the Northwest Steel Company, working on the 8,800-ton steel steamer Westview, established today what is claimed as a new American record. The best previous performance in driving rivets was a total of 3,415 in nine hours, made by a crew at the Wyandotte plant of the Detroit Shipbuilding Company. The record claim for today's performance was telegraphed tonight to Chairman Hurley of the United States Shipping Board. The British record recently was reported as 4,422 in nine hours.

DRIVE 165 PILES IN ONE DAY.

Captain Bob Sutton and Crew at Hog Island Make a New Record.

"Bill" Gordon, section Captain at Hog Island, who established a record of having driven 140 piles in nine and a quarter hours, must look to his laurels, for Captain Bob Sutton and Engineer Stone have gone him one better. The Raymond Concrete Pile Company of 140 Cedar Street announced yesterday that in nine and a quarter hours on last Friday Captain Sutton and his crew drove 165 wooden piles, or approximately two miles of piling, continuous driving. The company has a contract for ten shipways of Group No. 2 at Hog Island.

Ever since the pile drivers at Port Newark announced they had laid down sixty piles in a working day the record has been going up. Captain "Bill" Gordon's crew placed seventy-eight in a working day, and later laid down 140 in record time. More than that they challenge any other pile-driving team, and now the crew headed by Bob Sutton has come to the front.

"Captain Sutton's record is the best record so far published," said P. D. Case, Secretary of the Raymond Company. "We shall be glad to hear of any one who beats it. In all fairness to Captain Sutton, we believe the title now goes to him."

MAYOR BRUSH TO FIGHT.

Says Mount Vernon Will Bar Hearst Papers Unless Stopped by Court.

Mayor Edward F. Brush of Mt. Vernon was served yesterday afternoon with a copy of the order of Justice Greenbaum, obtained by The New York American and The New York Evening Journal, restraining the Mayor and city officials from enforcing the ordinance against German newspapers and The American and Journal.

Mayor Brush said the city would answer the injunction, and added, that the ordinance would be enforced unless the injunction was made permanent. "The matter has been referred to the Corporation Counsel," he said, "and we are ready for any kind of a fight. We like a row in Mount Vernon. In this case we feel that we are on the right track, and will see it through to the end."

SUMMIT, N. J., May 16.—Posters notifying the citizens of Summit that newsdealers here have agreed not to sell The New York American and The New York Evening Journal were printed today at the order of Mayor Ruford Franklin, and will be posted in conspicuous places. Newsboys sent out by the Hearst Circulation Departments sold the papers on the streets today. They wore American flags around their left arms.

The Union News Company today repudiated the action of its agent, Max Knoller, in agreeing not to sell The American and Journal, and placed the papers on sale at its stands.

LEAGUE FOR VICTORY TO BRING PEACE

Taft Expresses Convention's Opposition to End of War on Other Terms.

OTHERS TAKE SAME STAND

Labor Goes on Record Anew Against Any Cohesion with Enemy for Negotiated Peace.

PHILADELPHIA, May 16.—Peace, but not without victory, was the slogan sounded by speakers at the opening session here today of the "Win the War for Permanent Peace" convention of the League to Enforce Peace. Ex-President William H. Taft, who presided, emphasized the fact that there could be no peace without victory, and declared that the American people should set their faces sternly toward one end—war.

"Let us have peace," said Mr. Taft, "but let us have war that we may have peace. To sound the trumpet for war to the end this convention was called.

"No one in the wildest flight of his imagination now can think of undefeated Germany yielding either proper indemnity to Belgium or justice to Alsace-Lorraine. Nor will the unconquered German ruling class consent to lift the German paw from prostrate Russia, or give over to decent rule the blood-stained Christian provinces of Turkey. If the wrongs of the oppressed are not righted the war will have been fought in vain.'

Many other speakers indorsed the sentiments expressed by Mr. Taft.

Delegates appointed by President Samuel Gompers to represent the American Federation of Labor and the American Alliance for Labor and Democracy at the convention presented a statement tonight indorsing the plan for a league of nations, but opposing international labor conferences during the war. The statement, it was announced, was drawn up at a conference in Washington at which Mr. Gompers presided.

Government Speaks for Nation.

"In times of war," the statement said, "we oppose conferences with the subjects of enemy countries for any purpose connected with the war or peace. In America, as in all other democracies at war, the Government speaks for the entire nation in all negotiations or conferences with enemy subjects or Governments in relation to foreign affairs. All persons or groups of persons who in open or private collusion with persons in enemy countries attempt to cause to be initiated or to influence peace negotiations or the conduct of the war independently of the Government are guilty of violating the fundamental principles of democratic Government, based upon the consent of the people."

The statement advocated the fixing of maximum prices of the necessities of life, urged the increase of war taxation for those who can stand it, Government regulation of rents, and the establishment by the Government of adequate housing facilities for war workers.

"We are opposed," it said, "to legislation for the suppression of the so-called nonessential industries."

The collapse of civilization in the next war, which he said must surely come if Germany is not conclusively defeated in this war, was pictured by Dr. Franklin H. Giddings of New York, Professor of Sociology and the History of Civilization in Columbia University.

"If the Central European powers shall obtain a substantial advantage by means of the war which they began in 1914," he said, "justice and democracy will have thenceforth for generations no safe abiding place in the world. If the Entente Allies lose the defensive war that they are now waging, a greater war will follow in which civilization will collapse. This is the monstrous peril that the civilized world faces today.

"There is but one way left to save civilization. It runs through battlefields from Amiens to Potsdam. The black flag of Germany must be lowered in unconditional surrender."

A League in the Trenches.

Speaking on the subject, "A Conflict of National Ideals," Oscar S. Straus, ex-Ambassador to Turkey, said in part:

"The allied young manhood in the trenches have already cemented a league of nations. Why need we wait longer to formulate what their blood and sacrifices have created and sanctified? Why not make sure that such a league as unites us now shall be continued and perpetuated for the future? The formation of such a league now during the continuance of the war will give added assurance not only to the allied but to the neutral nations as well as to the people of the world that we seek not the victory of conquest but the victory of justice, which all nations shall share equally, secured by the combined power of the combined nations.

George Wharton Pepper, Dr. A. Lawrence Lowell, President of Harvard University; Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, Lyman Abbott, Richard Heath Dabney, Robert McElroy, Charles B. Elliott, and W. Morgan Shuster were also speakers at the meetings, while telegrams expressing regret at being unable to be present were read from Viscount James Bryce, ex-British Ambassador to this country, and Cardinal Gibbons. The Cardinal wrote in part:

"The doctrine of might aand brute force must give way where the teachings of God find welcome and firm footing. May the convention enunciate more clearly than ever these same divine teachings, and thus aid in bringing about true, lasting, and permanent peace."

Mrs. Thomas J. Preston, the former Mrs. Grover Cleveland, presided at one of the sessions, and in taking the chair said the League to Enforce Peace never had deceived itself into the belief that it was living in a world that was ripe for the realization of its ideal. "This society," she said, "has never lent itself to wild visionaries, the 'peace-at-anyprice' people. On the contrary, it prevented these visionaries from destroying the moral courage of the American people."

$40,000,000 SUPPLY BASE FOR BROOKLYN

It was announced yesterday by the Turner Construction Company, 244 Madison Avenue, that it had obtained the contract for the erection of the supply base for overseas transportation, and that it will build for the War Department a freight and steamship terminal that will cost approximately $40,000,000. The new terminal will improve and enlarge the terminal facilities already in South Brooklyn. The new improvements will occupy the property located between Second Avenue and the pier head and between Fifty-eighth and Sixty-fifth Streets, South Brooklyn.

One feature of the plans is that it is proposed to erect the largest building, the company claims, that was ever built in the world. The plans for this and the other structures were prepared by Cass Gilbert, under the direction of General Goethals, Director of Storage, Transportation, and Purchase. The great building is to have 6,000,000 square feet of fireproof floor space, and will be approximately 1,000 feet square. It will take eight or nine stories to allow for this space under one roof, as the plan calls for the lighting of the building by one street and three courts.

9,000-Ton Tank Ship Launched.

QUINCY, Mass., May 16.—The 9,000-ton tanker George W. Barnes was launched at the Fore River Yard of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation today. Mrs. Edward L. Doheny of Los Angeles, wife of the President of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company, which contracted for the steamer, christened it as it started down the ways. The vessel is expected to be put in service by the end of this month. It has been taken over by the United States Shipping Board.

WHITMAN OPENS THIRD TERM FIGHT

SAYS 'WE HAVE MADE GOOD'

Three Hundred Women Among the Members of the County Committee Who Applaud His Declarations.

Governor Whitman made the opening speech last night in his campaign for re-election to a third term before the members of the New York County Republican Committee at its regular monthly meeting in Bryant Hall, Sixth Avenue near Forty-second Street. The hall was crowded with men and newly enfranchised women, who for the first time were present in large numbers at a meeting of the committee. They cheered and applauded when the Governor made his appearance and again after he had concluded his speech, which began with a patriotic appeal and ended with praise of his administration and a prediction that the achievements at Albany during the last four years would be rewarded by re-election for a third time.

"I am willing to assume full responsibility for all that has been done during the last four years by any of the Republican State officials who were elected with me," said the Governor. "It is all good. We have made good on every pledge that we made to the voters four years ago and two years ago."

The Governor appeared to be in very good humor. He made no reference to the Prohibition issue. He had praise even for the men who are preparing to place hurdles in the way of his third term ambitions. Even Attorney-General Merton E. Lewis, who already has announced his intention of entering the Republican primaries for the Gubernatorial nomination, was included in the kindly mention Governor Whitman made regarding the achievements of his elective associates in the State administration. After he had discussed the work of the other elective State officials, he added:

"What I have said regarding them may be said truthfully, too, regarding the Attorney General's office." This faint praise failed to evoke any enthusiasm or applause. The Governor made light of the opposition to his re-election.

"There may be opposition," he said. "It would be strange if there were not. Even in the same party all men cannot think alike with all other men on every subject. The world would be a dull place if they could. The only place where there is perfect harmony is the graveyard."

Samuel S. Koenig, Chairman of the Republican County Committee, introduced the Governor as a man who in his years of public service had "strengthened the belief of the people in the belief that the Republican Party is the party that should rule in New York State."

"We are Republicans, all of us," said the Governor after the applause had subsided. "We are Americans, all of us. And at this time when so much is happening in the world which concerns us as Americans we are not going to waste our time or energies on matters of purely political of partisan purport. First, last, and all the time, you and I as citizens are going to devote our time and our energies to the welfare of our country, its Government, its army and navy, and to whole-hearted support of our President. They are our Government, our army, our navy, and our President, and we are not going to let any small, mean, partisan political, or individual consideration interfere with the support we owe them in an emergency where issues vital to the future of our land, humanity, and civilization are at stake."

At this point Governor Whitman abruptly reminded his audience that he had been an active worker in the Republican County organization for twenty-six years and had begun his political life as an election district captain.

"The electorate of this State is not easily stampeded," he continued. "It has been shown again and again that the voters are wise and know what is going on. The general public is not very readily fooled. The people have not forgotten what was going on at Albany during the four years next preceding our coming into office. They have not forgotten how indictments dropped all over the State, as snow flakes in Winter, as a result of highway scandals."

Refers to Record Plurality.

The Governor recalled to his audience that after serving his first term, he was re-elected by a plurality of 169,000, the largest in the history of the State.

"The same things that are being said now were being said then and with just as much bitterness," said the Governor. "But we have been in office at Albany for four years and there has been no scandal so far as I know and no fraud, and that is more than can be said for any Administration that preceded us. Millions have been spent on the State highways during the last fifteen years. For the first time there is no charge that a single dollar has been misspent in the State Highway Department during the last three years and a half."

The Governor reviewed the work of some of the State departments and said they had done well.

"I am waiting with intense curiosity for any one to raise his voice against any man that I have appointed to office," he added. "I have appointed more Judges than any other Governor in the history of the State. I am proud of every one of them. I have appointed more men to public office during the last three years and a half than any other Governor who ever held office in this State. There has been no breath of scandal against any of them."

"The State Engineer is not under indictment, and that could not always be said about the State Engineer," Mr. Whitman said at another point in his speech. "The Barge Canal, now completed, will remain a monument to his administration."

In closing, Governor Whitman said that it was easy to deceive the people for a little while and easy dishonestly to misrepresent the motives of honest men in public office.

Tells of His Confidence.

"It is not easy to deceive for a long time 11,000,000 intelligent American citizens," he added. "Knowing the men in office at Albany, knowing what they have accomplished and the stuff they are made of and knowing the people, I am supremely confident that the people will say that the men who have faithfully served them in these turbulent times shall be suffered to continue to do for the people the things the people want done and in the manner that the people want them done."

Before he appeared at the meeting, Governor Whitman had been entertained at dinner at the Republican Club by Chairman Koenig. All the Republican district leaders, men and women, Mrs. John Francis Yawger, Chairman of the Women's Division of the Republican State Committee; Miss Helen Varick Boswell, head of the Women's Division of the Republican County Committee, and Republican State Chairman George A Glynn attended the dinner, too, as Mr. Koenig's guests.

Mrs. Yawger and Miss Boswell spoke briefly at the meeting of the committee, urging the women to come out and enroll a week from Saturday. There were fully 300 women in attendance at the meeting—a larger number than any that ever participated in a meeting of the committee.

It was announced that Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, would make an address at the June meeting of the County Committee.

LEWIS TO HIS DEPUTIES.

Wants Them to Feel Free to Support Whitman if They So Desire.

ALBANY, May 16.—Attorney General Merton E. Lewis notified all attachés of his office today that he did not desire his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Governor to cause them embarrassment. The notice, a copy of which was sent to each employe, follows:

"The fact that I have announced my candidacy for the nomination for Governor should not in any way be regarded by the deputies and employes of this office as embarrassing.

"All deputies and employes should, as the campaign progresses, feel perfectly free to exercise their own judgment as to their choice of candidates. No person in this department need hesitate as between Governor Whitman and me, nor fear loss of position as a result of the exercise of his political freedom in the pending primary campaign."

DUTCHESS FOR WHITMAN.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 16.—By a vote of thirty to seven the Republican County Committee of Dutchess this afternoon adopted resolutions indorsing Governor Whitman and his administration and pledging support to his candidacy for re-election. The resolutions also indorsed other State officials who are seeking re-election.

Sweet Indorsed for Governor.

OSWEGO, N. Y., May 16.—The Executive Committee of the Republican County Committee today passed a resolution pledging support to Thaddeus C. Sweet, Speaker of the Assembly, for the Republican nomination for Governor. Speaker Sweet, who was present, declared he was in the hands of his friends. It is expected he will wage active campaign for the nomination.

Women in Villages Now Enrolling.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 16.—Enrollment blanks for women voters in communities of less than 5,000 inhabitants are now being sent to the various Boards of Elections in counties of the State. This is provided for by the laws of 1918, which provided that women voters living outside of cities might enroll by affidavit any time from May 15 to June 15, but that women living in cities and who desire to enroll must do so on the fourth Saturday of May, between the hours of 8 A. M. and 10 P. M.

ANXIOUS ON ARMY COMPACT.

Viennese Uncertain as to Prussianizing Austrian Army.

ZURICH, May 16.—Publication of the contents of the military agreement arrived at by the German and Austrian Emperors at their conference is awaited with intense anxiety in Vienna, according to a dispatch to the Frankfurter Zeitung from the Austrian capital. The most important question is whether the agreement is so complete that the Austro-Hungarian Army will be permeated with the Prussian spirit as were the armies of the south German States after 1866.

In this event, it is added, the alliance would be deepened and completed in such a manner that the significance of other political and economic questions would recede into the background.

TAMMANY WOMEN TOLD HOW TO ENROLL

AIDS THRIFT STAMP SALE

Mrs. Belmont Attacks Democrats, Charging They Blocked Federal Amendment.

The Tammany Hall Executive Committee, on which women have equal representation with men, held a meeting yesterday at the Fourteenth Street headquarters and discussed at length the question of getting out a full enrollment of women Democrats on Saturday, May 25, the official enrollment day for women. Tammany leaders explained to the women present the importance of getting every Democratic woman in their districts to enroll.

Samples of enrollment ballots were given to the women and it was carefully explained just how to mark the ballots under the star, the Democratic emblem, so that the women would be eligible to vote in the primaries on Sept. 3. Alfred E. Smith of the Committee on War Savings and Thrift Stamps, made a report for the committee in which the suggestion was made and adopted that there be erected in every Democratic clubhouse in New York County a booth for the sale of the stamps.

The booths will be in charge of the men captains, while the women captains will be made a field force to visit every house and manufacturing building in the districts for the purpose of putting before the people the necessity for buying the stamps.

John F. Mulcahy, who was elected a few days ago leader of the Twenty-second Assembly District in place of Thomas F. McAvoy, who resigned, was installed as a member of the committee. The vacancies of women leaders in the Third, Fourth, Tenth, Eleventh, and Twentieth Assembly Districts were not filled as the district committees had not decided upon their selections.

The National Woman's Party, through its Chairman, Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont; its Acting Chairman, Mrs. John Winters Brannan, and its Legislative Chairman, Mrs. John Rogers, Jr., issued a statement yesterday attacking the address to women voters of the State, urging them to enroll as members of the Democratic Party, sent out by the Democratic State Committee on Wednesday. It said in part:

> It is amazing that Democrats dare ask the support of women, when it is now apparent that the Democratic Party is responsible for the blockade of the federal suffrage amendment in the United States Senate. Last Friday Senator Jones, a Democrat, who is in charge of the amendment, was forced to confess that if the measure was brought before the Senate, Democratic opposition would defeat it.
> The Republican Party, as its leaders stated on the floor of the Senate, is ready for a vote at any time, with two-thirds of the Republican membership pledged to support it. The votes lacking for its passage are Democratic votes. Women will never support a party so long as it refuses to apply to the women of the United States the liberty which half the world is struggling to preserve.

The Republican women of the Tenth Assembly District were instructed yesterday at their headquarters, 8 West Twenty-eighth Street, by Mrs. John Francis Yawger, State Chairman of the Women's Republican Party of New York, how to enroll. Mrs. Yawger said that following her tour throughout the State instructing women how to enroll there had been almost 100 per cent. increase added to the interest which was manifested by women voters prior to her tour.

Underwriters Elect Officers.

At the thirty-sixth annual meeting of the National Board of Marine Underwriters at the board rooms on Wednesday reports submitted by the various committees, the Treasurer and Acting Secretary outlined the work accomplished during the year were accepted with much satisfaction by the members. The officers elected were William H. McGee, President; H. K. Fowler, Vice President; Louis F. Burke, Treasurer, and Harry Bird, Secretary.

FIND JACOBUS BABY IN BRIDGEPORT JITNEY

Pearl Hayner, Held as Kidnapper, Says Mother Loaned Her the Child.

Shirley, the 5 months old daughter of Mr. and and Mrs. Max J. Jacobus of 227 West 121st Street, who was kidnapped on May 3, was restored to her parents last night, and Pearl Hayner, or Pearl Ferguson, which is her real name, is under arrest in Bridgeport, Conn. The arrest was made yesterday afternoon after weeks of patient work by Detective Conklin of the Fourth Brance Detective Bureau, who found the woman giving the baby an automobile ride. The baby wore a new dress and showed evidence, the detective said, of having been well cared for. The prisoner denied the kidnapping, and said that the baby had been loaned to her by Mrs. Jacobus.

Pearl Hayner, as Mrs. Jacobus knew her, lived next door to the Jacobus family. In March she volunteered to take care of the Jacobus children if she were given a home. This agreement was entered into, and the woman roomed with the family for a week. Then she left. She returned on May 3 and volunteered to take care of the children while Mrs. Jacobus went shopping. Shortly after the latter left the house the woman packed up the baby's clothing in a suitcase and departed. That was the last seen of her until yesterday.

On her last visit to Mrs. Jacobus the Hayner woman said she had married a James Bloise. Through the Bureau of Criminal Record the detectives found Bloise on Harts Island, where he was serving a short term for having narcotics in his possession. He denied marrying the Hayner woman, but said he knew her and he told the detectives who were her friends. Captain McKenna found that the alleged kidnapper's name was Pearl Ferguson and that she was the daughter of Ward Ferguson, a former Danbury hatter, now a resident of Lawrence, Mass. The girl, the police found, had been a checker in the College Inn and other restaurants; some in Coney Island. A friend was found who had heard her say that she was dissatisfied because New York was "shut up" and she was going to Bridgeport, where it was "wide open."

Detective Conklin went to Bridgeport yesterday and came across the woman and baby in a jitney. The woman admitted her identity at once and agreed to accompany the detective to the police station. She will be brought to New York today.

SUES DR. PETROVITCH.

Wife of Serbian Professor and Soldier Says He Was Cruel to Her.

Dr. Woislav M. Petrovitch, who was a college professor in Serbia when the war began and is now head of the division of Slavonic languages at the New York Public Library and author of a number of books, has been sued for a separation by Mrs. Vera D. Petrovitch, a native of North Dakota, whom he married on Aug. 9 last at the Fort Washington Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Petrovitch asked Justice Greenbaum for alimony pending the trial, and in her petition said that her husband began to treat her cruelly a month after their marriage, and that their life together has been unhappy ever since because of her husband's unjustifiable jealousy. They lived at the Nevada apartments, and at 24 and 82 West Eighty-second Street. The plaintiff submitted to the court fervent love letters written to her by her husband, in one of which he said:

"Our marriage was based on beauty and sentiment. It was a wonderful dream of which never shall I be bereft; short but intense. Few intense things last long."

Dr. Petrovitch said that his means are small, because his estates in Serbia have been confiscated. He fought in one of the most bloody battles of the war, he said, and has lost thirty-two relatives."

URGES REVENUE BILL IN LETTER TO WILSON

LETTER NOT MADE PUBLIC

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Representative Cordell Hull of Tennessee, recognized as an authority on taxation, today in a letter to President Wilson supported the argument advanced by Secretary McAdoo for an additional tax levy at this session of Congress. Thus Mr. Hull comes into conflict with the majority members of the Ways and Means Committee, including Chairman Kitchin.

His action has caused uneasiness among members who have been looking forward to an adjournment in July. The fact that the news of the receipt of the letter was given out at the White House caused the conclusion among many that President Wilson favors another revenue bill. Senators who have acted as Administration mouthpieces have been saying so, and the development of today is taken by many to mean that President Wilson sought the letter from Mr. Hull and in due time will make use of it in recommending to Congress a revenue measure before adjournment.

Mr. Hull's letter, on reaching the White House, was sent immediately to President Wilson. It will probably be given to the press later in the week if President Wilson agrees with the arguments advanced. Mr. Hull declined to make known its contents, saying its publication rested with the President.

It is understood, however, Mr. Hull advocated an additional inheritance tax, a heavy tax on luxuries, and a readjustment of the rates on incomes. He does not favor lowering the exemptions, which are $1,000 and $2,000, respectively, for single and married persons. He is in agreement with Representative Kitchin that the tax on excess profits should be increased enormously.

Mr. Hull's arguments, as they have been impressed upon his associates, are that there is need of more revenue without delay, and that if there is a postponement until the short session Congress will force through an ill-digested bill or pass none at all. With the Democratic majority in the Senate slight, there would be opportunity for a filibuster at the short session. Many Democrats in the Senate oppose further direct taxes for the prosecution of the war. If the revenue bill should be defeated, the Government would be forced to obtain additional revenue entirely by bond issues.

Postmaster General Burleson has informed members of the House that he will exert his influence with President Wilson to prevent revenue legislation before the November election.

Representative Kitchin said today that the attitude of Representative Hull had in no way affected him. He reiterated his opinion that there was no necessity for more revenue before early next year and said a better bill could be written after the Government had found just what revenues were needed.

When he meets Secretary McAdoo next week to discuss finances, Mr. Kitchin will present figures intended to show that there will be more than sufficient money to vigorously prosecute war activities until next March.

The total appropriations for the next fiscal year, Mr. Kitchin said today, would reach about $29,200,000,000, divided as follows:

Navy	1,500,000,000
Fortifications	6,000,000,000
Shipping	3,000,000,000
Loans	6,000,000,000
Ordinary	1,000,000,000

In the opinion of Mr. Kitchin, not more than $18,000,000,000 can be expended by the Government out of the fiscal appropriation for next year. It is estimated by him that more than $4,000,000,000 will represent the income from the present Revenue bill. In addition, he points out, the Government has obtained $6,000,000,000 in loans and has authorization to issue certificates of indebtedness for $7,000,000,000. Returns from miscellaneous sources, he said, would amount to $750,000,000. The Government, by March next, he continued, would have a total estimated income of about $18,000,000,000, more than would be required for its use up to March, by which time other revenue legislation could be put into operation.

CITY BREVITIES.

Columbia University adds another war course to its program today, when the department of extension teaching starts a course in military camouflage. The instruction will be open to "artists and mature students in various branches, painters, sculptors, architects, wood and metal workers, modelers, carvers, photographers, and other persons of allied qualifications."

The Lotos Club has issued in volume form the addresses given at the clubhouse at a dinner given March 27 in honor of the British Ambassador, the Earl of Reading. The collection bears the title "Across the Flood," and includes, in addition to the speeches of the evening by Frank R. Lawrence, President of the club; the Earl of Reading, Governor Charles S. Whitman, Charles E. Hughes, and Colonel George Harvey, a special message sent by cable by the British Premier, Lloyd George, to the American people, which was printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES, a poem by Lord Tennyson, the late poet laureate, and an extract from Schiller's "Invincible Armada" translated by the first Lord Lytton.

INDICTED AS LOAN THIEF.

McClair Alleged to Have Robber Young Woman Agent.

Herbery L. McClair was indicted yesterday, charged with the theft of $400 from the Liberty Loan booth at Rector's on April 9. McClair, it is alleged, impersonated Charles Gault, a student at Columbia University, stole his draft registration card and used it to have himself enrolled as a loan worker.

Charles H. Carr of A. B. Leach & Co., in charge of an uptown loan precinct, enrolled him as a volunteer canvasser under Gault's name. Then McClair, it is alleged, went to the branch of the Pacific Bank at Seventh Avenue and Forty-ninth Street and got permission to set up a Liberty Loan booth in the lobby.

Miss Edith S. Beaver-Webb of 31 Park Avenue had charge of the booth at Rector's. McClair, it is charged, introduced himself as the manager of the Pacific Bank booth, and when Miss Webb closed the booth at midnight asked her what she intended to do with the subscriptions and cash received. Miss Webb said she would wait until the Federal Reserve Bank collector came or leave the money, $400, with the restaurant cashier.

"That is not a safe method for your protection," McClair is alleged to have told her. "You had better lock it up in a vault of the Pacific Bank," offering to take charge of the money. McClair fled to Maine with the funds, where he was arrested on a charge of burglary made by the New Haven police.

Exhibit Anti-Aircraft Gun.

The New Studebaker LIGHT-SIX

Beautiful in Design — Thoroughly Modern — Mechanically Right

The quality of this car is apparent in its beautiful lines and perfected mechanism; and the little details show it, too. Notice:

—the fine, hand-applied finish (24 operations)
—the "Sherardised" (non-rustable) bright parts
—the accurately-fitted, smooth-closing doors
—the simple, convenient device for holding doors ajar
—the good hardware throughout —the combination robe-and-hand rail
—the "two-range" carburetor—a wonderful saver of gasoline and "a big help" to power and speed —the carefully worked-out, comfortable seat positions
—the French-pleated upholstery, soft and deep
—the real foot-rest in the tonneau
—the mahogany glove-box in the back of the front seat
—the quality of the accessories
—the neat, protected speedometer-drive
—the oil-cups instead of grease-cups throughout —the accessibility of all parts

Flexible Shank Construction

Are Your Feet Comfortable?

THERE are Walk-Over shoes to relieve and correct foot troubles. You may have a weak arch which can be relieved by a Walk-Over Corrective Shoe made with a stiff shank. If the trouble is not acute a shoe with a flexible shank would be better. No one type of shoe can possibly correct all the many forms of foot and arch abnormality.

Walk-Over store salesmen are especially trained to diagnose conditions and to prescribe the proper shoe.

By the way, when a pair of Walk-Over Corrective Shoes have relieved your foot troubles you need not wear them all the time. But they are so comfortable, yet modish, that you may want to do so.

Walk-Over Shoes are manufactured at Campello, Brockton, Mass., are sold in all the important towns and cities of the world, and the world over bear the same trade-mark.

PLAN FOR CAMPAIGN TO AID RED CROSS

Davison in Unannounced Speech Says, "We Are at War for Our Lives."

The Merchants' Association gave a luncheon at the Astor Hotel yesterday at which plans were discussed for the coming campaign in New York to raise the city's $25,000,000 quota of the $100,000,000 Red Cross War Fund, and at the same time the 500 guests heard from Henry P. Davison, Chairman of the War Council of the American Red Cross, and others of the work the American Red Cross is doing on a dozen battlefields.

Mr. Davison was an unexpected guest, remaining only a few minutes. He explained that he was on his way to his home and had not yet had time to see his family since his return from Europe. In a speech which caused much enthusiasm Mr. Davison said:

"I have just come back from the war zone, and I only want to tell you one or two things. In the first place, we are at war for our lives. The situation is serious, but we are going to win this war.

"I was delighted to find that every one of our commissions in Europe is inspired with the thought that it is not the Red Cross, it is the American people, and that every act of the Red Cross is done in the name of the American people. You may have been told something of the work in France. There may be language in which to express the work of the American people there, but I certainly have not the language to express the valor and the courage and the wonderful conduct of the French people and the French soldiers. Well, we have some boys over there, and you will hear more of them and more from them.

"In France, the reception which is given to the American people is not only touching, but it shows a desire on their part to reach their hands to us as we are endeavoring to reach our hands to them; and the same may be said of Italy.

"I have never been more surprised than I was when I had covered the country of Italy and found the appreciation of the service, of the help, and of the comfort which had been given to the Italian people by the American people. I learned something about Italy, and I want to cite one little instance from which you will get the lesson that I myself had.

"When I arrived in Italy, it was just after the most serious part of the offensive. It was eight days after the beginning of the offensive, or, on the 29th of March. We were bound that the American Red Cross, through its commission in Italy, should leave nothing undone which would immediately give greater courage to the Italian people and to the Italian forces. In order that nothing should be left undone, we had a conference in my room at the hotel. At that conference there were three very distinguished, important Italian men—important in the affairs of Italy. We discussel the situation, and then I asked Colonel Perkins, the head of our commission, if he would step outside, that I wanted to have a word with him, and I said to him: 'What would you think of our doing something now in rather a large way for the Italian Red Cross?

"'Well,' he said, 'I am not quite sure.' I said, 'What would you think of my submitting that to the Italians?' He said, 'I should think very well of it.'

"I then went into the room and called Major Byrne aside, and I put the question to him, and he replied as did Colonel Perkins. I then submitted the proposition to the three Italians. I said, "The American people wish nothing left undone which will immediately cause greater spirit in your people and to your forces. We would like to give you a substantial amount of money to be used through your Italian Red Cross.

"They said it was a new thought, and they should like to consider it; so they withdrew. In a few moments they came back and said:

"We cannot express to you our appreciation of your offer, but we really believe that it is not wise, now, for us to accept that money from you, because we do not quite see how that, of itself, would serve the purpose you are seeking to attain.

"I want to say that throughout Italy we found that same attitude," Mr. Davison continued. "We are not giving our money to people standing with their hands outreached to get it. We are only working in close co-operation and harmony with those people that appreciate it as we do ourselves."

Emergency Force of the War.

"You know," he said, "the Red Cross is officially recognized by both army and navy. You know that the Red Cross is really a doctor, a nurse, a comforter and friend of those who have gone to the other side. It is the great emergency force in this war, and it deserves your support on that ground, if for no other. One year ago, the American people were asked to raise $100,000,000, but this time it will not be on faith. It will be upon a record of achievement unparalleled in history.

"The War Council has fixed the quota for the City of New York at $25,000,000. This is one-quarter of the entire fund. The Liberty Loan quota for this district was one-third of the entire amount. I have heard people say that that was too large an amount in proportion to our population; and they are correct in that. I have heard them say that it was too large an amount in proportion to our wealth; I am uncertain about that. But I have not heard any man say that it was too large in proportion to the expression of the patriotism and the determination of New York to stand behind its men who are over there."

Mr. Breed said that committees had been selected which would see to it that every man, woman, and child in the five boroughs of New York was informed of the needs of the Red Cross. He said that in the last campaign there were 21,000 subscribers to the war fund, but he expected this time to see 500,000 names on the list.

Hugues Leroux, former editor of Le Matin and at the present in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in France, followed Mr. Breed. He spoke as a Frenchman conveying to America, France's message of gratitude for the Red Cross and respect for the Red Cross Workers in Europe.

"You have come to help us," said M. Leroux after describing the fraternal feeling which has been growing along the first line trenches between the poilu and the Yankee. "I must use the word help, although you never use it. You are speaking of shoulder to shoulder and heart to heart, but never use the word help. But we use it. I don't think I need to tell you that our soldiers are not at all broken up. You know they are not. Behind the lines there are fathers and mothers and wives and children, a little exhausted, all in mourning, who felt that we were alone.

"There were 40,000,000 inhabitants in France before the war. A million and a half were killed, men from 20 to 45. The poilus just now fighting are boys from 20 to 23, or men from 35 to 40.

Says France Will Not Forget.

"It was time to come and to help, and you did. And we shall never, never forget that the great American Red Cross came as the Spring comes before the Summer. That we shall never forget."

M. Leroux closed with a tribute to the Red Cross nurses.

"What are you doing for our soldiers?" he said. "Let me tell you. I recently happened to be at Apernaix, one of the junctions of our railroads, where your Red Cross nurses are awaiting our soldiers when they come from the front. When they are coming home, to go to the front again, you know they are tired and want to be comforted; and there are the Red Cross nurses waiting in the snow, in the rain, and in the darkness for them. These dear Red Cross American women are there helping them."

The last speaker was Mrs. August Belmont, who was a special Commissioner for the Red Cross in Europe. Mrs. Belmont told from personal observation of the courage and fortitude of the fighting men of England, France, and America. She emphasized the needs of having a well-equipped Red Cross organization at the front. She told also of the wonderful feeling of comradeship growing between America and France and England through common suffering and common heroism.

Rabbis Appeal for the Fund.

Following the conference of Rabbis and Jewish editors held in the Educational Alliance last Monday, a letter was issued by the Rabbinical Association yesterday urging the Jews of America to subscribe generously to the Red Cross fund. Among those who signed the letter were B. Drachman, President of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America; H. Pereira Mendes, Chairman of the Executive Committee of Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America; Rabbi H. S. Margolies, Rabbi Ph. Klein, Rabbi S. E. Jaffe, Rabbi J. Rosenberg, Rabbi J. Segal, Rabbi L. Sliver, Rabbi M. L. Prell, Rabbi B. Revel, Rabbi J. Kanovitz, and Rabbi J. Jackson.

More than 100 New York hotels announced yesterday through the Hotel Men's Association that they would give 10 per cent. of one day's receipts to the fund.

Twelve thousand pamphlets were sent yesterday to corporations in New York City asking for subscriptions to the Red Cross Fund. The pamphlet contains copies of the statutes enacted by the Legislatures of New York and New Jersey empowering corporations to make direct contributions to the Red Cross.

Bernard K. Marcus, Vice President of the Bank of the United States, Chairman of the East Side Red Cross Division, held a conference yesterday with 300 business men of the east side. Mr. Marcus asked for a store-to-store canvass.

Police Commissioner Enright said yesterday that the police would aid in the campaign for the Red Cross Fund. Patrolmen, he said, would be asked to give a certain sum each month for a whole year. It was hoped, the Commissioner said, that the Police Department would raise at least $50,000.

There will be a lawn fete today on the reservation at Fort Hamilton for the benefit of the Red Cross. There will be a bayonet drill and an exhibition drill by the Coast Artillery.

A dinner to H. P. Davison will be given tonight in the Hotel Astor to celebrate Mr. Davison's return from the war front. Five hundred invitations have been sent to the Presidents and other chief executives of the leading corporations of this part of the country.

President to Come Here Today.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—President Wilson will go to New York tomorrow, to remain until Saturday night, when he is to open the war relief fund campaign of the American Red Cross by addressing a mass meeting in the Metropolitan Opera House.

RETURNS SURE OF VICTORY

Henry P. Davison, Chairman of the War Council of the American Red Cross, returned yesterday after spending nearly three months abroad in inspecting in allied countries the work of the Red Cross. He saw the troops of the Allies at their best when they were pouring to the front to resist the German drive, and he saw evidences of the Hun at his worst, bombing the civilian population of towns and villages, and killing women and children in Paris with his long-range gun. Mr. Davison returned very optimistic over the outlook for the Allies.

"Italy has come back," he said in reply to a questioner.

"This war is still in a very serious stage, and the demands upon our people for sacrifice and support of it are greater than ever before," Mr. Davison said. "There is no occasion for anything but confidence, but that confidence must be based upon determined effort and willingness on the part of every man and woman to do his or her part. Our boys, as they arrive in France, are showing the most wonderful spirit. They go into action with dash and bravery which is the talk of all Europe. But the price that will have to be paid for victory will be very heavy, and it will be some time before our boys can become as effective as they must be to help England, France, Italy, and Belgium with the victory that must be won.

"The outstanding feature of German method at the present time is the effort to terrorize the women, children, and old men at home. While the German troops are making their drive on the front, airplanes nearly every night are bombing towns behind the lines with the deliberate and declared purpose of terrorizing civilians. The purpose of the fight behind the lines is to break down the morale of the civilian population to such a point that they will importune their Government for peace.

"I was in Paris on many of the days on which the long-range gun was bombarding the city. That gun does comparatively little damage and is wholly intended to get on the nerves of the people at home.

Red Cross Upholds Morale.

"One of the great missions of the Red Cross has been to attempt to uphold the morale of the people at home. We have workers all over Italy and France carrying a message of comfort and cheer, helping especially to care for the refugees driven away from their homes, to care for the children and to provide for the sick and needy, particularly among the families of soldiers.

"In France, we are carrying on direct work in 121 cities and towns, 58 out of the total of 82 departments or counties of the republic being covered by American Red Cross activities. In Italy, we conduct direct activities in 45 cities and towns and we extend relief in 218 other places. Among Belgian refugees in France our work is on a similar scale.

"The gratitude the people feel for what the American people are doing through the Red Cross is beyond description.

"The way these people of our allies hold out their hands and look to America as the land of hope and promise, and as the great fact that makes certain that German might shall not prevail, is most stirring. America is today a rainbow toward which Western Europe, from the north of Scotland to the south of Italy, looks as the sign of comfort, hope, and victory.

"We have 3,000 American workers throughout the countries of our allies and these workers are succeeding to an extent that would be difficult to describe, not alone in carrying relief to these peoples, who are suffering and enduring for us as well as for themselves, but also in conveying to them a consciousness of the finest side of American life. It is all going to constitute, when the war is over, the strongest possible tie to hold the nations together in an enduring peace.

Conferred with Pershing.

"I went through the American Army zone, especially to see in what way the Red Cross could reinforce the work of our own army in caring for our own troops. I had conferences with General Pershing, with his chief medical officers, as well as many civilian officers, and men in the army. They told me that the work of our Red Cross was being conducted with wonderful efficiency and fidelity to what the American people would want to have done.

"Right here I want to say that throughout Europe I was impressed with the value and effectiveness of the voluntary work the women of America are doing in their Red Cross workrooms.

"We are serving both the French and American soldiers right up behind the lines with rolling canteens, and also providing rest stations and canteens at railroad stations. The soldiers tell us that the food and hot drinks that we bring them are of enormous comfort, but, above all else, is the satisfaction they have of feeling that some one is there who is not compelled to be there to give them a helping hand—some one representing home.

"Our Home Communication Service has just been fully organized. It searches for American soldiers in all the hospitals, writes letters for them, and to any man, sick or well, offers home help in whatever form it may be needed.

"The American Red Cross is itself operating thirteen hospitals in France, two in Italy, and five in England. We are also operating a large number of dispensaries in France, England, and among the Belgians.

"On the eve of our War Fund Drive next week, I would like to say that I have no question whatever that the American people will contribute the money which is necessary to carry on the work of the American Red Cross."

"A sailor—Christopher C. Reilly—discovered Ricoro," said the Inspector of the Port.

"In going thru the ship's papers one night, I bemoaned the fact I had smoked my last cigar.

"'Would you smoke one of mine, Sir?' said Reilly, producing two fine-looking smokes.

"As I puffed away I couldn't help remarking—'Sailors will be sailors—these cigars taste like the captain's.'

"Reilly grinned. 'Right you are, sir, they are the same kind—the cabin boy put me wise—they're Ricoros at 7c.'

They cost more why?

PIERCE-ARROW trucks cost more than other trucks. They cost more because they cost more to build. They cost more to build because they are built to deliver a greater service—to do more work, to do it in less time, with less idle time, with fewer interruptions, and over a longer period of years than any other truck. That is why they are higher priced.

Price is fixed strictly on cost plus a reasonable profit. A less cost or a smaller profit would jeopardize both the character and continuance of the service. To cheapen construction in any element would endanger the delivery of the service which has made the preeminent reputation of the

Motor Trucks

This reputation is not built on what we say of the trucks. We say little. It is built on what owners say of them. They say much and say it enthusiastically. The more they have tested Pierce-Arrows in comparison with other trucks, the more enthusiastic they are. Most significant tests are made by contractors. Examine their records:

The Degnon Contracting Company used 6 Pierce-Arrow trucks so successfully hauling heavy loads of rock in the subway excavations in lower New York in spite of congested traffic, that it bought three additional Pierce-Arrows for similar work on the Seventh Avenue and 59th Street Subways.

The Warner Quinlan Asphalt Company of Syracuse operates 7 Pierce-Arrow trucks which average 100 miles a day on street paving and road building contracts and have an exceptional record for efficiency and economy.

Seven Pierce-Arrow trucks hauled for the George H. Pride Company 10,000 tons of iron ore over the roughest roads in the Adirondack Mountains, to the nearest railroad station after horses and traction engines had failed completely. The trucks made the 46 mile round trip in 5¼ hours. Running day and night, each truck averaged 160 miles a day.

We could multiply instances like these, but we prefer to tell you what Pierce-Arrows have done in situations like yours, if you will ask us.

ONE TALLY ENOUGH TO WIN FOR YANKS

BAKER'S TIMELY HIT WINS

Third Baseman of Huggins's Tribe Brings Gilhooley Home with Run That Beats Browns.

Until yesterday, the meekest lamb in baseball was Walter Pipp, the long, silent custodian of first base for the Yankees. He is possessed of as much patience as Job, but the serenity of his nature was broken yesterday when Umpire Dick Nallin called him out on strikes at the Polo Grounds. It was in the fifth inning, and there were two runners aboard the bases when Pipp came to the bat.

Pipp half waved his bat at a ball which Nallin called the third strike, and Pipp turned loose all the opinions he has been storing up in his mind about umpires for years. Manager Huggins backed up Pipp in his protest, and the first baseman was exiled to the club house for the first time since he has been in the major leagues. Huggins was also invited to stick to the bench. The Yanks won the game anyway by a score of 1 to 0.

Herb Thormahlen gave further proof that he is a pitcher of parts. He held the Browns to four hits and was remarkably effective when he should have been. Bert Gallia gave the Yanks a lot of trouble, except in one inning, the fifth, when Huggins's lads managed to shove over a run.

Gilhooley started out in the fifth by bouncing a sizzling hit of Jimmy Austin's glove at third. Peck sent the runner along to second with a sacrifice, and Frank Baker cracked a single to centre which sent Gilhooley over the plate with the one precious run which was so badly needed to break up the pitchers' battle between Thormahlen and Gallia.

Pratt got a pass, and he and Baker worked a double steal, and with these players perched patiently on third and second, Pipp came up to the bat. Pipp was overanxious to get a hit to score the two impending runs, and he was highly incensed when Umpire Nallin called him out on strikes. It was such an unusual thing for Pipp to kick at a decision that he immediately won the support of the crowd, and Pipp gave the umpire a large piece of his mind after throwing his bat high in the air.

Huggins tried to quiet Pipp, for when there is any opinion to be handed to the umpire, Huggins retains that privilege for himself. That is one of the reasons why they have baseball managers. Nallin sent Pipp home to his dinner and told Huggins to remain silent at some inconspicuous spot in the shadows of the bench.

There was still a chance for the Yankees to get the two runs which Pipp tried so hard to drive in, for Ping Bodie was the next batter up. Ping, however, died on a pop fly to Hendryx in left field. The Yanks had Gallia worried again in the next inning, when, with two out, Thormahlen walked, and went to third on Gilhooley's two-base smash to right. Peck was hit by a lurid pitch and filled the bases.

With Baker at bat, the crowd jumped up and beseeched the home-run slugger to plant the ball into the grand stand, but no such thing happened. Baker lifted a high fly to Johnny Tobin in centre field. Zinn Beck played first after Pipp had been ejected, and when Pratt singled in the seventh, Beck sacrificed him to second. Bodie got a pass, and there was an excellent chance for Marsans to clean up. The Cuban spilled the beans by hitting into a double play.

PHILADELPHIA, May 16.—After making a muff that allowed Cleveland to tie the score in the ninth, Clarence Walker drove in the winning run in the latter half of the inning, and Philadelphia emerged victorious, 6 to 5, after two hours and twenty-three minutes of wild baseball. Fourteen errors were marked up.

The Athletics obtained a three-run lead on a fumble by Wambsgans, three stolen bases, and three wild throws by Catcher Peters. After his fourth wild throw Peters was spiked by Shannon and had to retire. First Baseman Williams went behind the bat and Wood played first.

TONEY TERRORIZES M'GRAW'S BATSMEN

CINCINNATI, Ohio, May 16.—Fred Toney, always a hard man for the Giants to beat, again asserted his superiority over McGraw's men today, blanking the league leaders 3 to 0. The right-hander limited the Giants' allowance of hits to seven, and these were judiciously distributed over the nine innings.

Jeff Tesreau, on the other hand, was not very effective and suffered his first defeat of the season. Jeff gave way to a pinch hitter in the seventh and Al Demaree finished the game.

Groh, on his initial appearance at the plate, singled to centre. He was forced by Lee Magee, who stole second, only to be picked off that bag a moment later on Tesreau's snap throw to Fletcher. Roush tripled over Burns's head. McCarty then let one of Jeff's offerings get by him and Roush raced home. Tesreau kept the Reds from scoring again until the sixth, but in that frame they got to him for two runs, which, as it developed, were superfluous.

Lee Magee led off with a double to left and took third on a passed ball. Roush beat out a slow roller in front of the plate, Lee Magee being held at third, and then stole second. Sherwood Magee came through with a timely drive, a triple to right, that scored Lee Magee and Roush. Sherwood was left stranded at the far corner, as Griffith was tossed out by Tesreau, Neale died on a short drive to Burns and Blackburne flied to Kauff.

Toney was the Giants' master at every stage of the game except for a few moments in the seventh inning, when he lost his control temporarily. The New Yorkers tried hard to take advantage of the opening offered by the big fellow's wildness, but he shut down on them in time to prevent any scoring.

After Zimmerman and Fletcher had been retired in that inning, Holke beat out an infield hit and McCarty walked. Manager McGraw hastily withdrew Rodriguez from the batting order and sent Wilhoit up to bat for the little Cuban. Wilhoit waited Toney out and drew a pass, and Thorpe was ordered to hit for Tesreau. At this point Toney regained his effectiveness and fanned the big Indian.

CHICAGO, May 16.—Philadelphia hit Chicago's pitchers opportunely today and made it two straight, winning 6 to 5. Mayer weakened in the ninth when Chicago started its belated rally and retired in favor of Oeschger, with the tying run on second base. The locals outhit the visitors, but snappy fielding behind Mayer kept down the score.

LARRY DOYLE IMPROVING.

The condition of Larry Doyle, second baseman of the Giants, was reported at the New York Post-Graduate Hospital last night to be very much improved. Doyle was operated upon Tuesday for intestinal trouble, but he is confident that he will be able to resume playing with the club when it returns to the Polo Grounds, after the Western trip on June 1.

Doyle's absence has noticeably weakened the batting strength of McGraw's club, for up to the time he was forced to leave the team, after the Boston series, he was hitting the ball at a .430 gait.

SANDERS JOLTS SUPERBAS.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., May 16.—The Pittsburgh Pirates surprised the Brooklyn Superbas today just when it looked like another victory for Manager Robby's boys, winning by 4 to 3. The work of the young Pirate pitcher, Roy Sanders, secured from Kansas City this Spring, was too much for the visitors after he had relieved Elmer Jacobs.

The latter had sent the Brooklyns back to the bench in order in the first four innings, but he slipped a cog, and after two runs were over on four hits and a walk and the bases full, Sanders was rushed to the scene. The first man to face him was O'Mara, who sent out a sacrifice fly to Carey, and Krueger scored the third run. Sanders then filled the bags again by walking Zack Wheat, but he fanned Hi Myers and the side was retired.

In the very next inning Sanders got into the limelight and incidentally won the game for his side. The Pirates had bunched three hits in the fourth inning, but they got only one run and went down with three men on, but in the sixth they got four more hits, which netted three runs, enough to win.

Bigbee took King's place at bat and coaxed a walk, stayed on first while McKechnie fouled out, but reached second on Schmidt's safe blow, and both these runners crossed the plate on a mighty swipe for three bases by Sanders, tying the score.

Caton lined the ball at Coombs, who threw the runner out at first, holding Sanders at third, but Mollwitz bounced the ball off Johnston's shins for two bags, which gave Sanders a chance to score what was eventually the winning run.

The Pirates' first run was a cheap one, as Wheat lost Cutshaw's high fly in the sun, and the former Robin reached third, scoring on McKechnie's single past short. The visitors got a man to third in the eighth inning with only one out, but Hickman struck out and the next man was easy.

CREWS REACH ANNAPOLIS.

Columbia 'Varsity Boat's Outriggers Smashed During Trip.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 16.—The 'Varsity crew of Columbia and the Syracuse freshmen arrived in Annapolis this afternoon for the regatta of the American Rowing Association, which takes place here Saturday and the 'Varsity and freshman crews of the University of Pennsylvania are expected late tonight.

Only the Syracusans were able to get on the water, as the outriggers of Columbia's boat were smashed on the trip down and had to be fixed in the academy shops. There are prospects of fine conditions and good races. Pennsylvania, Columbia, and the Naval Academy will contest in the main event and Pennsylvania, Syracuse, and the Naval Academy in the freshman race.

REACH FINAL ROUND IN HARLEM TENNIS

Tilden and Bassford Gain Brackets by Victories Over Richards and Hathaway.

William T. Tilden, 2d, of Philadelphia and Henry Bassford reached the final round of the Harlem Lawn Tennis Club's open tournament as a result of yesterday's play. Tilden won his way through to the advanced position by defeating two opponents during the course of the afternoon. In the fourth round he was pressed to rather a lively match by A. Von Bernuth of Columbia, the score being 6—4, 6—4. In the semi-final round the Philadelphia expert raced through to an easy victory over the national boys' champion, Vincent Richards, with the score 6—1, 6—3. Bassford gained his final-round bracket by vanquishing the formidable one-armed expert, Harrison R. Hathaway, whose play in earlier rounds was the sensational feature of the tournament. Three sets were necessary, Bassford winning at 3—6, 6—2, 6—1.

The doubles tournament, which started on Wednesday, showed many defaults yesterday. Of a number of matches that were scheduled, only two were actually contested. In both of these the team of Tilden and Cecil Donaldson proved victorious. In the first round the victims were L. Bry and B. Landau, the score against them being 6—2, 6—3. In the next round Tilden and Donaldson defeated the Georgetown team of H. B. and J. S. O'Boyle at 6—3, 6—1.

Chief interest centred in the singles events. It had been generally agreed after the draw was made that Tilden, one of the most capable players of the game, would experience little difficulty in making his way through to the final round in the upper half of the event. Von Bernuth, in the fourth round, however, gave Tilden a hard battle, but in the semi-final, when opposing Richards, Tilden romped along without ever being in danger. Richards was bothered greatly by Tilden's severe service, although he handled the second twist service rather well. His game, however, was not nearly strong enough to give him a chance against Tilden's severe play from the forecourt.

The one-armed player Hathaway for a little time seemed about to establish himself in a final-round position. In the first set he completely outplayed Bassford, his volleying and smashing forcing the latter to defensive tactics. In the second and third sets he seemed to tire, and, with his play lacking much of its usual severity, Bassford forced his way through to victory. Toward the close Hathaway was being passed with disconcerting regularity as he endeavored to reach the net.

The summaries:

Semi-final Round—W. T. Tilden defeated Vincent Richerds, 6—1, 6—3; Henry Bassford defeated H. R. Hathaway, 3—6, 6—2, 6—1.

Doubles.—First Round—Martin and Mersereau won from Buchner and partner by default; Richards and Fischer won from Nehring and partner by default; Tilden and Donaldson defeated Bry and Landau, 6—2, 6—3; H. B. O'Boyle and J. S. O'Boyle won from Collom and Kirk by default.

Second Round—Tilden and Donaldson defeated H. B. O'Boyle and J. S. O'Boyle, 6—3, 6—1.

CAMPFIRE WEAKENS AT END

Racing on New York tracks for the season of 1918 was ushered in yesterday at Jamaica by the Metropolitan Jockey Club, under conditions that augur well for a successful campaign. There was no dense crowd to welcome the thoroughbreds back to local competition, but the attendance was larger than a year ago, the fields well filled with horses of fair class, and the crowd showed enthusiasm over the three races in which the public choices came galloping home.

Perhaps the greatest disappointment was the failure of Campfire, the popular favorite, to win the Paumonok Handicap at six furlongs, which was the feature of the program. The two-year-old champion of 1916 appeared to be leniently treated by the handicapper, but the result proved that official to be right as usual.

Campfire, carrying top weight, was made an even money favorite, but he failed when the pinch came, as in most of his races last year, the honor of winning the first important local race going to the Beverwyck Stable's Old Koenig, while R. F. Carman's Startling outgamed Campfire for the place. The time of 1:12 2-5 is only two-fifths of a second slower than the track record.

Notter, a master rider in his day, has again taken up active work in the saddle, and he had the distinction of riding Mrs. C. W. Starr's War Zone, which was the first horse to step on the track in response to the gladdening notes of the first bugle call. The superstitious trembled as it was noticed that thirteen horses were carded for the opening event, but in this instance the number thirteen was lucky. It was the post position assigned to W. S. Sharton's Dottie Vandeveer, a two-year-old which gained renown in Maryland under the name of Mrs. Kate Leydecker. Neither the change of name, nor the outside berth had any effect on this youngster's speed, for she was driven into the lead in the first eighth and galloped home an easy winner.

Campfire Falters Near Finish.

H. P. Whitney's Tumbler and W. C. Clancy's Royal Ensign were withdrawn from the Paumonok, leaving eight to go to the post. With Campfire an overwhelming favorite, Old Koenig was made second choice on the strength of recent trials, and High Noon, Startling and Hank O'Day, the only others seriously considered. High Noon showed all his old speed at the break and quickly opened a gap of several lengths. Byrne, on Old Koenig, was the first to go in pursuit, and at the bottom of the back stretch he was almost lapped on High Noon with Green Gold leading Campfire several lengths back.

Going around the turn Campfire began to move up, and, rushing by Green Gold, he was gaining on the leaders so rapidly that a shout went up, "Campfire wins in a walk." Byrne must have sensed the onrushing effort of the two-year-old champion, for no sooner had he straightened his mount out in the stretch than he called on Old Koenig for a sprint that made Campfire's effort look like a canter. High Noon was left almost standing still to be swallowed up by the slow beginners.

While Campfire was struggling in the wake of Old Koenig, R. F. Carman's Startling came with a rush from far back and joined issue with the Wilson colt. It was a brief struggle for the place, but Startling was better conditioned by reason of Maryland racing, and in the last sixteenth he drew away to take second place by a length, two lengths behind Old Koenig. T. P. Thorne's Panaman finished fourth, just in front of the tired High Noon.

Two Riders Are Injured.

Reckless riding on green horses resulted in the injury of two jockeys. In the first race R. Denyse had the mount on the Casco Stable's Unwise Child. In the crowding at the turn Unwise Child was put on the fence, and the jockey's knee was so badly cut that M. Rowan had to be substituted for Denyse in the following race. There was a jam in the back stretch in the second race, which caused T. P. Thorne's Longhi to fall. His rider, J. Wessler, also was cut on the leg, but not seriously.

After Longhi fell F. R. Doctor's Wheat Cakes emerged from the crowd in the lead, and, hard ridden by Troise, kept in front to win by a length. The victory of Wheat Cakes and Royce Rolls, in the fifth race, were wildly acclaimed by the crowd, as both had been heavily supported in the oral speculation.

PIMLICO HONORS DIVIDED.

Entries of Major Parr and Lieutenant Cochran Win Chief Events.

PIMLICO, Md., May 16.—Major Ral Parr and Lieutenant Gifford A. Cochran divided the honors of the racing here today. In the Crickmore Steeplechase Handicap, which attracted the cream of the timber toppers, the Parr colors were carried by Captain Parr, a son of Ogden, that kept in the front flight all the way and at the finish defeated the top weight, St. Charlcote.

Only a small field started for the Clabaugh Memorial Cup for two-year-olds, and Lieutenant Cochran's Pinard was one of the outsiders, in spite of the fact that he had won his last race. Pinard was well handled by Jockey Buxton, and defeated the favorite, Esquimau, by a small margin.

The summaries:

CITY COLLEGE WINS AT NET.

City College won every match in its tennis meet with Manhattan College on the City College courts yesterday, 6 to 0. The Lavender racquet wielders had lost some of their men and sent out a new combination on the courts because of the enlistment of Captain Kweit in the Naval Reserve and the loss of several men because of the adoption of the one-year ineligibility rule in tennis, a sport to which it had never before applied in City College.

Barrow Wins Selected Score Event with a Card of 75.

Eighty golfers of the Metropolitan Advertising Golf Association competed in a one-day tournament over the links of the Arcola Country Club yesterday. In addition to enjoying some keen sport the members contributed generously to the Y. M. C. A. fund, about $200 being realized. The sum of $76 in War Saving Stamps was divided between five successful golfers in another event.

Hy Barrow won the day's most important prize, that offered for the best gross score in an eighteen holes selected score event, in which he returned the low gross of 75. Don M. Parker, with 76, 4—72, and F. H. Sisson, with 79, 7—72, tied for second and third prizes in this event. Barrow also shared in the laurels of a best ball foursome, in which he was teamed with G. P. Hotchkiss. This combination returned the winning card of 78, 8—70, topping by one stroke the card of E. Barber and O. Wood, with 87, 16—71.

In the Y. M. C. A. event P. Maxwell's gross of 80 was the best. The successful golfers in the War Savings Stamp play were led by H. F. Harrison, with 87, 15—72. F. H. Sisson, with 87, 14—73, was second; A. M. Scanlon, with 85, 11—74, was third, and a tie resulted between Al Reeves, 93, 18—75, and E. T. Raine, 88, 13—75, for fourth.

OLDFIELD WINS AUTO RACE.

UNIONTOWN, Penn., May 16.—Barney Oldfield defeated Louis Chevrolet in a five-lap match race at the opening meeting of the year at the Uniontown Speedway today. Oldfield's time for the five laps, slightly more than five miles, was 3:18:51. The race was for a purse of $10,000. The attendance was estimated at 10,000.

The Liberty Sweepstakes, with fourteen drivers entered and consisting of five heats of twenty-four laps each, was won by Ralph Mulford. His time was 16:42:82. Eddie Hearne made the second best time, and Tom Milton was third.

In the second heat of the Liberty Sweepstakes, Ira Vail narrowly escaped injury when the rear axle of his machine broke. The car skidded, but Vail held to the steering wheel and reached his pit uninjured. In the same race two flagmen were injured when the machine driven by I. P. Fetterman of Pittsburgh was hurled against a box in which the two men were sitting. The machine got beyond the control of Fetterman when a rear wheel collapsed.

Cochran Increases His Lead.

Welker Cochran gained a big lead over Joseph Mayer in the continuation of their 18.2 balkline billiard match at Maurice Daly's Seventh Academy yesterday. He is now leading on the two days' play by 1,200 to 398. In the afternoon game yesterday Cochran was the winner by 300 to 55, running out his string for an average of 42. In the evening Cochran defeated his rival by 300 to 182, and this time his average was 30.

FOG MISHAP HINDERS NEW AIRPLANE MAIL

WASHINGTON MAIL DELAYED

Rising to an altitude of 8,000 feet over Belmont Park at 11:29½ o'clock yesterday morning, a half minute ahead of time, Lieutenant Stephen Bonsel, in a new airplane, set his course for Philadelphia, carrying seventeen pounds of United States mail, thus opening the second day of the regular airplane mail service between this city and Washington. His departure was unattended by the ceremony which marked the flight of Lieutenant Torrey Webb on Wednesday and the circumstances were more businesslike.

Not long after he had gone those who had watched his departure from Belmont Park, heard by telephone that Lieutenant Bonsel had suffered an accident at Bridgeton, N. J., where he had been forced to alight. Lieutenant Bonsel, caught in a fog, found himself far off his course, that followed on Wednesday by Lieutenant Webb, and sought a convenient landing place.

He chose the old Bridgeton race track, which is now in use as a horse bazaar, and dropping from the height of 8,000 feet, which he had maintained, he afterward explained, because he was using a new machine, he found the field filled with grazing horses. He opened his exhaust and throttled his engine to frighten the horses away, but they refused to budge. He circled the field and, to avoid killing some of the horses, he swerved into a fence. The propeller and one plane were badly damaged, but the aviator was unhurt. The mail was immediately forwarded to the railroad in an emergency motor truck, one of a number placed along the route for use in the event of just such an accident. The mail was sent on to Philadelphia and dispatched to Washington in the machine which Lieutenant Bonsel should have met at the relaying point, Bustleton, near Philadelphia. The damaged airplane was sent to this city last night for repairs. It was explained that at each end as well as at Bustleton substitute machines are provided, and the service will not be halted today because of the accident.

Shortly before 2:55 o'clock yesterday afternoon an airplane came into view over Belmont Park, and on the dot of 2:58 Lieutenant Torrey Webb stepped from his machine, completing the second northbound trip from Philadelphia. He carried 118 pounds of mail from Washington and 5 pounds from Philadelphia, a total of 3,490 pieces. These were rushed to a train which left for the Pennsylvania Station at 3:01 o'clock, arriving at its destination at 3:24. The pouches were opened at 3:26 and the mail left for the branch Post Offices through the pneumatic tubes at 3:38.

On the southbound trip Lieutenant Bonsel had only carried 237 pieces of mail. The heavy delivery from Washington was explained by the Post Office officials here, who pointed out that the northbound machine carried the letters which should have been brought on Wednesday, when delivery was not made because of an accident between Washington and Philadelphia.

Among the letters which Lieutenant Webb delivered yesterday was one sent by Postmaster General Burleson to Postmaster Patten of New York, the contents of which were published yesterday, though the letter failed to arrive on Wednesday because of the accident. The stamp of the letter had been canceled and autographed by President Wilson at Washington before the departure of the first machine from there on Wednesday. The envelope was turned over to Noah H. Taussig, President of the American Molasses Company, yesterday, to be auctioned off for the American Red Cross early in June. Mr. Taussig has agreed to start the auction with a bid of $1,000.

Another letter which arrived yesterday was one written by Postmaster General Burleson to the publisher of THE NEW YORK TIMES, inclosing a letter written in 1835 b ythe proprietors of THE NEW YORK TIMES of that day. The old document urged quicker mail service between New York and Washington. A facsimile of this letter was published in THE NEW YORK TIMES of yesterday, copies of it having been forwarded from Washington by rail.

Barring the mishap to Lieutenant Bonsel's machine at Brideton, the Post Office officials expressed themselves as highly satisfied with the service yesterday. The northbound trip was made with the smoothness of clockwork, despite the fact that the time for Lieutenant Webb's flight from Philadelphia was one hour and eighteen minutes. He explained that he had encountered stiff winds en route and that this had hindered his speed. The mail had been relayed to him at Philadelphia by Lieutenant Edgerton, who had difficulty in locating the landing field, Lieutenant Webb said.

Lieutenant Edgerton arrived in Philadelphia at 1:35, having been two hours on the way. Three minutes later Lieutenant Webb was on the wing for New York.

Lieutenant Edgerton had passed the Philadelphia landing field at 1:15 o'clock, having failed to see the markings on the hangar because of his altitude, approximately 8,000 feet. It was said that had he landed then he would have got to Philadelphia in an hour and forty minutes.

At the Post Office yesterday Superintendent of Mails Norris said that the Post Office Department had been approached by several inventors, who asked that they be permitted to look at the roof of the Post Office Building, with a view to devising a landing place for the plane post there.

"The inventors realize," said Mr. Norris, "that sooner or later we shall need our terminals right on top of the Post Office Building instead of at Belmont Park. One man had letters of introduction from Washington, and we provided him with the blue prints of the Post Office Building. Of course, we must take these things seriously. It does not do in these days to make fun of inventors, no matter how extravagant their ideas may seem."

Among the letters which arrived by the air mail yesterday were several addressed to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

"The inauguration of the air mail service at this time is a fitting triumph at this crucial period in the world's history," said Miss Wenona Marlin, a clerk in one of the departments at Washington, in her letter. "Through this message," she added, "may I not congratulate THE NEW YORK TIMES on the part THE TIMES has played in bringing about this achievement?"

Another letter came from the Women's Committee of the Council on National Defense, and contained the news that the first conference of the committee, which ended on Wednesday, had been successful in the end for which it was planned—the interpretation of the war to women and the elucidation of the difficult points on which they have been engaged.

Another letter was from Alan R. Hawley of the Aero Club of America, which had been sent from this city to Washington several days in advance of the departure of the first machine.

"We all hope," said Mr. Hawley, "that some agreement may be reached between the nations which will guarantee against such a horror as the bombing of a nation out of existence overnight by another nation having tens of thousands of airplanes. But the present war has shown that hope does not save nations from the outrages of aggressors. As a matter of fact Germany's first air raids of Great Britain were conducted by Zeppelins, which were employed for passenger carrying before the war. So, while keeping our hearts in the right place, we must be ready to protect the republic and the rights of humanity and the cause of civilization."

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Airplane mail service between Washington and New York was deranged considerably today on the southbound trips, and the southbound consignment, which left New York before noon, did not arrive here until 8:35 tonight.

Lieutenant Stephen Bonsal, Jr., leaving New York this morning, lost his bearings in a fog and wandered far off his course, landing at Bridgeton, N. J., forty miles from Philadelphia. The mail was rushed to the Philadelphia field at Bustleton and got under way again at 5:15 o'clock in a plane piloted by Lieutenant Walter Miller. The machine developed engine trouble after twenty-five miles and was forced to return. Lieutenant James C. Edgerton, who flew from the Capital to Philadelphia earlier in the day, then volunteered to make the trip, arriving over Washington at 8:35 o'clock tonight.

GET MRS. WILSON'S THIMBLE

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson's gold thimble, which the wife of the President promised to the Treasure and Trinket Fund of the Aviation Committee of the National Special Aid Society, sent from Washington by the first aerial post, arrived at the headquarters of the society, 259 Fifth Avenue, at 5 P. M. yesterday. The thimble is one that has been used by Mrs. Wilson for the last few years. It was started on its journey on Wednesday, and Mrs. William Allen Bartlett, Chairman of the Aviation Committee, accompanied by Mrs. Edward Robinson, wife of the Director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, motored down to Belmont Park to receive it.

Owing to the accident at the beginning of the trip from Washington, the package containing the thimble was returned and arrived by air post yesterday. The thimble will be exhibited in the windows of Lord & Taylor's store for the next few days, with the table silver presented the fund by ex-President and Mrs. William H. Taft, gifts to them at the celebration of their silver wedding at the White House. The fund provides aviators with needed supplies which do not come to them through the Government. The thimble will be sold later.

FRANCIS WILSON LOSES BUNGALOW BY FIRE

The Summer home of Francis Wilson, the actor, at Lake Mahopac, was destroyed by fire early on Wednesday morning, and Mr. Wilson, his wife, and the three servants barely escaped with their lives. The bungalow with its broad verandas was destroyed. Mr. Wilson said yesterday that it would be difficult to estimate the damage. The fire, he believed, was caused by a defective flue.

Mr. Wilson was alone in the library, he said, when he heard the crackling of the fire. He found the rear of the house ablaze. He aroused the other members of the household, who were sleeping. They had difficulty in getting out, for the fire spread so rapidly that soon the entire building was in flames. The members of the household had no time to dress.

The fire destroyed the interesting objects that Mr. Wilson had collected in a lifetime on the stage and his collections of old china, pewter, prints, and old furniture. Among the articles destroyed was a collection of mezzoprints of old-time actors, in costume, and a collection of autographed theatrical prints. In addition, Mr. Wilson lost a collection of letters of famous men and women, including Emerson, Frederick Douglass, Eugene Field, Horace Howard Furness, Clyde Fitch, and others.

DR. ROBERTS ASSAILED.

WAUKESHA, Wis., May 16.—Dr. David Roberts, present only as a witness while Grace Lusk faces the jury charged with the murder of Mrs. Mary Newman Roberts, heard himself assailed today by witnesses and counsel as the alleged deceiver of two women—one his dead wife and the other on trial as her slayer.

Dr. R. E. Davies, the State's chief witness, testified that he was called to the house where Miss Lusk was rooming on the afternoon of June 21, 1917, by a telephone message from Dr. Roberts. There he found Mrs. Roberts dead in the parlor with two bullet wounds in her body. At the head of a rear stairway, he testified, he saw Miss Lusk with a pistol in her right hand and her left hand covering a widening stain on her white waist from a wound near her heart. Refusing to allow him to come up to treat her, she dictated the following statement:

"Dr. Roberts told me again and again that he loved me and only me. He said he and his wife never cared for each other. He swore on a Bible that he would tell her before the 15th of June. I told him that if he did not care for me we would end it all. Last night he told me again that he loved me. I told him that he must tell her, as it was the only honorable way. This morning I called him on the telephone and he told me he had told his wife that I had been chasing him and that I was the darndest fool that ever lived. She called me every name—every name. I loved him so dearly."

Later, Dr. Davies said, she asked him if the wound she had inflicted on herself was through the heart. He replied that it was not, and she then felt for the beating of her heart with her left hand, and, raising the pistol, fired again. When Dr. Davies reached her side he asked her why she had shot Mrs. Robberts, and believing she was dying she replied: "She drove me to it. She called me such awful names."

Walter D. Corrigan, in his opening statement to the jury for the State, drew another picture of the tragedy when he depicted Miss Lusk as a woman who was planning to separate Dr. Roberts from his wife that she might marry him herself, and declared that the prosecution would prove that the shooting was done with malice and premeditation.

BREAKS BROOKLYN RECORDS

All theatrical records for Brooklyn were broken last night by the performance of "Out There," given at the Academy of Music by the all-star cast now touring the country in the interests of the Red Cross. The total receipts for the performance were $21,882, which was inclusive of $1,450 paid for a program autographed by each member of the company, and sold at auction by Burr McIntosh.

Last night's receipts bring the total of the first five performances to about $95,000. A Wednesday matinee in Wilmington yielded more than $12,000, and the Wednesday night performance in Philadelphia brought in nearly $24,000. An auction sale of tickets held yesterday in New Haven, where a performance will be given next Wednesday, resulted in premiums of about $18,000, which was $1,000 in excess of the amount obtained in New York.

The first of three New York performances will take place at the Century tonight.

MUSIC NOTES.

Nikolai Sokoloff, conductor of the Philharmonic Orchestra of San Francisco, will lead a concert of French music by ninety players at Carnegie Hall tonight, including works of Franck, Debussy, and Chabrier.

Lenora Sparkes, an English soprano of the Metropolitan, with Max Gegna, 'cellist, and Abe Seril, violin, will give a concert at the Brooklyn Academy tomorrow evening for the American Red Cross.

Belle Story, soprano of the Hippodrome, and Hans Kronold, 'cello, will appear with the Kriens Symphony Orchestra in a concert at Grace M. E. Church this evening.

ASKS SAVINGS BANKS TO ENLARGE ACTIVITY

MUST WORK FOR DEPOSITS

Ex-Ambassador Believes the American People Can Supply Ample Funds to Win the War.

In the opinion of Myron T. Herrick, ex-Ambassador to France, the privately owned savings banks of the United States, with the increasing competition from the Government in the shape of postal savings banks, farm loan banks, and war demands, must reach out for deposits and stimulate attention to the local service they can render in their respective communities. Mr. Herrick, who is President of the Society for Savings of Cleveland, Ohio, was the principal speaker at the twenty-fifth annual meeting and luncheon of the Savings Banks' Association of the State of New York, held yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Henry A. Schenck, President of the Bowery Savings Bank, and President of the association, presided, and 240 savings bank men, representing 137 of the 141 institutions in the State, were present. Among the guests were John Harsen Rhoades, first President of the association; George I. Skinner, State Superintendent of Banks; Laurence McGuire, President Real Estate Board; William A. Nash, Chairman of the board of the Corn Exchange Bank; Samuel W. Fairchild, and Marcus M. Marks.

Mr. Herrick asserted that the American people had a reputation of being wasteful and extravagant. Nevertheless, they had enough money stored up to oversubscribe every recent bond issue of the Government, and also to buy $149,361,972 War Savings Stamps, besides contributing millions of dollars to the Red Cross and other charities.

Sees Ample Funds for War.

"By all indications," Mr. Herrick said, "they will be able to keep on supplying the Government and other public and private enterprises with funds until Germany is brought to her knees, and then will still have enough money left to maintain the United States in the front ranks of commerce, industry, and agriculture upon the advent of peace. Indeed, it seems, the wasteful and extravagant American people can always rise to the occasion by adjusting their habits to any condition of prosperity or adversity. A proof of this is the steady increase in the deposits in savings banks and policy holders in life insurance companies since the outbreak of the war."

Ohio's ex-Governor warned that the times called for the utmost frugality and thrift on the part of all classes, especially as the era of cheap living had closed. He then proceeded to discuss the changes that were leading up to centralization of Government powers and the attending competition from the Federal Government which the privately owned savings banks had to face. He declared that votes for women were not going to impede the Federal, State or municipal Socialist movement, as "the average woman is a born Socialist."

"So," the speaker added, "the not improbable outcome is a greater centralization of Government powers, the predominance of bureaus in Government, and the entering by the Government into various activities heretofore left to individual initiative and private enterprise." Mr. Herrick said Russia offered an example of dangerous centralization policies, where, among other things, the Bolshevist Government was "making a General out of each soldier."

"Banks Splendidly Successful."

The speaker said there had never been any claim that the private savings banks did not function satisfactorily, or that they needed help. On the contrary, they had been splendidly successful from the very start. In support of this, Mr. Herrick said that the 9,919 private savings banks and associations had together 14,935,445 depositors and members, which meant about one out of every three persons engaged in gainful occupations in the country.

"It is my belief that Congress will remove more restrictions from the postal savings banks, and will enlarge the savings bank features of the Federal farm loan system," Mr. Herrick asserted. "I can see no other outlook, owing to the enormous monetary needs arising out of the Government's own public functions and the private enterprises it is taking over, and is avowedly bent on financing directly.

"For this reason, I apprehend that progress for the private savings banks will not be so easy in the future as it was in the past. We have rent, taxes on reserves, salaries and expenses to pay out of income; and we are facing a highly privileged competition, such as has crushed out private enterprise in many a large foreign country.

"We cannot escape this fact by ignoring it. Our best hope lies in adjusting ourselves to changing conditions, even by engaging in local welfare work. In considering this readjustment, the first two points which present themselves are, of course, what interest may be paid on deposits, and how can deposits be invested?"

After analyzing present and prospective rates of interest paid by postal savings banks, and expressing the opinion that the Federal land banks could also accept deposits of any kind and pay interest at any rate thereon, Mr. Herrick continued:

Land Bank Free of Taxation.

"Thus the land bank and the depositor are both free from taxation, while there is no limit to the amount of the certificates or of the convertible bonds that one person may hold. As against this, private savings banks cannot accept deposits except for limited amounts, while their earnings must be reduced by taxes and various expenses, which, in the case of the Government institutions, are borne by the public. Therefore, it is my belief that the private savings banks will have very little advantage, if any at all, over the postal savings banks and the Federal farm loan system in the matter of the interest rate that may be offered.

"Perhaps the private and Government systems will eventually give about the same net interest return to the depositor. They will also be equal as regards safety. So the only way left for the private savings banks to meet this new competition is to become more active in reaching out for deposits, and more attentive to the local service they can render in their respective communities."

Resolutions were passed pledging support to the Government in the war.

THREE NEW IMMORTALS.

Jules Cambon, Curel, and Boylesve Elected to French Academy.

PARIS, May 16.—Jules Cambon, former Ambassador to the United States; François de Curel, playwright, and René Boylesve, author, were elected members of the French Academy today, succeeding Francis Charmes, Paul Hervieu, and Alfred Mezières, respectively.

Entrance of Many of Comedy Theatre Actors Into Service May Cause Company to Disband.

The entrance of a majority of the male members of their company into various branches of war work, coupled with the other hardships imposed on the theatre by the war, probably will cause the Washington Square Players to abandon their enterprise for the duration of the war. The season will end at the comedy theatre tomorrow night, and it was said at the offices of the Players that no definite plans had been made for the resumption of activities next year. A Summer season, however, will be played in San Francisco, where the Players will offer about twenty of their plays in a five weeks' season.

Several of the male members of the company have been called by the draft, and with the end of the present season the director, Edward Goodman, will also take up war work. The past season, which has been the organization's second year at the Comedy, has not been profitable, although it was said that no money had been lost.

New York's other little playhouse, the Greenwich Village, has also been affected by the war. Its director, Frank Conroy, is subject to draft call, and will leave for camp in a few weeks.

STAGE WOMEN GIVE BENEFIT

Mme. Schumann-Heink Among Artists at War Relief Concert.

The Stage Women's War Relief gave a benefit last night in the ballroom of the Ritz-Carlton to swell its funds for the different activities of this organization which are to be taken up here and abroad. The first will be the establishment of canteens at the fronts in Europe, and a workshop for disabled soldiers and sailors, and a convalescent hospital will also be established soon.

Mme Schumann-Heink, who has just returned from a singing tour of the camps, was the chief artist. She opened with "The Star-Spangled Banner," and also gave several other numbers. Other artists who appeared were Max Rosen, Maggie Teyte, and Armand Vecsey, who led the orchestra in one of his own compositions.

Following the program there was a Summer promenade, when about twenty-five Summer frocks were shown. One which was chosen by judges as the most beautiful was auctioned off. The judges included Gladys Hanson, Crystal Herne, Elizabeth Risdon, Carroll McComas, Georgia Caine, and Margaret Namara.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Walter Jones will be seen in his original role when "Rock-a-Bye Baby," which was formerly "Baby Mine," begins its engagement at the Astor next Wednesday night. John Cumberland has been playing the part on tour.

Jessica Brown, a dancer who appeared in "The Cohan Revue" this year, will be added to the entertainers at the Century Grove next Wednesday night.

Yvette Guilbert and Percy Grainger are among those who will appear at a performance at the Shubert Theatre Sunday night under the auspices of the American Committee for Devastated France.

"Pershing's Crusaders," an official film showing the United States forces abroad, will begin an engagement at the Lyric Theatre next Tuesday night. The pictures will be shown under the auspices of Mrs. Newbold Le Roy Edgar, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Clarence H. Mackay and Frederic R. Coudert, and the proceeds will be devoted to war relief funds.

"In a Net," a drama by Maravene Thompson, was produced for the first time last night at the Apollo Theatre, Atlantic City. In the cast were Charles Milward, Clarence Handyside, Walter Wilson, Gypsy O'Brien, Walter Ringham, Ethel Rizer, and Carl Anthony. The piece will be seen in New York in the Fall.

Paul Dickey, author with Charles Goddard of "The Misleading Lady" and other plays, received a commission yesterday as a Second Lieutenant in the Marine Corps.

MR. HUGHES TO INVESTIGATE.

Men who have gone to President Wilson with suspicions that the aircraft production program was being wrecked by selfish counsels of delay in the interests of monopolists, or by insidious propaganda, have testified to Mr. Wilson's desire for an impartial and thorough investigation. But still there were those who believed that the President was trying to protect responsible War Department officials and did not want to have the light turned on. Mr. Wilson's answer to these critics is the appointment of ex-Justice Charles E. Hughes as the Administration's investigator, to co-operate with Attorney General Gregory. It is not easy to say which is more to be admired, Mr. Wilson's summons of the late Republican candidate for President to his side or the public-spirited response of Mr. Hughes, who could have declined a difficult and thankless task without provoking criticism.

If the average citizen had been asked who is the bravest and most skillful investigator in the United States for a baffling case in which scandal may lurk, he would not hesitate to say, recalling the New York insurance exposure, Charles Evans Hughes. Nothing that is wrong or criminal can very well be hidden from his acute intellect. No reluctant witness can deceive him. Evildoers dread to face his examination. His mastery of detail, his clearness of statement, his penetration of motives, his quickness to detect evasion, and his always unruffled self-possession make him a consummate trail finder in a maze like that of the aircraft fiasco.

When Mr. Hughes says in his letter to the President that he will "be glad to co-operate with the Attorney General in making a prompt and thorough investigation of the charges of dishonesty in connection with aircraft production," the man of probity and action speaks. He means every word of it; he will get to the bottom of things. When Mr. Hughes goes on to say that he assumes that the Attorney General will advise him "of his wishes for a conference, with a view to the making of definite and adequate plans for the investigation," it means that Mr. Hughes will be found ready to take a leading part in the inquiry and that he won't tolerate delay or mismanagement. Where he sits will be the head of the table. In fact, the understanding is that Mr. Hughes will do the investigating in his own way, with the approval of the Attorney General.

FOCH AND PERSHING.

It was known that in the Ypres sector, and even before Amiens, French and British soldiers were fighting side by side, and that where the great battle has been raging most fiercely there was no longer a distinct French or British front. Obviously, the question of personal command of bodies of troops was to be settled according to numerical strength: General Haig commanded in the Ypres sector, General Petain on the Somme and Luce, both subject to the orders of General Foch, who could make transfers of divisions to suit his strategy.

It is now announced that General Pershing is to have his share in the unified command. When American troops, brigaded with French and British, are in the majority along any part of the front, soldiers of the three nations will take their orders from the American General. This arrangement will be welcome to John J. Pershing, who is not the man to be satisfied with inaction and remoteness on the Lorraine border, holding a few miles of unimportant trenches. And the American soldiers will find it to their taste. They want to be in the fighting; and, for all his composure, General Pershing covets the post of danger where history is being made. The rivalry of the three armies will be a spur to initiative and intrepidity, and the Americans cannot fail to gain in efficiency by the association. The enemy can't afford to blunder on his front; and when it comes to hand-to-hand fighting the Germans won't have the best of it.

An announcement which might have been anticipated is that General Foch is to be as supreme in Italy, as he is in France: from the English Channel to the Adriatic he will be commander as well as strategist. No less than 6,000,000 men will owe him obedience and take orders from him. As he is a man of tact as well as genius, he will know how to reconcile questions of local command when they conflict. He will be likely to intervene and decide only when called upon to do so; but doubtless he will advise and urge in matters of the high command in cases of shortcoming and failure. In the history of warfare there has been no such responsibility as that of Ferdinand Foch, called to the head of six millions of soldiers to achieve victory for human liberty and the blessings of civilization.

BOLOISTS.

Duval, manager of the "defeatist" Germanophil Bonnet Rouge newspaper, a replica in part of the Ardennes Gazette, printed by the Germans in Northern France, is the second "Boloist" to be condemned to death by court-martial for treason. Compared with the swaggering adventurer Bolo, he is a tame figure. Of the other defendants, Leymarie, sometime Director of the Ministry of Interior, gets off with the lightest punishment. Is his former chief, Malvy, Under Secretary of Interior in Caillaux's Premiership, Secretary of Interior under Viviani and Ribot, and soon to be tried, not by court-martial, but by the High Court, to escape as easily?

Maker of Prefects, controller of elections, the Minister of Interior in all Latin Cabinets is a personage, a power, at least a main vehicle for the continuance in power of his chief. As Leymarie is interesting on account of Malvy, so Malvy is interesting, mainly on account of the arch-pacifist, defeatist, or Germanophil, Joseph Caillaux, a great financier, Finance Minister under Waldeck-Rousseau and in Clemenceau's first Cabinet, ten years ago "the most hated man in France," yet Premier in the "year of Agadir," 1911. Daring, dominating, cynical, with a sort of eighteenth century mixture of fashion, finance, politics, amours, "the Richelieu of the Republic," the man who "smashed the income tax while seeming to defend it," is a sinister figure. Distrusted, hated, feared, he long kept his friends in place; like Giolitti, he seemed to have the art of being in power when out of office. By sheer personal prestige or impudence he seemed to frighten and disturb the prosecution when he appeared as a witness in the Duval trial this week.

FEDERAL FINANCES AND TAX REFORM.

There is surprise only in the details of the statement that the income of the United States exceeds four billion dollars, almost all from taxes. In no country do war conditions prostrate business, the burden of taxes being offset by the expansion of credits due to the larger circulation of loan and tax moneys. Even in Germany the revenues are larger, and accounts reflect unusually large figures. In our case the increase is large over estimates last year, but less than within the last few days. Income and profit taxes are $348,000,000 more than was expected when the law was passed, but about a quarter of a billion less than hoped within a fortnight. Internal revenue receipts are a quarter of a billion higher than was expected by the lawmakers. These figures are based partly on actual receipts and partly upon bills sent for taxes due next month for which the figures are in hand. In round figures the expenditures will not be far from a billion dollars a month for the fiscal year, including some five billions of loans to allies. The proportion of taxes to expenditure is one-third, if allies' loans are included, and over one-half if they are reckoned as a deferred asset and deducted. There are those who want even more raised by taxes and less by loans, but the proportion is as large as experience, or comparison with the practice of other nations, indicates as judicious.

Decision regarding resting upon the present revenue law or levying additional taxes depends upon the expenditures of next year. More money was appropriated for this year than could be spent, but next year's expenses will demand larger provision than this year's. Expenses have a way of exceeding estimates even more than income. Yesterday it was announced that the postal employés' pay had been raised $40,000,000. That is only a minor item. It is hoped that the shipbuilding program will call for two billions, and the airplane bill may not be much less. There are huge expenditures for ordnance and ordnance plants in sight, several billions at least. The army alone may need as much as the total expenditures this year. There is a deficit of some hundreds of millions on account of the railways, subject to unknown offsets through economies and increase of rates. Secretary McAdoo's minimum expectation approaches double this year's expenditures. That would more than absorb the excess of this year's appropriations, and would leave unprovided for more than ought to be left to a deficiency bill. If the increase of expenditures should be near expectation, the proportion of taxes to expenditures would be much less than is thought desirable by any authorities.

The outlook, therefore, is that the existing laws will not produce revenue enough. If left unamended, they will produce a deficit, in addition to difficulties in administration which have annoyed the Treasury as much as the taxpayers. The Treasury has not been able to perform its duties within the limits of the bill, and taxpayers have been provided with excuses for their delinquency. If it were possible to hope that there would be another surplus next year, there might be an argument for deferring new legislation. But it is a certainty that more money will be wanted, that the present laws will not provide it, and that the laws should be amended regardless of such considerations, because of defects apart from the Government's finances. More money could be got by better laws and with less friction. There are hundreds, perhaps thousands, of rulings by the Treasury of which notice should be taken when the tax laws are next under consideration. It is undesirable that the annoyances through which the Treasury and the taxpayers have just passed should be repeated next year, and if there is to be any change it should be in time to allow the Treasury to prepare itself for the new situation, instead of being pitchforked into a muddle as it was this year. If Congress had been compelled to execute its own laws, and if Congress did not pride itself upon some of the defects of the laws it enacted, there would be no question about prompt action. The plain question is whether the taxpayers, the Treasury, and the country are less to be considered than the convenience of Congress, which is thinking more of politics than of finance.

THE SALVATION ARMY IN THE WAR.

Salvation Army girls were in the battle of Seicheprey, under fire, going intrepidly about ministering to the needs of the American soldiers resisting the terrific German attack. Up to that time probably many Americans did not even know that the Salvation Army was at the front, though they ought to have known it; the Salvation Army is always at the front, whether the battleline is one of war or peace. It does not fear pain, disease, or death. It does not advertise, and there is no reward to be got for helping it, except the reward that comes from conscience. Yet that should be reward enough to make men willing to aid the army in its "drive" for war funds.

The drive ends tomorrow. All over the land the little fellows have been giving their mites. But war funds cannot be built up only by mites from the little fellows. Men with money should come to the aid of the Salvation Army. If they want to know what will be done with the money, let them look at Seicheprey. But they do know; they know that wherever a task for humanity is to be done, too disagreeable, too difficult, or too dangerous for ordinary human beings, there they will find the Salvation Army men and women doing it, cheerfully, courageously, and modestly.

WARM WORDS FROM WILHELM.

"Hearty greetings to Zita and yourself," cheerily telegraphs Wilhelm to Karl, giving out the telegram for publication. To Zita, by all means; but what will Zita do with them? Will Karl quite dare to lay the foundations for a domestic "scene" by audaciously presenting Zita with Wilhelm's hearty greetings? Or are Kaisers immune from domestic scenes? In private life a husband who has been foregathering with a chum whom his wife holds in abhorrence sometimes starts on his homeward way with the chum's last words echoing in his ears, "Remember me to Mary." And perhaps he really means to do so at first. But as he gets nearer and nearer to the house and to that waiting and wrathful spouse he begins to think of other things that would be much more genial topics of conversation, and when the latchkey scratches the lock he has made up his mind that perhaps it would be better to forget John's message; John will never know the difference, and there is no use in deliberately inviting trouble. Kaisers may be different, but we doubt if Karl really will deliver those hearty greetings to Zita. And we doubt if Wilhelm expected it; Wilhelm knows Zita. We think those hearty greetings were intended not for Zita, but for the ill-bred persons who have been writing articles in the German press indicating that Zita did not approve of Wilhelm, or Wilhelm of Zita.

Wilhelm is in happier vein when he talks to the Town Council of Aachen, or Aix-la-Chapelle. Have the Aacheners been grumbling? If not, why does the Kaiser remind them so emphatically that if it were not for him and the good German sword they might be suffering the fate of "devastated France"? "The offensive goes well ahead." "Our task in the west will be accomplished, but we must be patient." The grumbling Aacheners may ask what "our task in the west" is. The answer must be that it is whatever we accomplish, whether it is the rout of the Allies or a gain of a hundred yards. He is pleased with the patriotism of "Aachen, on the empire's frontier." The empire's frontier is elastic and fluid. Yesterday it was Belgium; today it is Aachen. The ultimate frontier will be wherever I and the good German sword can stay without being put out. Is Aachen so patriotic? We cannot doubt it, but why, then, does it persist in talking French? "We must cease to talk French." A word to the wise is sufficient. Ah, if one could dispose of Zita as easily as of Aachen! If one could simply say to Zita, "You must cease to sympathize with the French," and know that it would be done because there was no escape!

PROFESSORS, IDEALISTS, ANGELS.

German professors are servants of the State, missionaries of the Hohenzollern gospel. Many of them are snobs in the Teuton fashion. To wear a reserve officer's uniform is a greater glory than to be a savant of European favor. Germany is compact of drillers and the drilled. The professors belong to both classes. From time to time, since the beginning of the war, they have issued their sophisticated manifestoes and their defenses of indefensible, of criminal German policies and acts. The latest lesson set by "the military masters of Germany" for the professors to repeat relates to the dangers of "world-citizenship," of "idealism." Thus, Ernst Haeckel, that illustrious pragmatical scientist, writes of "the false cosmopolitan idealism of the German people." When has there been any cosmopolitan idealism in Germany since the age of Lessing, of the indifferent philosophic Goethe, whose "object was to get to know man, content in general to let people go their own way"; of the Schiller, later a strong nationalist in "Wilhelm Tell," who was saying in 1789 that "it is a poor and little aim to write for one nation"; of the Fichte before the peace of Tilsit, before French garrisons held the Prussian cities, before the loss of half Prussia's territory had taught him to give up the half-affected devotion to Paris, the literary fashion of the eighteenth century, the cosmopolitanism of the citizens of little States, a divided Germany, and the Napoleonic legend? Fichte developed in part a dangerous doctrine of the unlimited power of the State. German cosmopolitanism was an interlude where it was not a pose. Frederick the Great is the typical Prussian practical idealist. In the year he came to the throne he published his "Anti-Machiavel," wherein peace is praised, wherein he "would tell the Kings that their true political interests consist in outshining their subjects in virtue." That same year he invaded and grabbed Silesia, "in order to defend that country against attacks from a third Power." This was a genuine Prussian, a genuine modern German, the hero and the god of the Hohenzollerns; and he had his professors too. As he wrote in "The Seven Years' War":

> If sovereigns wish to make war, they are not restrained by arguments suitable for a public proclamation. They determine the course upon which they wish to embark, make war, and leave to some industrious jurist the trouble of justifying their action.

On the larger scale of today practically the whole corps of professors is set at work justifying. That is part of their work as servants of the State. They get decorations besides, and are well-seen at Court. They are better paid than Frederick's favorite jurist and justifier, Professor von Ludewig, who got, say, $2.25 (three thalers) a day for his assemblage of Prussia's right or claim to swallow Silesia. Forty years the good man labored for the author of "Anti-Machiavel," most Machiavellian of the Kings of his day, and was glad and proud to be paid with the honorific "von." Frederick's Minister, Podewils, said contemptuously of this typical Prussian professor's ennobling particle: "A little wind that costs nothing."

The "idealism," the "cosmopolitanism" attacked by the contemporary Ludewigs is willingness to renounce indemnities and annexations, satisfaction with what Professor Haeckel calls "the infamous" peace resolution of the Reichstag. That, says the professor genially, "gave fresh and terrible proof of the proverbial political incompetence of 'German Michael.'" That terrible incompetence consists in "the ideal of an international itch for agreement." The professor fears that this will be "victorious over the indispensable national real increase of power." So "German Michael," docile as he is, is a little tired of being dead, wounded, and missing for the benefit of the Junkers and the purple industrials.

One hates to take leave of this band of professors without hearing reverently Spahn of Strassburg. This is no time for universal peace, he says. "We have to make good the omissions of centuries," that is, rob all the territory and power we can, since we didn't begin to rob till 1864, or rob in good earnest till 1871. But, remember:

> It was we who brought into the world the idea that the common state life of mankind should depend upon a trinity—the right of all, freedom for every individual member of the community, and peace as an ordered state of civilization. Only a race so full of idealism as the Germans are was capable of lighting up the horizon of humanity with an idea so great and eternal. If mankind is gradually to draw nearer to such a superterrestrial goal, it will only be if we once more advance as leaders.

Evidently the Germans have been belied. They are angels of light, apostles of freedom.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

They Forgot What Was Unforgettable.

That the start of the aerial mail service should have been delayed for seventeen minutes beyond the appointed hour—and at the Washington end of the route, too—by somebody's failure to put gasoline in the tanks of the airplane, illustrates one of the most curious possibilities of the human mind. Of course there was nobody, from the Postmaster General down to the humblest mechanic on the flying field, who did not know that gasoline was just as necessary for making the contemplated journey as the airplane itself, or as the aviator to operate it. The very idea that the gasoline could be forgotten—that it would not be provided betimes and in adequate amount—evidently never entered anybody's mind. And it was probably as a result of this certainty that the all-essential fuel was missing when the hour to start arrived!

What was in a way everybody's business, and business that any one of at least half a hundred people could and would have attended to had they not all been sure that it would be attended to by somebody else, was thus left undone, and there had to be a wild scurrying about to remedy the amazing negligence.

Of course nothing adverse is to be deduced from this as to the practicability of sending off the mail planes daily at a fixed time. The equally embarrassing and amusing incident, one can be certain, will not occur again. As much can be said of the mishap that befell this same machine a few miles from the starting point. The aviator seems to have lost his way, and, in making a forced landing to find out just where he was, his propeller was broken. That, at any rate, is the explanation given for the necessity that arose for transferring his burden of mail to such an antiquated method of transportation as a special train plodding along on the ground at the miserable rate of fifty or sixty miles an hour.

The explanation of the descent, indeed, is not quite as plausible as it might be, but it will do, and, anyhow, the breaking of the propeller is adequately accounted for if the landing was for any reason compulsory and hurried. It is the losing of the way that remains a bit mysterious, occurring as it did on a fine day and in a region where notable landmarks fairly swarm.

A Remarkable Group of Misstatements.

By stretching charity close to the point where it breaks with a loud popping noise, it is possible to characterize no more harshly than as a display of amazing ignorance an editorial article entitled "The Repentance of the Red Cross," which the National Anti-Vivisection Federation has taken from The Christian Science Monitor, reprinted in leaflet form, and is now engaged in scattering all over the country. Every single statement made in the article as of fact is false; most of them are not only false, but the direct opposite of the truth as it is known to everybody who has investigated the methods and results of animal experimentation and biological research enough to justify the expression of an opinion of them.

The first departure from veracity is in the assertion that "vast numbers" of subscribers to Red Cross funds had protested against any allotment of its money to the establishment in France of a laboratory for the study of trench and camp diseases. The numbers were not "vast"; they were small, for the great majority of Red Cross subscribers have common sense. But the minority was noisy and it was organized, and the Red Cross made the grave mistake of rescinding proper and beneficent action simply because the threats of the few anti-vivisectionists were not balanced by the assurances of continued and increased support that could have been secured so easily from people to whom the life of an American soldier seems of appreciably more value than that of a white mouse, a guinea pig, or even of a dog.

This, however, is among the least of the misrepresentations made in the article. It asserts, for instance, by clear implication, that the opinion of the medical profession as to the value of "vivisection" is divided, that the "vivisectors" in their confidential moments do not pretend that "the slightest attempt is made to ameliorate the suffering of the animal," and that "the deadening of the suffering of the animal destroys the very raison d'être of the operation." Every one of these assertions is false—ludicrously or abominably false, according to the point of view. To make them worse, they are quite irrelevant to the sort of work which was to be done in the proposed laboratory.

A Collection More Than an Invention.

Only professional engineers will get much, if any, real information from the detailed statement issued by the Government as to the way the Liberty motor was designed and the sources of the various mechanical ideas and devices that are incorporated in its construction. Other readers of the statement will derive from it the impression that the motor is original only in that it combines old ideas in a new way, but in a way that leaves little of mystery in the fact that the congeries as it stands is of narrowly restricted utility and far from the triumph of ingenuity it was hastily claimed to be.

It seems hardly possible that a machine so assembled from other machines, each planned to gain a different end or superiority, would unite the merits of them all, and not very surprising that it does not show any of them to a notable degree. Even the amateur mechanic, however, can now see how it happened that German airplanes already have been captured which contain elements present in the Liberty motor. There is a simpler explanation for that than the wonderful efficiency of German spies at work in the United States and gaining access to our most carefully guarded shops and laboratories. Seemingly we copied their motor, not they ours, so far as any copying was done.

Further elucidations of the Liberty motor's strange history are contained in the articles by Mr. Adams in a series the publication of which began yesterday. Those articles are full of information understandable even by the non-expert.

A Choice for Drafted Irishmen.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Irish claim that their reason for resisting conscription is that they do not wish to fight England's battles. Could not some agreement be arrived at between the two allies that the Irish who were drafted should have the option of joining the American forces if they preferred to do so?

In that case they would be fighting for the United States instead of for England.

MAURICE'S BLUNDER.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Now that General Maurice has been punished for his "indiscipline" by being put on "relief pay," he is probably disposed of and we shall hear of him no more. But before consigning him to the oblivion that he seems to deserve we may note that he accomplished the apparently impossible. As official spokesman for the British Army he asked the assembled newspaper correspondents "Where is Bluecher?" and committed about twice as many blunders as there are words in his question. Surely this must be a world's record.

That is why General Maurice lost the position he then occupied, which in turn excited him to make the fatal mistake of attacking the truth of Lloyd George's statements. All the way through General Maurice seems to have made every possible mistake. He was not merely guilty of "a break" or "a bad break"; it was a compound fracture! He was even wrong about the facts, because the French came to help the British immediately after his effusion. Moreover, there was no definite obligation for them to do so. Heretofore the two nations have not sent each other troops except where their armies join and naturally overlap. Before General Foch received authority over the allied forces, who was to decide when the situation called for mutual assistance? That was just the trouble. General Pershing overcame it by putting our troops at the disposal of General Foch. But England and France had not then made that arrangement, and it took time, because no one man had the power to make it.

Very likely the delay of the French assistance was due to that. At least it is a very good excuse for the French, but there is a far better point that they could make. They might most pertinently inquire, "Where is Wellington?"

Notice of the Soldier's Arrival Abroad

I note complaint of Walter S. Kupfer in The Times this morning in regard to a safe arrival postal reaching a relative the day after a soldier had sailed. Mr. Kupfer asks if it is possible that the Government is careless in the mailing of these postals.

Notices are posted prominently in a number of places at the camps of embarkation advising the soldiers to write these cards and telling them that they will find mail bags on board ship in which to post them. When troops arrive at the piers they find similar notices displayed on bulletin boards near the gangplanks, they are advised by word of mouth, and also find circulars posted on the ship, all of these insisting that the mail bag is the proper place to drop their mail.

In spite of these instructions soldiers violate regulations by handing their cards to some sailor or workman. These men drop them in some Post Office box and they are mailed immediately. The fact that Mr. Kupfer received this card the day after his relative sailed is proof that it was mailed in this manner. This office does not begin to cancel and assort these cards for two or three days after the ship has departed.

Germany's Punishment.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Professor George Trumbull Ladd's article in yesterday's Times, "A Whole World Outraged," is, in my opinion, a masterly one, and in reply to his question, "Should guilty Germany be permitted to ever resume her place among the nations?" I for one give a decided negative, and I think that now is the time to agitate the question of using the most drastic methods possible against Germany and German trade when the war is finished. I consider it the duty of every man and woman in the United States to lend their efforts to this end and refuse to be drawn into any business trade with Germany in the future, and it is their duty to voice these sentiments to this effect now, and impress upon their children the importance of continuing so to do; thus only can these barbarians be justly punished.

Brisk Recruiting in Ulster.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The impression has been given in certain quarters that the Protestant North of Ireland was opposed to conscription and was inclined to give the Government trouble. I am today in receipt of a letter from Belfast, dated April 26, from a reliable correspondent, who says: "There was a big rush in recruiting, over 2,000 in Belfast, the first week," (after passing the act.) Be it remembered that this is after Ulster had given over 50 per cent. of the total recruits from all Ireland. (Figures only up to Oct. 15, 1916; the proportion would be even greater since.)

THE SONG OF THE SHIPBUILDER

Written for the National Service Section of the United States Shipping Board and dedicated to the men in the ship trades.

We work in the oldest stuff of the world—
Water and iron and fire and air,
And the courage of men with a flag unfurled,
To build a bridge from here over there.

With a fleet of ships we'll span the sea,
To carry supplies to you in France—
Guns and food and T. N. T.—

And what's the difference where we work—
We all are needed and will not shirk;
We are done with delays! Count us in at the hunt.

And what's the difference how we fight—
With blood or money, labor or guns?
We'll keep the bridge building day and night,
Till we trestle the sea to get to the Huns.

And what's the difference where you are?
We're all on the job with a will to win:
So, boys, do your bit with your gun in the war;
We're doing our bit with the rivet machine.

We'll keep the bridge building night and day;
We'll speed up ahead of the submarine.
We'll build to you, boys, so keep 'em at bay;
We're doing our bit with the rivet machine.

Boys, keep up your courage, we're getting to you,
Khaki or overalls, count us all in—
Knapsacks or dinner pails, we're fighting, too,
And doing our bit with the rivet machine.

In camp or the shipyard we all of us swear
That the hope we are building will span to Berlin;
We're all of us soldiers, to do or to dare;
And we're doing our bit with the rivet machine.

POST OFFICE BILL PASSED.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The Post Office Appropriation bill, granting wage increases to postal employes and authorizing Federal acquisition of the pneumatic mail tube systems in six of the largest cities of the country, was passed by the Senate late today without a record vote. The bill, which provides for appropriations of $381,000,000, an increase of $47,300,000 over the House bill, now goes to conference.

Efforts to attach an amendment suspending for at least a year operation of the act, effective July 1, increasing second-class postal rates were abandoned after supporters of the amendment became convinced that it would be defeated. Many Senators questioned the legality of attaching it to an appropriation bill. An effort will be made to add it to some other bill, it is said.

Under the bill as adopted, city mail carriers, clerks, and other postal employes receive an increase in pay of $200 a year, and rural carriers 20 per cent. Overtime pay for postal employes also is provided for in a committee amendment, which the Senate adopted today, 26 to 21, after it once had rejected it.

The Senate retained House provisions appropriating $100,000 for experiments in airplane mail service between cities to be designated by the Postmaster General, and fixing the postage cost for such mail at 24 cents an ounce, or fraction thereof. Senator King of Utah, Democrat, led a fight to eliminate this section, asserting that such experiments should not be conducted during the war, because of the need of airplanes in France.

Before passing the bill the Senate, by a vote of 31 to 19, ratified its action of last Tuesday in accepting the amendment to purchase the pneumatic mail tubes in New York, Brooklyn, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, and St. Louis. The proposal was opposed by Postmaster General Burleson.

58 MORE CONCRETE SHIPS.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The Shipping Board has decided to proceed immediately on a large scale with the building of concrete ships, and will increase the program out of the appropriation of $2,250,000,000 which has been asked for the next fiscal year.

Eighteen concrete ships, aggregating 117,500 tons, have been contracted for. It was announced today that fifty-eight other concrete vessels, at a cost of about $42,250,000, will be ordered as soon as sites for the four new Government yards are chosen. A committee of experts is on the Pacific Coast looking over available ground, after a long trip through the South on a similar mission. Its recommendations are expected to be made soon.

Virtually all of the new ships will be of 7,500 tons each, and many of them will be tankers for the oil trade. Urgent need for ships is felt nowhere more severely at the present time than in the lack of tank steamers for carrying fuel oil to Atlantic Coast ports for shipment to the interior. Most of the existing tank steamers have been taken from coastwise trade for service with the navy.

WAR EXPENSES MOUNT.

Treasury Department Reports $1,229,000,000 Paid Out in March.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Rapid increase in expenses for the army, navy, and shipbuilding program was shown today by a Treasury report covering March expenditures of $1,229,000,000. The Government spent $570,000,000 for the military establishment in March, $47,000,000 more than in the month previous; the naval establishment cost $143,000,000, as compared with $92,000,000, and the Shipping Board spent $116,000,000, against $58,000,000. Completion of contracts was responsible for much of the increase.

For the nine months ended April 1, expenditures included: Military establishment, $3,312,000,000; naval establishment, $921,000,000; Shipping Board, $497,000,000; Treasury Department, $141,000,000; civil and Spanish war pensions, $132,000,000.

The Government's net debt on April 1 was $9,585,000,000, which did not include any of the Third Liberty Loan. Receipts from the Third Liberty Loan today swelled the Treasury's net working balance to $1,647,000,000, the highest record for several months.

MEMORIAL DAY STANDS.

Celebration Not Modified by Prayer Proclamation, President Says.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—President Wilson asked today that Memorial Day be observed as usual and announced that in proclaiming May 30 a day of prayer he did not intend to suggest a modification of the usual memorial exercises. The statement was issued in response to inquiries as to whether the usual exercises should be changed. In some places arrangements had been made to eliminate the usual celebration and to devote the entire day to prayer.

A request that the President suggest to the allied Governments that they designate May 30 as a day for fasting and prayer for successful termination of the war and an honorable lasting peace was made in a resolution introduced today by Representative Campbell of Kansas.

ORGANIZE WOMEN POLICE.

Headquarters School to Train Force of 10,000 as Reserves.

Following up Special Deputy Police Commissioner Rodman Wanamaker's plans to form a police reserve of women, which were approved last week by Commissioner Enright, the following order was sent last night from Police Headquarters to all Inspectors and Precinct Captains:

"You will organize in each precinct within your district a unit of women police reserves, to be made up of patriotic women who desire to render helpful and patriotic work at this time.

"One competent woman will be assigned to command, whose duties will be equivalent to that of a Police Reserve Captain.

"The duties of the Women Police Reserve will be to carry on the auxiliary Red Cross work now being done by the auxiliaries attached to the different precincts; to be vigilant and alert in their respective localities; to discover irregular and unlawful conditions, and to report the same to this department; to teach patriotism and civic duty, and aid in the Americanization of the alien element of the population; to detect and report cases of disloyalty and sedition, relieve cases of distress and destitution, comfort the unfortunate, advise and direct the weak, foolish and idle, and set an example of usefulness and patriotic devotion. Members of the Women's Reserve can be very useful also in looking after boys and girls who may be prone to be delinquent, keeping bad company or pursuing a course that would lead to crime.

"The reserve will be composed of 10,000 women. Women of ability and character will be sought to become members.

"A Woman's Police Training Corps, composed of women between the ages of 18 and 30, will be organized at Headquarters, and will receive training of police matrons, probation officers, and prison attendants."

WOULD LIST ALL MEN TO 45 FOR WAR WORK

BROAD VIEW OF OUR TASK

Believes Needs Are Greater Than Has Been Realized—Not Sure Men Over 45 Shouldn't Be Summoned.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—In urging the Senate to adopt his resolution calling for information from the Government upon the country's industrial power, Senator Cummins of Iowa today declared that not only must America have 5,000,000 men in France within the next two years, but it must organize a civilian army to save industry from collapse. In his resolution Senator Cummins asks the Secretary of Labor and other officials for data as to the number of men available for industrial and agricultural work.

"My proposition is that every able-bodied man in this country between the ages of 18 and 45—and I am not sure that a few years ought to be added to the latter limit—must either work in a useful way or fight," said Senator Cummins.

"This at least should be the policy until we can see clearly that there is a surplus of civil energy that can be permitted to go to waste in unnecessary labor or lie dormant in idleness.

"It must be obvious to every thoughtful man that the time has come for a careful, comprehensive, serious survey of the entire war situation as it now presents itself. Whatever may have been our former view with respect to a speedy termination of hostilities, it is now reasonably certain that we have before us a long and severe struggle which, if it is brought to a successful end, as it must be, will demand our full strength of both men and material.

"It is not enough to do no more than to drive the Kaiser from power; it is not enough merely to send his brood of murderers into obscurity; it is not enough to take from his conspicuous butchers the weapons they are using in the deadly conflict. We must destroy forever the military menace of that nation, and crush beyond resurrection the criminal designs and the cruel ambitions of the German people—designs and ambitions which through fifty years of education and training have resulted in a savage, brutal, and remorseless society—the implacable foe of Christian civilization, free institutions, and the peace of the world.

"The undertaking which we have assumed has gradually developed into the most colossal task which has ever fallen upon mankind. The difficulties which attend our part in accomplishing the common object of the allied countries are tremendously magnified by one unchangeable fact—an ocean nearly 3,000 miles in width separates us from the battlefields of Europe, and the power we exert here must be extraordinary if we would strike with sufficient force in the fields of Belgium, France, and Italy.

"If our problem consisted simply in raising fighting men, it would be an easy one, for the patriotism, spirit, and grim determination of the people of this country to settle, once for all, the vital issue between Germany and the world would call to the ranks half the population of the Republic. There are, however, other things to be done not less important than our fighting forces.

"We must clothe, equip, and sustain the army and the navy. We must build ships, manufacture guns, cannon and powder, and other infinite paraphernalia of war. We must transport both men and material through submarines and mines to a foreign shore. We must produce all that the army and navy demand for their efficiency, and all that is required for the life, health, and comfort of the men, women, and children who are not enrolled in the fighting organizations. Not only so, but we must produce enough to supply the imperative necessities of Great Britain, France, and Italy and to continue our essential commerce with neutral and friendly nations.

"It will not be disputed that to do this successfully and continuously all the energies of all the people must not only be called into action, but they must be coördinated, correlated, and guided by wise, intelligent, far-seeing statesmanship, both in legislation and in execution.

"It is my opinion that before two years shall have passed if we do not call five millions of men into the military service we will have failed to do our part in the war, and will not be able to win the kind of victory which will justify the indescribable losses we will suffer. Everybody understands that to take five millions of our men from industrial occupations in the way those already taken have been enlisted, or selected, would result in an immediate collapse of production and leave not only our army without sustenance and equipment, but the civilians of the United States, Great Britain, France, and Italy hopeless and helpless.

"Our army must be very largely increased, and at the same time it is of vital importance that our naval and coast defense program should not only be fully and quickly carried out but that it be at once greatly enlarged. It makes me shudder when I think of the partial suspension of work on warships and the almost total suspension of coast defenses because workmen and material are so much needed in other preparations. If by any chance—not probable, but possible—Germany should win in France, and America stood alone against this monster of the ages, our first and maybe our only protection from the hate and power of the enemy would be found in the strength of our navy and the resistance of our fortifications.

"It must not be understood that I am advocating, or that I favor, drafting men for civil pursuits. The constitutionality of a measure of that kind may well be doubted, but entirely aside from the legal aspects of the matter it would be in the highest degree unwise and impractical. The object can be attained through voluntary selection, with the propert organization and leadership. The age of conscription for military service can be advanced to any point, and the idle man or the man whose employment contributes nothing to the welfare of the nation can be denied the privilege of exemption, and a judicious classification will complete the plan.

"Under such a restriction every capable man would be either in the army or navy or working directly or indirectly for the army or navy. Every able-bodied citizen would be either fighting for humanity or working for humanity, and, thus organized for efficiency, we can perform the task to which we have set our hands, win the final victory and establish a just and enduring peace."

FINDS SERIOUS DELAY IN POSTAL SERVICE

Merchants' Association Issues Report on Result of Five Months' Investigation.

MAIL 13 DAYS FROM SOUTH

Efficiency of Department Said to be Less Than People Have Right to Expect—Inquiry Asked.

The Merchants' Association of New York, through its Director of Research, Fred D. De Beard, yesterday presented to the Committee on Rules of the House of Representatives in Washington a report comprising the results of a five months' investigation by the association of mail delays all over the United States. In the report, which has been approved by the Executive Committee of the association, it is stated that the efficiency of the Post Office officials has been materially less than the people have a right to expect and that the delay in the transmission of the mails has caused serious inconvenience to American business men from one end of the country to the other. An investigation of postal methods, with a view to increasing the efficiency of the department, is suggested.

(1) That mails are not dispatched with former frequency;

(2) That they are not fully worked in transit;

(3) That in consequence much stuck letter mail is turned into the terminal stations and there materially delayed;

(4) That inferior mails move with extreme slowness;

(5) That train delays are not a principal cause of slowness in the mails, but that

(6) Insufficiency in the number of railway postal cars, their withdrawal from a great number of routes throughout the United States, and reduction of the crews of railway postal cars appear to be the main causes of the conditions shown.

An additional cause, says the report, is the space basis of payment to the railroads, which leads to the consolidation of mails upon a lessened number of trains, thereby reducing the frequency of dispatch, causing the detention of trains for the purpose of transferring mails and overburdening storage cars to such an extent as to prevent the proper working of mails in transit, resulting in the detention of such mails in terminal stations.

The criticism of mail service in New York first became known last December when the Broadway Association, after a series of test letters mailed in various parts of the city, showed that mails were far from regular even within the city. Letters from Washington, D. C., and outlying places, such as Poughkeepsie, also showed that something was wrong. The Broadway Association addressed a report to Postmaster Patten of New York, and about the same time the Merchants' Association announced they would make a test that would cover the entire country. The present report is the outcome of this test. The inquiry was ordered by the Board of Directors of the association, and was made by the association's Committee on Postal Affairs, aided by the Research Bureau and a corps of experts.

Through the American Bankers' Association envelopes were obtained covering the daily mail for a ten-day period in twenty-three banking centres. An analysis was made of the postal train records on twenty-six railroads to develop the causes and extent of the delays to those trains. Analysis was also made to learn from Post Office reports of the reductions in postal car service.

In addition, about ten thousand test letters with return envelopes were mailed in two series to 800 correspondents scattered from one end of the United States to the other. In the first test one letter and in the second test two letters at different hours were mailed to correspondents daily for twelve consecutive days, exclusive of Sundays and holidays. These various tests and analyses brought out the following conditions of fact, which were embodied in the report:

First, that material and in many cases serious delays in the transmission of mails are general throughout the United States; second, that on more than 25 per cent. of the postal trains mail service has been wholly abolished or greatly curtailed; third, serious delays occur in the assorting and forwarding of mails in terminal stations; fourth, owing to insufficient postal car space or insufficient time for loading, large quantities of mail are habitually left on platforms of principal stations of important mail routes from New York; fifth, the movement of important postal trains has been until recently seriously delayed by the conditions imposed by the Post Office Department as to loading and unloading of mail at important stations.

The report cites cases of where letters have been as long as from ten to thirteen days in transmission between cities in the South and New York.

In the matter of terminal delays, the report has this to say about conditions in New York City:

In this city terminal delays to inferior mails have been, during recent months, continuous and prolonged, and great accumulations of mail have resulted. For many weeks not only were the platforms at the Pennsylvania terminal crowded to the ceiling, but large stacks of mail, probably numbering several thousand sacks, were piled in the adjoining area, open to the sky and without protection. By reason of the great accumulation, no space was left for working, and much of the mail was untouched for many successive days. In this case the condition seems to have been in large part due to the failure of the department to comply with the Postmaster's urgent demand for more space. It is stated that the congestion, after persisting for weeks, was finally cleared up by a desperate remedy, namely, by shipping the unworked mail to the extent of several carloads per week to other cities, there to be assorted and forwarded. Similar conditions have frequently prevailed at the Grand Central terminal station, and considerable detention there of inferior mails is common.

In view of the great increase in postal business it might be reasonably expected that the facilities of the department would have been correspondingly expanded to cope with the increased business. This has not been done. On the contrary, by reason of a fundamental change in departmental policy and methods, postal facilities have been greatly reduced, with the result that the efficiency of the service has been seriously impaired. The railway postal car service—the most essential and serviceable factor in the prompt movement of the mail—has been heavily curtailed without supplying an adequate substitute.

Camp Concert at Mrs. Hammond's.

The ballroom at the residence of Mrs. John Henry Hammond, 9 East Ninety-first Street, was the scene yesterday afternoon of a camp concert, given by Mr. and Mrs. Francis Rogers in aid of the Art Workers' Club for Women.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers recently returned from a tour of the camps at the front where they entertained the American soldiers as well as the men of the Allies. They repeated their program of entertainment for the soldiers, giving amusing anecdotes, recitations, and songs. The several hundred women assembled joined heartily in the chorus when Mr. Rogers sang "Pack up your troubles in your old kit bag."

TO OUST DR. LUCK FROM PASSAIC SCHOOL BOARD

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., May 16.—Dr. Paul Luck, leading member of the German-American Alliance and the Passaic Turn Verein and a member of the Board of Education, will be removed as a member of the School Board by action of Mayor George N. Seger, who today announced that he would demand his resignation "on the grounds that his recent utterances in the press were un-American."

Dr. Luck, prior to the meeting of the School Board on Monday evening of this week, when the German language was eliminated from the High School curriculum, bitterly assailed those who petitioned the board for its expulsion. He declared that they were "blockheads," and that the members of the local branch of the American Defense Society, who petitioned the board, were "ridiculous."

In a statement given to reporters on Monday morning, Dr. Luck highly praised German Kultur and the German ideas of education, comparing them with the American, which, he said, were "not good." He declared that German should be taught in every school in the country and that it should be made compulsory. The course in the High School in this city was elective and nearly 300 students took the subject.

There were about fifty citizens present at the board meeting on Monday evening, who demanded of the board that it eliminate the subject. Dr. Luck denounced them openly at the meeting. When William W. Welch, a Passaic lawyer, said that the statements in the newspapers of Monday afternon made by Dr. Luck "were more seditious than those made by men now in internment camps," Dr. Luck replied:

"But you can't intern me; I am an American citizen."

Mr. Walch's answer to that was that his citizenship papers could be taken away from him by the Government, and that he could then be interned.

Dr. Luck declared to newspaper men on Monday that "a country that has fought the whole world for more than three years must be a wonderful country, and the language of that country worthy of studying."

Mayor Seger said that he had received a "large number" of letters from citizens who demanded that Dr. Luck be removed, and that a greater number had made the same demand to him personally.

"I feel," he said, "that the demand is general and that there is a general feeling that the doctor's utterances are un-American."

Dr. Luck is about 55 years old. He was born in Germany and came to America twenty-six years ago. He has been a citizen. He is an eye, ear, nose, and throat specialist, and is considered well-to-do. He has long been active in the German-American organizations in Passaic, especially the German-American Alliance and the Passaic Turn Verein, and he was active in the big German-Austro-Hungarian War Fund drive before the United States entered the war.

Even Dr. Luck's closest friends were greatly surprised at his statements. They say that they always felt he was loyal to the United States and that they never knew him to give Germany any praise.

He was appointed a member of the Board of Education a little more than a year ago by Mayor Seger.

In an effort to stop the spread of anarchistic propaganda, Federal officials last night arrested Salvatore Sergi, a barber of 112 East Hanover Street, Trenton, N. J. The warrant was forwarded from the Department of Labor in Washington. Sergi came here in 1917 from Italy, and will probably be deported.

Frederick Fedoff and Tony Tachin, convicted of making seditious speeches in Bayonne recently, were yesterday sentenced to serve ten years in State's prison.

John Sulzcki of 157 Eighth Street, Jersey City, a Russian, was held in $5,000 bail in Jersey City yesterday on the charge that he tore up a service flag and made disloyal remarks about the Government.

Oscar Matson, a Finn, who was found wandering around the Picatinny Arsenal, near Dover, N. J., with wood alcohol and matches in his possession, was arrested last night by army intelligence officers. No charge has been made against the man. He is suspected of having come into the country without going through the immigrant inspection and, if this is proved, he will be deported.

DRAFT BILL GOES TO WILSON

House Adopts Conference Report Exempting Medical Students.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The House today passed without a record vote the conference report on the bill requiring registration in the draft of youths who have become 21 years of age since June 5 last. The Senate previously had agreed to the report, and after its passage by the House it was sent to the President.

As finally agreed to, the bill provides that men registered under it shall be placed at the bottom of the lists of those classes to which they will be assigned, and that students now in medical and theological schools shall be exempt from the draft.

The only opposition to the bill in the House today was on the student exemption feature. Representative McKenzie of Illinois, Republican, denounced the provision as "class legislation, un-American, and violative of the principle that all Americans are equal."

Representative Kahn of California, Republican, in reply, said it was necessary to exempt medical students in order that the doctors who lose their lives in the war may be replaced and the country saved from a recurrence of the prevalence of "quacks" from which it suffered some twenty-five years ago.

SCHOOL TO RAISE $300,000.

A campaign for a war service fund of $300,000 is being conducted by the St. Agnes School for Girls of Albany, to provide an endowment to be used in giving free instruction and board to the daughters of men in the army and navy of the United States, who are without means or are killed in service. No discrimination will be made between children of different religions. At least 50 per cent. of the fund will be invested in Liberty bonds, it is said. A subscription of $15,000 will provide an endowed scholarship, $700 will pay for a student for a year, including vacations, and $500 will pay for a student for a school year. All contributions, it is announced, should be made payable to the St. Agnes's School War Fund and sent to Jonas H. Brooks, Treasurer, 55 Elk Street, Albany, N. Y.

CRADLE DEADLIER THAN WAR

Health Expert Says 4 Per Cent. Die in Allied Armies and 12 Per Cent. in Infancy.

Accepting as their inspiration the slogan "We must Hooverize our children" and "No mother's baby is safe until every mother's baby is safe," the Health Committee of the Mayor's Committee of Women on National Defense met yesterday afternoon at the City Hall and officially opened the Federal Children's Year, the object of which is to aid in saving the lives of 100,000 children under 5 years of age in the United States.

Dr. S. Josephine Baker, Director of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the Health Department, who acted as Chairman, announced that to New York City had been assigned the task of saving the lives of 4,700 babies under the age of 5 in the coming year. The meeting was attended by several hundred delegates from a large number of social, civic, and neighborhood organizations.

In outlining the scope of the work, Dr. Baker said that there were four casualties in the allied armies out of every 100 men engaged in the course of the year.

"In the United States, 12 babies out of every 100 die in the course of the year," she added. "So that one way of putting it would be to say that it is three times safer to be a soldier in the trenches in this horrible war than to be a baby in the cradle in the United States.

"It is not only a necessity but a patriotic duty to see that our children are well cared for," she continued. "We are spending our manhood in the war but we cannot afford to lose the next generation. The children of this generation will take up the affairs of the world in the period of reconstruction and carry it on.

"In Europe they have seen fit to save more babies and to devote more time and money to child welfare work than to anything else except fighting," Dr. Baker declared. With reference to malnutrition, she asserted that at the present time but 1,500,000 quarts of milk were sold in the city, a decline of 500,000 below that of last year.

"The children of the poor have almost been compelled to forego the use of milk from their diet and they have been given wine, tea, and beer instead," she added. "In New York City the birth rate has already gone down since we entered the war. The infant death rate is increasing and undernourishment is increasing. We are going through the same experience of Europe only we are three years behind those countries, but we have not learned our lesson.

"We are going to need the whole-hearted and vigorous assistance of every woman in the city. We are going to have volunteer doctors and we must have volunteer assistants to them, women who will work in the examination centres and who will do the follow-up work. In a week or two Teachers College will start a training course for volunteer helpers, and I hope many women will take the course."

The five boroughs of New York City will co-operate in the work. The Committee on Home Care and Nursing, of which Miss Lillian Wald is Chairman, is planning a house-to-house canvass in order that every mother may be reached. Meetings and exhibits will be held in all the boroughs.

In the course of the meeting copies of the President's letter indorsing the movement were passed around. Volunteers were asked to apply to the Headquarters for Children's Year, 139 Centre Street.

Health Commissioner Copeland returned yesterday from Washington, and announced that he had established working relations with the Federal departments. He said he invited two of the sanitarians from the Navy Department and the Public Health Service to come to New York in order to make a survey with a view to aiding the Health Department control those matters that were of interest to the Government. The Federal authorities will take no internes away from the city hospitals or do anything to embarrass the city Health Department, Dr. Copeland said, except in cases of stern necessity.

Mrs. Laura G. Cauble, Deputy Commissioner of Public Markets, called on the Health Commissioner yesterday, and discussed with him the problem of furnishing the poor of the city with milk at low prices. Dr. Copeland said that next week he would hold a conference with the city and State Commissioners of Food, and with some farmers, and the question of the milk supply would be gone into.

HEALTH DRIVE OPENS MAY 26.

Will Aim to Rid City of Dump Heaps and Piles of Rubbish.

Health Commissioner Copeland, speaking before the Civic Club, 14 West Twelfth Street, announced last night that the health drive of his department would begin on Sunday, May 26, and would last a week. The purpose of the drive will be to rid the city of the dump heaps and rubbish piles and the insanitary accumulations due to neglect and carelessness that contribute to disease.

Dr. Copeland said that it was his purpose to further the work of the Bureau of Public Health Education and not to disband this activity of the department. He also declared that the Bureau of Child Hygiene would devote itself with even greater energy than in the past to every activity of the Department of Health that had to do with the health and development of child life in the city.

The Health Commissioner announced that the facilities of the Health Department had been placed at the disposal of the Federal authorities in the effort to care for the soldiers and sailors who visit and pass through the city.

War Relief Committee Estimate Year's Need at $15,000,000.

It was announced by the American Jewish Relief Committee for Sufferers from the War yesterday that $2,786,400 had been collected for the 1918 fund of the organization by appeals sent to Jews throughout the country. It was added that to meet increasing demands in providing food and clothing for the Jews in Europe it had been estimated that the American Jewish Relief Committee must raise a fund of $15,000,000 this year. Recent cablegrams tell of increased suffering among the three million Jews in Poland and Eastern Europe, it was said.

According to an officer of the committee, Baltimore raised $430,000, while Wilmington, Del., is nearing the close of a drive for $100,000. Clarksdale, Miss., with a Jewish population of thirty-three families, led in per capita contributions, raising $12,000. A spirit of co-operation between Jew and Gentile in the cause of war relief work was displayed throughout the campaign, said the committee's representative, as many contributions were received from non-Jews.

THREATEN TO STOP ALL SUBWAY WORK

Employes Demand Advance of One-third—Service Board Asks Estimate Board to Act.

About a week ago the men employed on the new subways notified the contractors that unless they received a 33 per cent. increase in their wages by May 15 they would seek work elsewhere. The men were asked to delay action until the contractors could discuss the matter with the Mayor and the Public Service Commission, under the new law permitting the commission and the Board of Estimate to abrogate present contracts and save the contractors from further loss due to increased costs of labor and materials.

On Tuesday representatives of the contractors and the workmen discussed the matter with the commission, and later went to City Hall to talk with the Mayor, but the Mayor refused to see them without a special appointment. Yesterday the contractors again called upon the commission, and Acting Chairman Whitney wrote to the Board of Estimate, setting forth the need for haste if the 5,000 men employed on the subway were to continue the work. After referring to the law permitting new arrangements to be made with contractors, the letter said:

"It seems important that both the Board of Estimate and the commission should at once declare whether they propose to proceed under this law. It is the opinion of the commission that such a declaration should be made at this time because both the labor forces and the contractors should know what the attitude of these bodies will be. If relief is assured where it is warranted by the facts it would undoubtedly stabilize the labor situation and help the contractors in fixing their policy.

"The situation is that the labor organizations have made a demand upon the commission and the contractors for the scale of wages now offered in similar lines by the Federal Government in this vicinity. The declaration to the commission by the contractors' association is that unless relief is possible the wages cannot be paid.

"On the other hand the officers of the labor unions state that unless the men are assured that they will receive this scale it will be impossible to hold them. To this extent, therefore, an emergency has arisen which can be met only under the authority granted by the Lockwood law."

The commission suggests that the Board of Estimate name a committee to confer with a similar committee of the commission to discuss the matter. The letter says a few months ago there remained $35,000,000 worth of work to be completed before $80,000,000 worth of rapid transit lines could be put into operation. But about $7,500,000 worth of work has been done since, so there remains less than $30,000,000 worth to be completed.

Part of the uncompleted work is in the Seventh Avenue and Lexington Avenue Subways, which the commission hopes to have in operation by midsummer. It was said yesterday by representatives of the contractors that if the timbermen, laborers, drill runners, and other workmen should quit it would be impossible to hire men to take their places and that subway work would be halted indefinitely.

F. L. Cranford, President of the General Contractors' Association, said the wages of the men had been increased within two years by 67 per cent., and if the present demanded increase of 33 per cent. were granted it would mean that wages would have been doubled since the contracts were let.

Mr. Cranford said that one morning newspaper contained six full pages of want advertisements and that subway workers knew they could get employment immediately at a much higher pay.

GOETHALS EXPLAINS PLANS.

Tells House Committee How Supplies Will Be Shipped to Army.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The Government's freight diversion plan, as explained to the House Military Committee today by Major Gen. Goethals, acting Quartermaster General, contemplates shipment of supplies to American troops as follows: From New York, 65 per cent.; Baltimore and Norfolk, 10 per cent. each, and Philadelphia, Charleston, and New Orleans, 5 per cent each.

Major Gen. Black, chief of engineers, told the committee $230,000,000 was needed for cantonment construction in France, and asked for $250,000,000 more for the purchase in France of supplies other than railroad materials.

General Goethals said terminal storage depots at the various ports would be of a permanent character. He asked an additional $150,000,000 for their construction, which will make a total of $300,000,000.

Asked if the large amount of freight intended for shipment through New York would not add to the congestion of the port, General Goethals said the Allies were arranging to move a large part of the future supplies through Southern ports, which would relieve New York. General Goethals said the Brooklyn terminals would not be abandoned in favor of a proposed location in New Jersey.

The committee will report the army bill, on which today's hearings were based, substantially in accord with the estimates already made public, totaling $11,771,666,848. About $3,000,000,000 for heavy ordnance and fortifications will be recommended in addition by another committee.

In excellent health and keenly interested in affairs, particularly the war, Levi P. Morton, once Vice President, yesterday celebrated his ninety-fourth birthday. At his home, 400 Park Avenue, it was said that Mr. Morton had not yet returned from his usual six months' stay in Washington, but that he intended to do so in a couple of days, preparatory to passing the Summer at Ellerslie, his 1,000-acre estate at Rhinecliff-on-Hudson.

Mr. Morton was born at Shoreham, Vt., on May 16, 1824. He had retired from active political life when, in 1888, he accepted the nomination as Benjamin Harrison's running mate. Two years after he ceased to be Vice President he became Governor of New York, 1895-96. From 1881 to 1885 he was Minister to France.

Miss Mary W. McBurney a Bride.

The marriage of William Howard Gardiner, formerly of Boston, but who has resided for several years in New York, and Miss Mary W. McBurney, the daughter of Mrs. John W. McBurney, took place yesterday at the residence of the bride's mother, 118 East Fifty-fourth Street, in the presence of the members of the family and a few close friends. As Mrs. McBurney is in mourning, the wedding was a quiet one, and the bride had no attendants. Mr. Gardiner's best man was Candler Cobb. Mrs. Gardiner is a niece of Henry F. Eldridge, her mother having been Miss Louisa Eldridge.

Miss Patterson to Wed Tomorrow.

The wedding of Miss Emily Marie Patterson, granddaughter of former United States Marshal John Wesley Jacobus and Mrs. Jacobus of this city, and Charles Benjamin Brush will take place tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Central Presbyterian Church, Fifty-seventh Street and Madison Avenue. Miss Patterson has been active in Red Cross work.

Miss Faison Wed to Lieut. Norris.

Announcement is made of the marriage on Wednesday of Lieutenant John Langdon Norris of Boston, who has been assigned to aviation duty at Wichita, Kan., and Miss Elizabeth Faison, a daughter of Dr. W. F. Faison and Mrs. Faison, at their residence, 45 Glenwood Avenue, Jersey City. The Lieutenant and his bride will go to Wichita, Kan., to remain for the present.

TO DISCUSS STEEL NEEDS WITH BARUCH

COAL PROBLEM INVOLVED

Department's Requirements to be Canvassed and the Possible Output Considered.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Executives representing the large steel concerns will meet Bernard M. Baruch, Chairman of the War Industries Board, here tomorrow to determine the most effective way to control and distribute the steel output of the nation to help win the war. All phases of the situation, including the possible curtailment of less essential industries, coal production and transportation, will be considered. Government departments engaged in war work will be asked to submit estimates and the steel producers will be called upon for figures of plant capacity.

Among those asked to attend the conference are Charles M. Schwab, Chairman of the Board of Bethlehem Steel and Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation of the Shipping Board; E. H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of the United States Steel Corporation; J. A. Topping, Chairman of the Board of the Republic Iron & Steel Company; E. A. S. Clarke, President of the Lackawanna Steel Company; E. G. Grace, President of the Bethlehem Steel Company; J. A. Campbell, President of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, and J. A. Burden, President of the Burden Iron Company.

By some who are in close touch with the steel situation it has been held that the solution of the problems confronting the Government largely depends upon means to increase the coal supply and better the transportation facilities so that there will be no repetition of the conditions of last Winter.

In connection with the output of steel it has been argued that there will be sufficient for ship construction and all the ammunition and guns that can be transported without cutting down many less essential industries to a point that would mean practical suspension.

Such a situation, it has been held, does not call for more control of the steel industries than those which have already been taken.

A stir has been caused by proposals to cut the output of passenger automobiles to 25 per cent. of normal and treat the piano industry in a similar manner. Arguments against such steps have served to suspend, temporarily at least, a program of drastic curtailment of many industries.

It is believed that a better idea of the steps necessary to speed up the war program will be obtained when estimates, showing the needs of the War and Navy Departments and Shipping Board, are presented in concrete form. It can then be determined whether the needs of these departments will permit the use of steel by other industries on any considerable scale and whether it is practicable to attempt a large increase in the output of the steel mills.

The plans of the Shipping Board for expansion of its program are a factor in bringing about the present situation. The Shipping Board will want steel enough next year to build more than 10,000,000 tons of steel ships. Officials of the steel industries think that this amount can be supplied in addition to the requirements of the navy and the army without cutting off many of the less essential industries.

COULD BLOCK PUBLISHERS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The announcement that periodical publishers were contemplating the removal of their publishing houses to Canada to avail themselves of a possible advantage over the zone system of mailing rates in this country, which goes into effect July 1, attracted very little attention at the Post Office Department today. The matter was brought to the attention of Postmaster General Burleson but he had no comment to make upon it. Assistant Postmaster General J. S. Coons, who has charge of the administration of postal rates, said he had not sufficiently examined the proposition to gather just what the publishers thought they could accomplish.

An official in the department who said he could not undertake to speak for the attitude of the Postmaster General or for the policy of the Administration upon the matter, said: "The idea of moving their business to Canada in advance of any understanding with the department would be fatal. Such matters are so easily controlled by the Governments concerned that little time would elapse before the publishers would find themselves as badly off in Canada as they think they will be here.

"The postal laws can be quickly changed by international postal conventions, and, even if that were not the practice, Congress could speedily act in a manner to catch up with the proposed arrangement and flank it entirely. About ten years ago a question arose as to the treatment of our publishers in Canada. The Canadian postal authorities took the position that they could not carry our magazines and weeklies at the second-class rates prevailing in the United States, and announced the intention to make rates based on cost. The United States Post Office Department sent Second Assistant Postmaster General Shalenberger and Mr. Bacon, the Chief Law Clerk of the department at that time, to Canada and an amendment to the existing postal treaty was negotiated by which the matter was promptly adjusted to the satisfaction of both countries and the publishers.

"In the present case this might not be so easily attainable, but any effort to get by the new zone rates if this Government seriously proposes to collect them would hardly make headway long. So far as I know the matter, however, has hardly come to the attention of officials here in the department. I confess that until it was called to my attention I had not noticed the proposal. The plan I suppose would be in many cases for the publishers to move their printed periodicals by freight or express in bulk to convenient Canadian points for mailing, and in others the printing could actually be done in Canada. To establish the business of printing on the scale required for some of our publications would be a gigantic task, involving large expenditure of capital that could hardly be risked in the face of the certain action of both Governments to adjust any possible advantage in rates for Canadian mail matter over that of this country."

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., May 16.—Discussing the suggestion that American magazine publishers might find it profitable to issue their periodicals from Canada, offered by Charles Johnson Post, director of the Publishers' Advisory Board, at a meeting yesterday in New York, Cyrus K. Curtis, President of the Curtis Publishing Company, today said:

"If the postal authorities continue their present attitude toward the publishing business of the country it may be that, in desperation, they will have to take some such step in the future, provided they are convinced there will be no change for the better in the situation. In the present stage, however, the proposition seems to be too vague to warrant further discussion."

CHICAGO, May 16.—George B. Harris, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Burlington Railroad, suffered a slight stroke of apoplexy on Wednesday morning, but today he was reported better. His brother, John F. Harris, of Harris, Winthrop & Co., formerly of Chicago and now a resident of New York, it at his brother's bedside. Mr. Harris has been connected with the Burlington road for fifty-two years. He is 70 years old. In 1910 he retired from the Presidency of the road after nine years in that office.

THOMAS F. FREEL DEAD.

Thomas F. Freel, Superintendent of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, died suddenly from pneumonia yesterday at his home, 64 Bay Seventeenth Street, Brooklyn, in his fifty-sixth year. Mr. Freel had been with the S. P. C. A. for ten years, and before that had a long career in the New York Fire Department, serving as a Fire Marshal in the administration of Mayor Low.

Mr. Freel was born in this city, and attended St. James's School. He had been a member of the Fire Department for twenty-seven years at the time of his retirement ten years ago. He rose to be Battalion Chief and served several years as an Assistant Fire Marshal before he became Marshal. While a member of the fire-fighting force he received the Stephenson Medal for efficiency, and a Congressional medal for bravery in rescuing persons during his service with the harbor squad.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 16.—A tumor which grew to such dimensions that made it impossible for the other organs of the chest cavity to function properly caused the death today of Dr. B. E. Jacobson, chief resident physician at the Hebrew Hospital, at the institution.

The physician's ailment was an exceedingly rare one, and the case attracted much attention among medical men. A number of the most prominent physicians of Baltimore were called into consultation. The tumor's position made an operation inadvisable.

The North American Pulp and Paper Companies Trust reports a gross operating income of $3,528,451 in the year ended Dec. 31, a decline of $434,659 from the total in 1916. Operating expenses decreased $524,000, and the outside income of $629,386 showed an increase of $421,137. Administrative expenses, interest charges, &c., absorbed $1,218,500, and the final surplus before providing for minority stockholders' interests was $105,165, compared with a deficit of $309,360 the year before.

The annual meeting of stockholders was held on Tuesday. They were informed by J. E. A. Dubuc, President, that earnings had not come up to the expectations held at the opening of the year because of war conditions. The necessity of turning over part of the coal supply at the St. Lawrence mill to the Canadian Government, he said, had retarded operations. Fuel conditions for the current year, he stated, were satisfactory.

Stock Exchange Seat Brings $53,000

The New York Stock Exchange membership of Frederick H. Tate was yesterday posted for transfer to Thomas F. Nelson. The price of the seat was $53,000, a decline of $2,000 from the last previous sale of an Exchange seat. The firm of Auchincloss, Joost & Patrick yesterday proposed to substitute Sherman B. Joost as floor member in place of James C. Auchincloss.

Hotel Ansonia
Boneless Shad
The magic of the Ansonia chef has removed the objection, namely, the bones. The deliciously rich and full flavored meat of this most famous fish is served in a number of ways, each as a masterpiece of culinary art. To those who have never tasted Shad a la Ansonia, there is a new epicurean delight in store.

WABASH EARNS $4,227,105.

The report of the Wabash Railway Company for the calendar year 1917, published yesterday, shows a decrease of operating income for the year of $1,127,567, in spite of an increase of $2,750,894 in gross operating revenues, which attained the record total of $40,471,990. Operating expenses increased during the year to $28,468,896, a rise of $3,594,479, while taxes increased by $283,983.

The net income of the road was $4,227,105, a decrease of $1,163,803, and sufficient to pay the 5 per cent. dividend on the A preferred stock, with approximately 4 per cent. left over for the 5 per cent. B preferred stock, and nothing for the common.

Good Neckwear Business.

Neckwear manufacturers report that buyers are still fairly active in this market, and that their factories are running to as near capacity production as the present labor conditions will permit. Guimpes of various sorts and sizes have had an unusual run of popularity this season, due, for one thing, it is said, to the vogue for sleeveless coats and sweaters. Neckpieces of foulard and of satin have been and still are well sought. Linen is also said to be favored for this purpose. Cuffs to match the collars are frequently wanted. White and very bright colors seem to have been the leaders of the season.

Men's Straw Hats Selling.

Business in men's straw hats is said to be starting off this season with a rush. As compared with last year, when the weather, it is recalled, was not so favorable to straw hats, buying has been exceptionally active. In many cases, the records for this same period a year ago have been doubled and even trebled. Manufacturers, therefore, are preparing for a rush of reorders which they believe will begin to come in very shortly if the present rate of buying at retail is at all maintained. It was pointed out that merchants generally did not buy heavily this year, and that therefore they have not very large stocks on hand.

From present indications, satin or shiny-faced silks are going to be the feature in Fall dresses. The famous crêpe twins—Georgette and de Chine—will again occupy a prominent place on the style stage. There is some talk that evening dresses of very soft taffetas will repeat former successes, but not much else is heard of in the trade these days so far as the so-called staples are concerned. With the new season so very young, manufacturers are in most cases loath to raise the curtain on their novelties, so what the new models will show in this respect is something of a mystery at the moment.

Retail Business Improves.

Business in the local department stores is said to be showing marked improvement this month over April. And in volume of business so far, this Spring is said to be a trifle ahead of the same period last year. One of the best features of the present business is said to be the great decrease in returned goods. Many stores report that their percentage of returns this Spring has been cut down one-half as compared with last Spring. "While this may be attributed in part to the seven days' limitation for returns which we have placed on all goods by Government request," said the general manager of one of the largest stores, "I think the fact that people are more careful these days in their purchases has a great deal more to do with it."

Men's Sports Clothes Sought.

Though it was thought last Winter by some authorities in the trade that sports clothes for men would not move very rapidly this Spring, it is said now that the contrary is proving to be the case. White flannel and white linen trousers seem to be very much in demand for so early in the season, and knickerbockers for golf are also well taken. Coat sweaters of various sorts are popular and the darker colors, with navy blue predominating, are usually preferred. Sweaters made along Norfolk jacket lines seem to be particularly liked in many sections, though the straight coat sweater is the best general seller.

Gray Goods Prices Still Firmer.

Gray goods prices continued to firm up in the local market yesterday, in spite of the fact that business could easily have been larger. Second hands are now practically out of the market as sellers, and, with the increasing scarcity of goods resulting from their withdrawal, prices are heading back toward the recent high levels. June and July deliveries of 38½-inch 60-48s were sold yesterday by first hands at 16 cents, and similar shipments of 60-52s in that width sold at 16¼ cents from the same sources. The mills are not keen about selling 39-inch goods while the Government is still looking around, and this is particularly true of 68-72s. May deliveries of 39-inch 72-76s, however, were sold yesterday at 22½ cents. Coarse-yarn goods continued featureless. This is the way mill prices on printcloths closed:

War-time conditions in London, as outlined by H. Gordon Selfridge on his recent visit to this country, are manifesting themselves in this city in so far as they affect the retail dry goods business. While reports from well-known establishments say that business is well ahead of last year now in dollars and cents, in spite of the Garfield days that set the January totals well back of those for the same month in 1917, a distinct change in the character of the consumer demand has come about. As was said by Mr. Selfridge about England, the war has made the rich poorer and the poor richer. The result is that, while the former are apparently economizing, the latter are doing the reverse. Expensive shoes, hats, hose, &c., are now being bought by women who four years ago would have thought it rank extravagance to pay more than $5 for a pair of shoes and $1,50 for a pair of silk stockings.

Raw Silk Prices Steady.

Reports from various leading raw silk markets indicate that buying has been none too heavy in the last week or so, but that prices are quite generally sustained at recent levels. Good silks of all kinds are in light supply at Yokohoma, and certain grades will be entirely missing from that market before long. At Canton there is some disposition on the part of reelers to attract new business, but no concessions of importance have been made. At Shanghai the feature has been the movement of tsatlees, the best grades of which have been disposed of for the remainder of the season. Milan is reported active, particularly so far as Lyons buyers are concerned, and prices are stronger. Local buying has been lately confined almost entirely to filling current needs.

Though retailers generally have done a fairly good business in women's suits of the lighter shades, many manufacturers are complaining that garments in these hues are coming back by the score. So marked has the returning of light-colored suits been, according to the bulletin of the National Garment Retailers' Association, that one well-known manufacturer says that if it were left to him this season, he would not make up suits in any other color than navy blue. This color, he says, was the best and nearly the only seller in Spring suits. He went on to say that in former years grays and tans had sold so well in the South and West, but that this season nearly every buyer had bought navy. As a result, he lost quite a tidy sum in making up tans, sands, and grays.

Some of the leading local wholesale millinery houses are introducing "tams" made entirely of accordion-pleated taffeta or Georgette. Hats of this type were displayed here about a year ago this time and were quite popular, but it is anticipated that they will meet with larger success this year because accordion pleating is being used extensively on dresses. The visit of the French "Blue Devils," with their "toppy" tams to this city may also have some effect in stimulating the demand for these models. Some of the new hats have small mushroom brims, while others fit close to the head and have no brims at all. They are trimmed with tassels or buttons placed on top of the crowns, the buttons sometimes being of soutache braid. A few models are offered in white, but the bulk of those seen at the moment are in navy blue.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

For the manner in which stocks acted yesterday in a session which saw the biggest turnover since the selling that took place on Feb. 1, 1917, there was an apparent explanation. The rise which it was so easy to initiate with the market almost bare of stocks got beyond control, and in doing so called attention to the unstable foundations on which the higher levels have been established. Prices have moved forward by from five to twenty points without any real distribution of securities, and whereas two weeks ago the banks were being called upon to finance only a small part of the normal amount of margin trading they are now being asked to carry in large volume stocks which have been marked up much more rapidly than any change in the underlying business or political factors justifies.

There was a marked difference in the attitude of bankers and professional traders toward the rise after the excited opening yesterday morning. They began to urge greater caution, and some of the largest commission houses which have been consistently bullish in recent weeks set about getting their customers out of the stocks which they bought in the final hours of the loan campaign. They consider the market in a vulnerable position, partly because of the lack of discretion shown in the eager rush for issues that were picked out for pool control, and partly because the rise has not brought about the short selling which would act as a brake on a decline in the event of bad news.

It is generally held by experienced traders that conditions have warranted a general advance in security prices, but the public has shown little disposition to take stocks on an investment basis. When a non-dividend issue like Baldwin moves 21 points in less than a fortnight without any extraordinary stimulus from news affecting the company it is obvious that an unhealthy speculative condition has been created that would not have resulted had the advance been made over a period of several weeks. Too many people have been buying stocks for no other reason than that they were moving rapidly, and without seeking to discover the justification for the advance.

Considerations such as these brought about liquidation and profit-taking in most of the recent market leaders yesterday, which brought about declines from the day's high running to more than 6 points, in the case of Baldwin, and from 3 to 5 points in other issues. Notwithstanding these reactions the list closed irregular with most of the changes on the side of higher prices. Steel moved through a range of 2⅝ points, closing practically unchanged near the lowest price of the day. In New Haven there was a movement of 3½ points, which resulted in a net decline of 1⅞. Midvale closed 4 points under its best price of the day, but nevertheless 2¼ points above its previous close. The cross-currents of speculation were so violent as to indicate clearly the effect of heavy selling on the part of the professionals in conflict with a wider buying demand from the public. It has happened before that in such a conflict the public has controlled the market and forced prices higher in the face of all that the big operators have been able to do. They may repeat the performance in this market if selling is not induced by the receipt of bad news. Sales yesterday ran to over 1,700,000 shares, closely approaching the record made in a falling market on the announcement of the beginning of Germany's present submarine policy.

Call loans were made at 5½ per cent. yesterday, with 6 per cent. being paid for borrowing secured by all industrial collateral. The Liberty 4¼s were steadier and closed only slightly under 98 after a comparatively dull session in this department.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

There was only one rate for call money yesterday—5½ per cent. for loans based on mixed collateral and 6 per cent. for those backed by securities of industrial companies. For the first time yesterday call money on industrials was put out on the floor of the Stock Exchange, and henceforth two call money rates will be quoted, the variation amounting to ½ of 1 per cent. Heretofore all call loans made on the floor were based on railroad or mixed collateral and call loans secured on industrials had to be made by brokers at their banks.

By reason of the activity of the stock market time money was in considerable demand, the rate for sixty-day loans being 5¾ to 6 per cent.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Marine's British Fleet.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the International Mercantile Marine Company yesterday was made the occasion for a reappearance of the story of negotiations pending for the sale by the company to a British syndicate of all its ships under the British flag, for a sum said to be around $125,000,000. President Franklin, however, after the meeting made it clear that the deal was still just where it had been for some six months—in a state of suspended animation. Meanwhile Marine preferred sold up a point on the day.

Markets like yesterday's and others of the last week have naturally invited substantial sales of stocks on the part of holders who bought them further down. A sharp advance of Dutch exchange and another forward movement of exchange on Switzerland yesterday were explained on the theory that remittances were in increased demand in the process of sending out the proceeds of American securities sold by Dutch and Swiss owners. The quotation of 3.99 Swiss francs to the dollar, compared with the normal rate of 5.1826, established a new high record for Swiss cable transfers, and represented a premium of close to 30 per cent. at this centre. The Dutch rate of 50.50 cents to the guilder was a half cent higher than the day before, and made the premium above normal approximately 25 per cent.

Haste to Buy Stocks.

The wild manner in which stocks were bid up in the first quarter hour of business indicated that a lot of speculators feared there would not be enough to go around. This was especially evident in Baldwin Locomotive, with an overnight gain of a half point expanded in a few minutes to an advance of 4¾ points.

Deposits of Tax Receipts.

The bankers of the country having failed to convince Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo of the desirability of having Congress enact legislation permitting of the payment of Federal income and excess profits taxes in installments, instead of in bulk, on June 15, are now endeavoring to persuade the Secretary to deposit the tax funds with the banks under an arrangement by which the funds would be withdrawn in regular installments. The Secretary has announced that the tax receipts would be deposited with banks—in fact that has never been questioned—but the point made by bankers is that conditions of the money market make it imperative that the depositary institutions should know in advance when and in what amounts these funds are to be withdrawn by the Government. In the case of the deposit of proceeds of Liberty bond sales or sales of certificates of indebtedness, banks have usually received a few days' notice of withdrawals of funds, but in some instances no notice has been given. It is urged that in respect to tax funds the Treasury Department arrange to make withdrawals at stated periods, the intervals between each installment withdrawal being as long as possible. Banks pay the Government 2 per cent. interest on deposits.

Several persons who in the last two days have called at Federal Reserve Bank to have their Liberty bond coupons cashed, have complained that banks in their neighborhoods had refused to pay cash for the United States bond coupons. Several women reported that they had to spend about two hours in traveling and 10 cents in car fare in an effort to collect their $1 interest on their bonds. Inquiries made at various banks elicited the information that the Presidents were under the impression that their tellers were cashing coupons, and that the refusal to accommodate the public was the fault of clerks who had either failed to receive positive instructions or else were disinclined to be bothered with the work.

Clogging the Ticker.

The turnover in excess of 500,000 shares in the first hour taxed the capacity of the ticker and the ticker operators. The congestion convinced followers of the bond market more than at other less active periods of the need of a separate ticker for bond transactions.

The Manganese Situation.

The Committee on Steel and Steel Products, headed by Elbert H. Gary, appealed to manufacturers yesterday to reduce the manganese content in ferromanganese and spiegeleisen as an alloy. The prescribed reduction announced will tend to promote the use of ore containing a lower percentage of manganese than in the past, to the end that ship room may be saved on vessels coming from Brazil. The change in manufacturing practice will increase the use of domestic ores. The committee's recommendation resulted from a close study of the situation by experts on alloys, with an eye to the discovery of means to economize, and at the same time to do nothing to reduce the steel output.

Selling Cotton Again.

There was a sudden waking up yesterday of the big Southern spot cotton markets, which might mean a number of things. Although the price quoted remained the same at all the principal markets save Houston, where it was 50 points higher, four different markets sold more than a thousand bales yesterday, where in previous days they had turned over at most a hundred or so. At Galveston 2,493 bales changed hands at 28.50c; at New Orleans 2,211 at 29.25c; at Houston 1,801 at 28c, and at Little Rock 1,386 at 30 cents. Apparently buyers and sellers are getting together again, as they usually do eventually.

The second offering of acceptances, amounting to $2,800,000, drawn under the $100,000,000 Cuban sugar credit granted by a group of bankers, was disposed yesterday in the open market. The rate paid was 4¼ per cent. and upward, depending upon the accepting bank. Last week there was an initial offering of $6,958,000 of sugar acceptances.

The British Shipping Rates.

A big shipping man yesterday remarked that he saw signs of effect of the persistent agitation which has been going on in England for a revision upward of the British Shipping Ministry "Blue Book" rates, which correspond to the official requisition rates made by the United States Shipping Board. It seems to be generally admitted now in England that these rates are too low in comparison with the present costs of upkeep and other expenses of shipowners. On the other hand, British shipping men, handling their own ships for Government account, have received considerably more liberal management fees than have yet been offered American shipping men by the Shipping Board, and the question on this side of the water is not even settled yet.

The place of these men (who have entered military service) will be taken in part by a class of women who heretofore have possessed little economic value. In other words, our girls are becoming assets instead of liabilities.—A. Barton Hepburn.

An Entirely New Proposition.

Marine insurance underwriters are doing some discussing and more than a little thinking just now about the concrete ship, to say nothing of the electrically welded steel ship, which is in sight around the corner, if it has not yet become an actuality. Some sort of tentative rates will have to be made for these types, and for the concrete ship the time when applications will be made is drawing near, but insurance men are not, to judge from their conversation, making much headway with their task of preparing for it. "Personally, I hope and believe both the concrete ship and the electric welded ship will be a success," said one of them yesterday, "but I admit I would feel a little uncomfortable about starting out across the Atlantic in one of them for the first voyage."

are so certain of victory that the only thing we can be at all undecided about is how long the war will last. With the conclusion of peace and the gradual return of normal conditions, many investors will undoubtedly regret their lack of decision at times when sound securities could be bought to yield well over 7%.

Another Use of Odd Lots

STOCK MARKET HAS 1,727,609 SHARE DAY

Prices Soar 2 to 6 Points in First Two Hours of Business, but Recede Rapidly.

CLIMAX OF RECENT TRADING

The sixth million-share session on the Stock Exchange in the current expansion of trading occurred yesterday and brought more excitement to Wall Street than any of the others. Under the leadership of tremendous buying of Baldwin Locomotive, Midvale Steel, Bethlehem Steel Class B, and United States Steel prices advanced from 2 to more than 6 points in the first two hours of business, and afterward dropped almost as rapidly, particularly in dealings near the end of the day. In case of most of the active stocks all except a small part of the upturn was lost in the late selling movement, and a number left off lower than on Wednesday.

The turnover of 1,727,609 shares was the greatest for any session since Feb. 1, 1917. During the first hour the ticker ran from five to ten minutes behind the course of business, owing to the extraordinary number of purchases to be recorded. The initial hour brought an output of close to 550,000 shares, and the scope of the business at the opening was illustrated by the fact that orders for 10,000 shares of steel were lumped at prices running from 112⅝ to 112⅞, to make the first transaction. On the preceding day Steel closed at 111¾.

The same influences which had caused the other million-share days came to the fore in exaggerated fashion again yesterday, centring in Baldwin Locomotive. The Street buzzed with rumors of a sort to stir up speculative fever on the buying side. The 9½-point gain in Baldwin the day before apparently had attracted heavy buying orders overnight, and as the rise of this stock had been coupled with the advance of Midvale Steel, the latter also felt the force of renewed speculative operations. The story of a pending merger between these companies was denied by Midvale Directors, but traders desired to have faith in stories that interests common to both concerns were accumulating the stocks and trailed along with a flood of buying orders.

When the reverse movement got under way it gained headway with rapidity, being helped along, according to gossip of the Exchange floor, by short selling from the professional element. Baldwin from a gross gain of nearly 5 points dissolved until at the close a net recession of 1⅛ points was marked up on the quotation boards. Bethlehem Steel, class B, and Midvale did considerably better, but the majority suffered from the afternoon selling. The movements of several active stocks are recorded in the following table:

	Gross Gain.	Net Gain.	Last Price.
American Locomotive	2	*1¼	68½
Baldwin Locomotive	4⅜	*1⅛	95⅞
Bethlehem Steel, B	6¼	3	90⅞

*Decline.

The bond market on the Exchange continued the forward movement begun when the Liberty Loan subscription lists were closed. The Liberty bonds were firm, on the whole. While railroad stocks were somewhat neglected, their prices gave a good account of themselves amid the changing phases of the industrial stocks.

COMMODITIES MARKETS.

WHEAT.

While stocks of wheat in America are down to almost the vanishing point, supplies in the Southern hemisphere are very liberal, and, if tonnage were available for its transportation, the problem of feeding the world would be solved. In this connection the increased activity in the construction of steamers is an important factor. India has a promise of a crop of about 400,000,000 bushels, which is nearly 17 per cent. larger than last year.

RYE.

CORN.

The corn market was nervous and feverish, advancing early on covering and declining late under heavy liquidation. At best the market is a narrow one, owing to the fact that the big bull market in stocks has detracted interest in that direction and has consequently very much reduced outside operations. In the local cash market kiln-dried No. 3 yellow was quoted at $1.60 and No. 4 yellow at $1.50, cost and freight New York.

OATS.

The oats market acted much in the same manner as corn, advancing early and breaking toward the close. Some authorities were of the opinion that the bearish influence of the fine crop outlook had been discounted for the time being, especially as any change in the situation will of necessity be bullish, as the crop advices have been almost perfect. The local cash market was quiet; natural quoted at 83½@85c, clipped white at 84½@88c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was feverish, and, after a slight early advance, prices broke under renewed liquidation, showing declines equal to the full extent allowed in any one day. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 20,000 head; estimated for Friday, 19,000 head; Kansas City received 4,000 and Omaha 8,000 hogs.

COFFEE.

The features which are being chiefly discussed in the coffee trade are those connected with Government regulations and Government purchases. After opening unchanged the market sagged slightly during the middle of the day under scattering liquidation, but stiffened up again, closing net unchanged to 3 points higher. The only business reported was in July at 8.26 and 8.27 and September at 8.36 and 8.37. The local spot market was dull and unchanged at 8⅝ for Rio 7s and 10⅞ for Santos 4s. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

There were no changes in the local sugar situation, the demand for refined being only moderate, and while all refiners were still busy on old orders, they are expected to be in good condition when the early Summer demand appears. Prices remain at the fixed level of 4.985 for Cubas, cost and freight, equal to 6.005 for Centrifugal with refined at 7.45 for fine granulated. Of late purchases by the International Committee have been of large volume and additional purchases were reported at 2,650 tons of Porto Ricos and 2,500 tons of Venezuelas for May shipment.

GOOD TONE IN LONDON.

LONDON, May 16.—While awaiting the development of the German offensive the tone of the stock market is confident, and today home and investment issues were firm, with a scarcity of available securities.

Chinese bonds advanced again, and the demand for them was unsatisfied. Mexicans were strong and industrials had a good tone, particularly the dye industries on important statements in Parliament. Mining specialties were active, while rubber stocks were dull.

Money was in larger supply. Discount rates were quiet.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 8,625 packages. Supply and demand pretty nearly balance, and the market is holding steady on the finer grades of fresh table butter, though the feeling on the secondary qualities is easy. Renovated slightly weaker. Ladles and packing stock fairly sustained. Creamery, higher than extras, a lb., 47@47½c; extras, (92 score,) 46¼@46½c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 43½@46c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 38½@42½c; thirds, 35@37½c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 49@49½c; extras, 48@48½c; firsts, 44½@47½c; seconds, 41@44c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 46@46½c; good to prime, 43@45½c; common to fair 36@42c; renovated, extras, 39@39½c; firsts, 37½@38½c; lower grades, 34@36c; imitation creamery, firsts, 35@35½c; ladles, current make, firsts, 33@34c; seconds, 31½@32c; lower grades, 30@31c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 31½@32c; No. 2, 30@30½c; lower grades, 27@29½c.

EGGS.—29,950 cases. The market is dull and stock is accumulating. Prices for highest qualities of strong bodied Northern stock are better sustained than medium grades, but all grades are offering lower, and on average prime and ordinary qualities there is strong pressure to sell at a considerable deduction. Dirties and checks rule easier. Nearly white eggs accumulating and holders are anxious to sell at easier prices. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 37½@38c; storage packed firsts, 36@37c; regular packed extra firsts, 36@36½c; regular packed firsts, 34½@35½c; seconds, 32@34c; fresh gathered dirties No. 1, storage packed, 32½@33c; No. 1 regular packed, 32@32½c; No. 2 and poorer, 30@31½c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 30@31c; under grades, 25@29c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 40@41c; ordinary to prime, 38@39c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 38@39c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 36½@37½c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby hennery browns, 38@39c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 35@36½c.

THE COTTON MARKET

Prices Advance Through Most of Session, with Net Gain of 25 to 58 Points.

The local cotton market continued its efforts to find a new point of equilibrium yesterday, with an advance in prices, continuing through most of the session, which brought quotations up from 25 to 58 net points above Wednesday's closing figure. It was, so far as all indications went, a "market advance," that is, the crop conditions, weather news, and other exterior factors were no more favorable to it than on preceding days, but the technical position was stronger, comparatively little cotton was offering, very few operators cared to extend their short lines, and reports from the South indicated that buyers were coming to the terms of the farmers in the spot markets.

Prices were up from 12 to 25 points at the opening, with Liverpool reporting rather stronger than in recent days, and as soon as a fair crop of overnight selling orders had been absorbed, it became clear that nobody had much cotton to sell, while a number were willing or even anxious to buy. As has almost invariably happened when the market appears ripe for it, the "peace talkers" found nourishment and stimulus in the rather non-committal remarks of Foreign Secretary Balfour in the House of Commons, and prices moved buoyantly forward until they were some 70 points or better above Wednesday's close.

About 25 to 45 points of this were lost, however, in the final hour, by an amount of profit-taking and covering which indicated comparatively little confidence on the long side, and also a comparatively small proportion of trade buying among the purchases earlier in the day. The crop news was fairly good, but hopes of increased transatlantic freight space for cotton found little support. No exports were reported yesterday.

1. Bonds will be secured by a closed first mortgage on approximately 44,000 acres of land owned by the Company, inside the boundaries of Reclamation District No. 1500, located in Sutter County, Cal., approximately twenty-two miles north of the City of Sacramento, at the confluence of the Sacramento and Feather Rivers. The soil is very fertile and the land is capable of producing abundant and varied crops. Bonds will also be secured by first mortgage on about 9,400 acres of by-pass land, subject to cultivation for summer crops. Three independent appraisals show an average valuation of about $12,000,000 for the Company's lands when reclaimed.
2. The Company covenants that warrants or bonds issued or to be issued by Reclamation District No. 1500, to the full amount of assessments against the lands owned by the Company, will be deposited with the Trustee. In addition the Company will also deposit with the Trustee warrants, which it is expected will amount to approximately $1,446,000 (including interest accumulated but not due), secured by assessments against lands other than those owned by the Company.
3. The physical work of reclamation has been in progress for some time. At the present date the levee system is 90% completed, the drainage system 75% completed. Stockholders of the Company have contracted to provide funds with which to complete the project, and they will deposit with Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank readily marketable securities to be held in escrow for this purpose.
4. Stockholders of this Company are liable under the laws of California for their proportionate share of all indebtedness incurred, and will file with the Trustee waivers of any right which might limit this liability. The principal stockholders are Mr. J. Ogden Armour, President, Armour & Company, and associates, of Chicago, and Mr. W. E. Gerber, President, California National Bank, and associates, of Sacramento, who own 93% of the stock, Mr. Armour personally owning 60%. The stockholders will retain ownership and deposit all of their stock with the Trustee, to be held until all bonds are retired.
5. In 1917 about 20,000 acres were under cultivation for summer crops only. Part of this land is owned by Sutter Basin Company and part by Sutter Basin Improvement Company, the latter being a subsidiary, owning about 5,000 acres outside of District No. 1500. The net revenue from the above 20,000 acres (being less than 35% of the total acreage of the two Companies) was about $1,200,000, of which the net earnings on a crop share basis amounted to $507,469 after liberal reserve for income taxes. In 1918 approximately 40,000 acres will be under cultivation.
6. The Trust Deed will provide that no disbursements may be made to stockholders as long as any of these bonds are outstanding.

Legality will be approved by Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt, Chicago, and Goodfellow, Eells, Moore & Orrick, San Francisco, and Devlin & Devlin, Sacramento.

OFFER SUTTER BASIN BONDS

Issue of $5,000,000 Will Pay Approximately 7 1-2 Per Cent.

There was announced yesterday an offering of $5,000,000 of Sutter Basin Company's first mortgage 7 per cent. serial bonds at prices ranging from 97⅛ to 96½, having an approximate yield of 7½ per cent. Of the $5,000,000 issue $1,000,000 matures every May 1 from 1924 to 1928.

R. G. Dunham, Vice President of the company, says that the bonds will be secured by a closed first mortgage on approximately 44,000 acres of land owned by the company in Sacramento Valley, Cal. The bonds will also be secured by a first mortgage on about 9,400 acres of additional lands subject to cultivation for Summer crops. According to appraisals the valuation of the company's lands when reclaimed is about $12,000,000. J. Ogden Armour of Chicago is said to be one of the principal stockholders of the company.

The bond offering is being made under the names of Halsey, Stuart & Co. and Blyth, Witter & Co. of San Francisco; the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago, and the Anglo and London-Paris National Bank and Bond & Goodwin of San Francisco.

Liggett & Myers Stock Issue Plans.

President C. C. Dula of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company yesterday issued a statement regarding the special meeting of stockholders of that company, called for June 18, to vote on a proposal to authorize the issue of $21,496,400 of Class B common stock, explaining that it was at present planned not to issue more than 25 per cent. of the authorized new stock at any one time, and then on not less than three months' notice.

UNITED STATES GOVT. BONDS

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Stocks closed steady with substantial net gains in a majority of the issues at the close yesterday of a very excited and active market. A heavy selling pressure developing late in the afternoon and reaching its climax in the final hour caused a very sharp reaction, the decline being from 1 to more than 4 points from the high levels of the session, when heavy gains were registered. The reactionary movement was more pronounced in activity than the advance, the peak of which was reached about midday. Final quotations were, as a rule, better than the day's low figures.

FINANCIAL NOTICES.

120 Broadway, New York, April 1st, 1918.
Collateral Trust Six Per Cent. Gold Bonds, Series A.

To the Holders of Instalment Receipts:

Notice is hereby given that the holders of Half-Paid Receipts are offered the privilege of extending the date of payment of the final instalment on account of the purchase of this Company's Collateral Trust Gold Bonds Series A, from May 29, 1918 (the date fixed in the Receipt), to November 29, 1918.

Receipt-holders electing to extend the time of payment will surrender their Receipts at the office of Guaranty Trust Company of New York, 140 Broadway, New York City, on or before May 29, 1918, and receive in exchange therefor EXTENDED INSTALMENT RECEIPTS.

The Company will continue to allow interest to the holders of EXTENDED RECEIPTS at the rate of 6% per annum on the first instalment of the purchase price of the Bonds.

The respective rights and obligations of the Company and of the holders of EXTENDED RECEIPTS shall be as stated in the Receipts now outstanding except as necessarily modified by the extension of the date for payment of the final instalment due thereon.

Receipt-holders electing to pay the final instalment on May 29, 1918, will receive the Bonds called for by their Receipts.

The Federal Committee on Capital Issues has advised the Company that it "would look with favor" upon any action taken by the Company by way of offering Receipt-holders the privilege of extending the time of payment of the second instalment, and has authorized the Company so to advise the Receipt-holders.

DANIEL GUGGENHEIM, President.

$8,500,000 INTEREST PAID ON LOANS IN DAY

Federal Reserve Bank Employes Handled 600,000 Coupons on Wednesday.

The coupon department of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, which is in charge of J. B. Cunningham, had another very busy day yesterday cashing the initial coupons of the 4 per cent. bonds of the Second Liberty Loan. Figures for the day's business were not available last night, but it was learned that on Wednesday the payments amounted to more than $8,500,000. Mr. Cunningham and his assistants handled about 600,000 coupons, which had to be counted and checked up before they were packed in large bundles for shipments to the Treasury Department in Washington.

The major portion of the $8,500,000 was paid to banks which sent messengers with coupons collected from their customers. The cash payments to individuals owning a few of the small denomination bonds amounted to about $5,000 or $6,000 on Wednesday and to approximately $3,000 yesterday. A large number of the coupon cutters, instead of asking for cah, applied to the "W. S. S." window and exchanged their coupons for thrift and war savings stamps. One man took $14 in war savings stamps. On Wednesday the exchanges for stamps amounted to about $1,200, and yesterday they totaled slightly less than $1,000.

It appears that a great many out-of-town banks, instead of cashing their coupons with Reserve Banks of their districts, have been forwarding them to their New York correspondents, who have been turning them in at the New York Reserve Bank.

The New York agency of the Philippine National Bank announced yesterday that subscriptions of the Islands to the Third Liberty Loan amounted to more than 150 per cent. of the assigned quota. For the three loans the subscriptions total $8,675,000, which, added to $10,000,000 of Treasury certificates purchased, makes a grand total of $18,675,000. To date there have been sold on the Islands approximately $30,000 in war savings and thrift stamps.

COPPER EARNINGS DECREASE

Nevada Consolidated Co. Reports $2,767,667 Drop in Quarter.

The Nevada Consolidated Copper Company reports net earnings of $470,809 in the quarter ended March 31, a total less than one-seventh as large as the income reported for the corresponding period last year. The first three months of 1917 brought a net of $3,238,474 and the same quarter of 1916 resulted in a profit of $2,781,811. After providing for depreciation and paying out $1,999,457 in dividends, the corporation had a deficit of $1,689,387, against a surplus of $1,022,450 the year before.

The sharp decline of earnings was the result in part of the carriage of a portion of the copper at the inventory price of 13½ cents a pound for the reason that the fixed price of the metal is scheduled at 23½ cents a pound only until June 1, and sales for delivery beyond that date could not be definitely priced. The output amounted to 17,435,184 pounds, compared with 22,153,158 pounds in the last quarter of 1917. The average cost of production was 15.64 cents per pound, compared with 12.73 cents in the preceding quarter.

Gaston Remains Head of Concern.

Following the announcement a few days ago of the retirement of William H. Williams and James A. Wigmore from Gaston, Williams & Wigmore, Inc., it was stated yesterday by Charles H. Sabin, Chairman of the Board of Directors, that George A. Gaston would continue as President "with full authority." An organization meeting of the new board was held yesterday and Charles A. Corliss, President of Lamont, Corliss & Co., was elected a Director. Mr. Corliss, Harry Payne Whitney, and G. M. Dahl, Vice President of the Chase National Bank, were elected Directors of the Gaston, Williams & Wigmore Steamship Company, Ltd.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Two Washington Heights apartment houses were acquired yesterday by an operating company in a cash transaction. The Malex Realty Company, of which Max N. Natanson, operator, is President, purchased, through Nehring Brothers, from a client of O'Reilly & Dahn, the two five-story thirty-family houses known as the Wallingford and the Woodstock, at 533 to 541 West 163d Street.

These buildings cover a plot 155 by 100, between Broadway and St. Nicholas Avenue, and have been held at $250,000. They show an annual rent roll of about $26,000.

Operator in Series of Deals.

Frederick Brown resold the six-story remodeled dwelling at 13 East Sixty-seventh Street, known as the Hevers Chambers, to Mrs. Jessica E. Smith. Mr. Brown took over the property at foreclosure on Wednesday on a bid of $108,302. The property covers a lot 22 by 100.2, about 128 feet east of the Astor home, at Fifth Avenue and Sixty-seventh Street.

In exchange Mrs. Smith gave the four-story dwelling at 16 West Sixty-eighth Street, on a lot 18 by 100.5, and the three-story house at 129 East Forty-seventh Street, on a lot 20 by 100.

The Sixty-eighth Street property has been resold by Mr. Brown to a client of Henry E. Mowen, understood to be Misha Appelbaum, leader of the Humanitarian Cult. Mr. Brown also resold the Twenty-ninth Street house to Morris Wetzler. The various transactions were negotiated by Pease & Elliman.

Quick Resale of Heights Flat.

The five-story twenty-family apartment house 1,520 St. Nicholas Avenue has been resold by Joseph Schwartz to Jacob Hirsh for investment. The structure, which the seller acquired in a trade Wednesday, occupies a plot 40 by 100, near 168th Street.

In part payment the buyer gave 444 West Thirty-third Street, a five-story building with a store, on a lot 25 by 100. M. I. Stransky and H. F. Byrnes negotiated the transaction.

Buying Tenements for Investment.

Harry Sugarman sold for the Ortus Realty Company to Charles Wynne 316 East Fortieth Street, near Second Avenue, a five-story tenement, on a lot 25 by 100.

Ennis & Sinnott, operators, purchased from the German Savings Bank 280 West 119th Street, a five-story tenement, on a lot 20 by 100.11, adjoining the southeast corner of Eighth Avenue: William A. White & Sons negotiated the sale.

Deals for Dwellings.

Julia Warmstadt sold to a client of the Houghton Company for occupancy 47 West Ninety-first Street, a three-story dwelling, on a lot 17 by 100.8. This is the first change of ownership in twenty-eight years.

John E. Berwind is the buyer of the residence at 43 Park Avenue, near Thirty-sixth Street, recently sold by William A. Street. Mr. Berwind, who now lives at 102 East Thirty-ninth Street, will alter the Park Avenue house for his own occupancy.

Gilbert A. Wright sold to the George A. Fisher Company the three-story dwelling at 13 West 122d Street, between Mount Morris and Lenox Avenues. The property was given in part payment for the Bonnefoi apartment at the southwest corner of Audubon Avenue and 170th Street, reported sold last Tuesday. Shaw & Ebbitt negotiated the deal.

Joseph P. Day sold for Harry Friedman to a client 119 West Ninety-seventh Street, a four-story private house, on a plot 15 by 100. The same broker recently sold the adjoining premises at 115-117 West Ninety-seventh Street. The property has just been leased to the West Side Catholic Club.

Buying in the Bronx.

Annie Bernstein purchased from S. Rosenfeld, for investment, 1,251 and 1,253 Brook Avenue, a five-story new-law tenement, on a plot 42 by 90.

An investing client of Cahn & Pittman purchased from Patrick Dillon and Johanna Dillon, 2,876 Bailey Avenue, a two-family, three-story house, on a lot 25 by 100.

William R. Lowe sold for Frederick A. Budde his residence at 2,202 University Avenue, a two-and-a-half-story dwelling, on lot 27 by 100, near 181st Street; also, for the Briggs estate, the two-and-a-half-story dwelling, on a plot 43 by 168, on the south side of 190th Street, 76 feet east of Morris Avenue.

The Alotto Realties, Inc., sold to an investor 1,254 Morris Avenue, a six-story new-law tenement, on a plot 39.6 by 100, located near 168th Street. William H. Mehlich negotiated the sale.

Brooklyn.

Molly Greenwald sold the three-story brick and limestone business and apartment building 20 by 202, on the west side of Flatbush Avenue, 59.4 feet south of Dorchester Road. The McInerney-Klinck Realty Company negotiated the deal.

F. C. Sauter has sold a plot at Sixth Avenue and Sixty-fifth Street near the Long Island Railroad freight yard at Bay Ridge.

J. D. Ranck and Samuel Galitzka sold for Louis Gold, 940 East Ninth Street, a one-family detached house with garage on a plot 34 by 100; also sold for Mable Holmes to M. Richmond of Manhattan, 1,931 East Nineteenth Street, a one-family semi-detached stucco house on a plot 20 by 100; for Louis Gold, 928 East Ninth Street, a one-family detached house with garage; for the Realty Sales Company, a two-family house on a lot 20 by 100 at 1,423 Thirty-sixth Street; and for William Holmes, a one-family semi-detached house on a lot 25 by 100 at 1,937 East Nineteenth Street.

New Jersey.

Cahn & Pittman have bought a 102-acre farm, with a dwelling and outbuildings and fully stocked, on the Lincoln Highway, at New Brunswick, N. J. R. A. Schur was the broker in the sale.

Commercial Leases.

Joseph P. Day has leased for Sarah Smith the entire building at 31 Moore Street to Lahn & Simons, wool brokers, for a term of years. The property comprises a five-story building, on a lot 25.5 by 90.8, and will be used as a storage warehouse.

Charles Buermann & Co. have leased to the Masson Lumber Company the property at the southwest corner of Rivington and East Streets, for a term of years, at a rental aggregating about $10,000.

The Factory Exchange leased the store and basement, 251 West Nineteenth Street for the Revel Realty & Securities Company to Jaburg Brothers.

The Charles F. Noyes Company leased for the Lawyers Realty Company the building at 68 South Street to the Traders Motor Trucking & Storage Company; also the store and basement at 182 Washington Street to Otto Reinert; the store, 90 Pine Street to Edward Maurer Company, and the store and basement at 179 Pearl Street to the Trench & Foundation Pump Company.

Uniform Title Fees.

Edward Polak, Register of Bronx County and Chairman of the Committee of Registers of Greater New York, announced yesterday that the Registers of the five counties in New York City have agreed on a uniform fee and a standard form of petition for the search of titles under the Torrens law, recently enacted.

The scale of fees and form of petition have been submitted to the Supreme Court for adjudication. On property valued at $50,000 the fees would be as follows: Filing notice of petition, $1; publishing, mailing, and posting notice, $15; examination fee, $1 a thousand of assessed valuation, plus $10 expenses; assurance premium, $1 a thousand; first certificate, $5, resulting in a cost of $131 for establishing the original search on property valued at $50,000.

Every additional certificate of title issued on that property thereafter will cost $3, no matter how often title changes hands.

Realty Note.

The Absar Realty Company, Abraham Weissman, President, which bought yesterday the block front on the south side of 192d Street, from the Grand Boulevard and Concourse to Creston Avenue, plans the erection of apartment houses on the site, to cost about $625,000. The brokers in the deal were Fred Oppenheimer and Robert Altman.

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

It appearing to my satisfaction by the petition of Siegel, Corn & Siegel, verified the 3rd day of May, 1918, that a petition was filed in this court on the 25th day of April, 1918, praying that the above-named alleged bankrupt be adjudged a bankrupt, and that a subpoena directed to said alleged bankrupt was duly issued out of this court to the Marshal of this district, and that the said Marshal has been unable to serve the same, and that said alleged bankrupt is not now within this district so that personal service may be made upon him, and that diligent efforts have since been made to ascertain the whereabouts of the said alleged bankrupt, but that he is not now within the jurisdiction of this court, it is Now, on motion of Siegel, Corn & Siegel, Esqs., attorneys for the petitioning creditors,

Ordered, That the above-named alleged bankrupt plead, answer, or demur on or before the 27th day of May, 1918, to the petition herein filed in the office of the Clerk of this court, on the 25th day of April, 1918; and in case of his failure to plead, answer, or demur thereto, adjudication shall be made according to the prayer of said petition.

And it is further ordered that this order be published in The New York Times, once week for two successive weeks, said publication to commence not later than the 10th day of May, 1918, and that a copy of this order be mailed to the said alleged bankrupt at his last known residence, No. 214 West 110th Street, New York City, on or before the date of the first publication.

Dated New York, May 8, 1918.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Pressure continues high east of the Mississippi Valley, but with a falling tendency. It remains low in the Plains States and the near Northwest and also in the extreme West and Northwest, but with a rapid rise in progress in the two latter districts accompanied by quite general, though mostly light, rains.

No other precipitation of consequence occurred except some substantial rains in South Carolina and Southeastern Georgia.

High temperatures continued in the south upper Lake region, the Central Valleys, and the Plains States and it is also warmer in the lower Lake region. In the Atlantic and Gulf States temperatures are nearly normal, while in the extreme Northwest they have fallen decidedly to below normal conditions.

Showers will fall Friday and Saturday in the Florida Peninsula; Friday night or Saturday in the north upper Lake region, and on Saturday in the south upper lake and western lower lake region and probably the southern portions of the East Gulf States. Elsewhere in this forecast district the weather will be fair Friday and Saturday.

It will be warmer Friday and Saturday in the interior of the Atlantic States and cooler Saturday in the Ohio Valley, the upper lake and western lower lake regions.

Winds for Friday and Saturday along the North and Middle Atlantic Coasts will be gentle to moderate south; fair weather. South Atlantic Coast, moderate northeast and east, generally fair weather.

FORECASTS—TODAY AND SATURDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair and warmer Friday; Saturday fair, warmer in the eastern portion.

Southern New England—Fair Friday and Saturday, warmer on the mainland.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair and warmer Friday and Saturday.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

The Commission announces for June 4 an examination for bacteriologic technician, for women. Two vacancies in the Medical Department at Large of the War Department, for duty at Washington, D. C., at $1,200 a year, will be filled from this examination. The duties will consist of the application of laboratory diagnostic methods to the routine of general hospital work. Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated on physical ability, education, training, and experience. Applicants must have reached their twenty-first birthday on the date of the examination. Further information may be obtained from the Commission, Washington, D. C.

Education Notes.

The trial of Gertrude A. M. Pignol, teacher of German in the Manual Training High School, Brooklyn, on charges of disloyalty, will be held today at the Board of Education Hall. Miss Pignol is a native of Berlin, and the descendant of Huguenots, who fled from France to Germany to escape persecution. She does not believe that this country was justified in declaring war against Germany. It is probable that her counsel, Charles Recht, will object to her trial by the committee of the Board of Education.

The closing exercises of Curtis Evening High School will be held this evening in the auditorium of the school, New Brighton, S. I. Anning S. Prall, member of the Board of Education, will preside. City Superintendent Ettinger will deliver an address.

The Faculty of the New York Training School for Teachers will be at home to the alumni students and friends of the school at 5 P. M. on May 23. A tablet in honor of Miss Nicolai, head of the physical training department, will be unveiled at 4:15 P. M.

The Board of Superintendents has reported to the Board of Education that twelve women teachers were granted leaves of absence in March for maternity.

FOOD BOARD CALLS FOR JOBBERS' BOOKS

Firms Are Told That Severe Punishment Will Follow Pyramiding of Profits.

SIX FIRMS ARE SUMMONED

400 Bakers Cited for Violations Warned That Their Places May Be Closed for Three Months.

The Federal Food Board yesterday began an investigation into the business affairs of several large produce jobbing concerns doing business in the Produce Exchange Building, in order, says a statement issued by the board, "to impress upon jobbers generally that the Food Administration means business when it says there must be no pyramiding of profits and that there should be no selling of commodities to unlicensed firms." The officers of six firms were summoned before the board yesterday to explain certain transactions that appeared on their books.

Federal Food Administrator Arthur Williams heard the report of J. L. Lindner, Assistant Director of the Bureau of Enforcement and Licenses, with regard to the inspection Mr. Lindner made of the books of W. T. Harding, a produce jobber, whose offices are in the Produce Exchange Building; Coulter, Soper & Bogert, Produce Exchange Building; Jacob Rosenberg, Produce Exchange Building; M. T. Swazey's Sons & Company, Produce Exchange Building, and Lubetkin Brothers, 10 Front Street. Mr. Williams then issued instructions for a further investigation of the books of W. T. Harding and Moskovitz & Rosenberg to determine the exact marginal profit the jobbers made on certain resales.

"In the case of Harding," says the Food Board's statement, "it was brought out that, although his firm does approximately $3,000,000 business yearly, he seems to pay no attention whatever to the Food Administration's rules regarding substitutes, resales, and selling to unlicensed dealers. The board felt this so thoroughly that the case against him was adjourned pending a reinspection of his books, and to give him ample opportunity to defend the charges of the board's investigator.

"Similar action will be taken in the case of Moskovitz & Rosenberg. In the case of Lubetkin Brothers, the principal charge was the selling of large quantities of flour without a sufficient quantity of substitutes. This firm contended that the dealers to whom it sold the flour had on hand enough substitutes to balance the actual number of barrels of flour sold to them. The firm was ordered to produce certificates showing that this was the fact.

"In the case of Coulter, Soper & Bogert, this firm sold extraordinary amounts of flour to individuals without due regard to the substitute rule, and the firm admitted selling to at least two customers who had no licenses. In this case there is to be a checking up of the books to determine the exact number of persons or firms without licenses to whom they have been selling. The firm claimed to have 1,000 customers. There was no evidence to show a violation in the case of M. T. Swazey's Son & Co."

The Bureau of Complaints of the Food Board yesterday heard the cases of 400 "first offense" bakers yesterday. They were told that hereafter there would be no suspensions for three days, that the board had given ample publicity to the substitute rule, and that all persons or firms found guilty would have their places of business closed promptly for three months.

Samuel Rea, President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, yesterday issued an appeal to the 250,000 employes of the Pennsylvania, urging the most economical use of food and the avoidance of all waste by all railroad men and their families, representing, it was said, nearly 1,000,000 persons. Mr. Rea's appeal was said to have followed steps taken to bring the necessities of the food situation before the general public through the medium of conservation posters placed in all of the passenger coaches of the Pennsylvania lines.

A three-day convention of the National Live Stock Exchange began with a luncheon yesterday at the Hotel McAlpin and continued with a business meeting in the afternoon. W. B. Tagg is President of the organization, whose delegates represent the leading live stock markets of this country. In an address yesterday afternoon Mr. Tagg said he thought too much attention had been devoted toward encouraging the farmer to increase the production of live stock, and not enough to making provision for the increased production when it had been placed on the market.

GIVE PLANS FOR ITALIAN DAY

Big Concert on May 24 to Celebrate Italy's Entry Into War.

Plans were announced yesterday for the celebration on May 24, Italy-America Day, of the third anniversary of Italy's entry into the war, and will include a concert at the Metropolitan Opera House under the auspices of the Italy-America Society at which Caruso, Scotti, Amato, Alda, and others will sing.

The American Committee for Devastated France, which is co-operating with the Italy-America Society, has issued an appeal through its 200 branches to all patriotic Americans to hang out Italian flags on May 24, and to distribute flowers combining the Italian colors of red, white, and green. Francis H. Markoe, Chairman of the Flower Committee of the Italy-America Day celebration, says that the large war relief societies had promised to co-operate with his committee in providing and distributing the flowers.

A flower arcade, formed by automobiles will be arranged under the auspices of the National League for Women's Service. Among the other societies that will co-operate in the celebration will be the Fatherless Children of France and the American Fund for French Wounded. Italian war films will be shown at the Lorillard Mansion, and in the museum at Bronx Park, under the direction of Lieutenant Prochet.

Whitman Proclaims Italy Day.

ALBANY, May 16.—Governor Whitman, in a proclamation issued today, designated Friday, May 24, as Italy Day, in observance of the third anniversary of Italy's entrance into the war.

ORGANIZE 'FAMILY UNITS.'

Move to Aid Soldiers of the 307th Infantry and Their Families.

Organization of "family units" to provide comforts for members of the 307th Infantry, on service overseas, and to aid families in sending packages and letters to the soldiers, as well as to assist the needy families of the soldiers, has been announced by Miss Estelle E. Warren of 6 East Thirtieth Street, a member of the committee for the unit of the headquarters company of the regiment.

In letters to the families of soldiers in the command, it is said that the unit "is not a charity organization, but an organization for the welfare of our people who are at home backing up our boys who are fighting 'over there.'" The work of the unit is handled by two committees. One is called the Soldiers' Needs Committee and the other is the Home Welfare Committee. In telling of the work of the committees, the announcement says:

"The Soldiers' Needs Committee is taking care of the boys over there. Every two weeks a requisition is sent to us by Captain Hale of the Supply Department, telling us just what the boys need, and each family is notified so that they can send the needed things. Each and every boy will be supplied with a package. Those who have no families or friends will be taken care of by the committee."

The announcement said that the committee of the unit had permission from the War Department to send boxes or packages to France, thus relieving the families of the necessity of getting permission from Washington for the shipment of packages, as under the present rule. The families are urged to send to the headquarters of the unit here only the articles mentioned on the requisition. Among those articles are tobacco, socks, and chocolate.

It is the work of the Home Welfare Committee to provide medical attention for the families of the soldiers, to give them legal advice when it is needed, and to see that they receive regularly their allotments from the Government.

FIFTY PERSONS AT THE SALE

The lease for five years of Pier 69, North River, was sold by auction to the highest bidder at the offices of the Dock Commissioner, Pier A, yesterday, and brought $65,500 a year. The successful bidder was the Bristol City Line, the present holders of the pier privilege at $5,000 a month, and holder of the lease for the past eighteen years at $15,000 a year. There was spirited bidding by half a dozen concerns, the nearest approach to the Bristol Company's offer being made by James Auditore, of James Auditore & Co., stevedores, of Brooklyn, who stopped bidding when $65,000 was reached.

The city is just $50,500 richer in the annual revenue the pier will bring than when it was occupied by the Bristol Line during previous administrations. The Bristol City Line is the holding company of the Occident Dock Company, which obtained the lease many years ago. The sale of the lease was held as a result of an order by Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum, who ruled that the city could accept any bid above $35,000.

The matter was thrown into the courts after attorneys for the Bristol City Line had brought an injunction to restrain the city from awarding the lease to the Hudson Dock and Terminal Corporation, which had offered to rent the pier for $25,000 after the Bristol concern had offered $30,000. While the affair was in court Dock CCommissioner Murray Hulbert allowed the Bristol City Line to use the pier at $5,000 a month.

About fifty people were waiting at the Dock Commissioner's office yesterday morning when James Day of Joseph P. Day & Co. mounted the "block" and announced that, in the absence of the Dock Commissioner, he would conduct the sale.

"What am I offered?" began Mr. Day after the terms of the lease had been announced.

"Forty thousand dollars," came the first bid, made by Henry F. Cochrane, a lawyer of 177 Montague Street, Brooklyn, who said he was acting for himself. Mr. Day then explained that the Dock Commissioner had a standing offer of $60,000 a year for the pier. Mr. Auditore then bid $46,000. Mr. Cochrane and Mr. Auditore then ran it up to $52,000, when Mr. Cochrane dropped out. Then George W. Field, an attorney, representing the Bristol City Line, ran the bidding up to $64,500.

"Sixty-five thousand dollars," came back Mr. Auditore.

"All right, $65,500," said Mr. Field.

"I'm through," announced Mr. Auditore, and the auctioneer ended the sale.

The lease is for five years, beginning June 1, with a clause providing that if the Department of Docks has occasion during that time to improve the waterfront in the vicinity of Pier 69 the lease may be terminated without legal action.

The discussion which was expected to develop at the meeting of the Sinking Fund Commission yesterday over leasing part of the pier at the foot of East Fifth Street did not materialize, as the trouble between Dock Commissioner Hulbert and several members of the commission, on the one hand, and Controller Craig, on the other, was patched up at an executive meeting, which lasted an hour before the commission got down to business. Controller Craig objected to the lease going to the Pawtucket and New York Transportation Company for $8,400 a year on the ground that the records showed that its paid-in capital stock was only $300. Just what took place at the executive meeting was not divulged, but it was said that the Controller reversed his position and agreed to allow the lease to be made. At any rate, when the matter came before the Sinking Fund Commission the Controller made no objection when the matter was referred to Commissioner Hulbert for decision.

Nelson S. Spencer, President of the City Club, sent a letter to Mayor Hylan yesterday urging the city to change its policy in granting pier leases. A serious defect in the present system, he said, was the lack of publicity of the dates of expiration of leases of city-owned piers and of their availability for leasing.

LEATHER TRADE TO EXPAND.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 16.—The National Association of Tanners and American Leather Chemists' Association, in joint annual convention here today, outlined a proposal for the amalgamation of the allied leather interests of the United States for the furthering of the industry in prosecution of world-wide trade expansion. The industry is the first to take advantage of the Webb-Pomerene act, which permits combinations to engage in foreign trade.

A. H. Baldwin of Washington told the convention that American trade once established would be hard to undermine.

"In the past," he said, "we have allowed Great Britain and Germany to eclipse us in foreign trade, and our manufacturers have largely contented themselves with going after domestic business. The war has changed all this. If we work energetically the bulk of the foreign trade which we are now building up will be retained after the war."

ARTISTS ACT AS GUIDES.

Well-known artists have volunteered to act as guides both in afternoons and evenings to visitors to the exhibition of several hundred works of art donated to the American-British-French-Belgian Permanent Blind Relief War Fund on view at the Anderson galleries and to give intending buyers the benefit of their experience in selecting the best works.

A large number of persons were present yesterday at the afternoon tea and listened to recitations and brief talks. Mrs. Jasper Bayne presided at the tea-table, assisted by Mrs. William H. Hirst and Mrs. George Ehret, Jr. Mrs. Bayne recited "Viva la France," a dramatic episode of the war, and Judge William N. Cohen made a short address on the relation of the United States to Europe during the great struggle.

The attendance of artists and society people, of reciters and impromptu speakers, has proved so successful that these teas will be continued each afternoon for the coming week. Mrs. Irving E. Burdick will sing, and artists of the concert platform have also volunteered their services to add further interest to the exhibit of art gifts.

Naval Recruit Held for Shooting.

Tony Malzino, a Naval Reserve recruit, arrested Wednesday night at Pelham Bay, was arraigned in Harlem Court yesterday before Magistrate Nolan charged with suspicion of felonious assault. The accused was held without bail for examination tomorrow morning. According to the police Malzino made a confession to Assistant District Attorney Cardona of the homicide bureau admitting his guilt. Malzino was arrested in connection with the shooting of six-year-old Frank Capallo of 362 East 121st Street, who is in a serious condition at the Sydenham Hospital with a bullet lodged in his brain.

Why Clothes Economy is Popular

This is especially true if they want to be patriotic, and help conserve wool and labor.

You are sure of this when you buy our fine all-wool Hart Schaffner & Marx Clothes. Hart Schaffner & Marx have never made anything but good clothes.

Style and Comfort had already passed on our new Straw Hats when Mr. John B. Economy stepped in.

"They're great," said he, in approval, "but hammer hard on the price. Men folks will never believe they are $2 and $2.50 Straws unless you tell them.
